20 QUESTIONS

Get To Know Your Cover Model

You may easily recognize our April Cover Girl, Niki Ghazian from her numerous appearances in FHM, or maybe have even seen her out in Hollywood on the scene attracting oodles of attention with her Lingerie Bowl teammates. The Los Angeles native, who has been stamped a socialite, owes her success in modeling to her sultry and exotic looks, a direct result of her Persian ancestry. Despite being nominated for a coveted spot on FHM's 100 Sexiest list this year, and being romantically linked to star athletes, Ghazian has a somewhat normal side to her life. The 26 year old model-socialite is also a Law Student. Niki has been quoted in the past as "wanting to be recognized for something other than [her] looks," and spends her down hours hitting the books and planning her post-modeling career. The bad girl gone good, focuses her philanthropic efforts in her hometown of Santa Monica, at homeless shelters, spending holiday hours helping out. In a candid interview, Niki shares with us her love for football, her past bad girl antics, and the 'ruckus' she caused as a teenager while growing up in Los Angeles.

1. What's your Ethnicity?

I'm Persian, with a pinch of Russian from my Dad's side of the Fam.

2. What's your sign?

Taurus

3. Where are you from?

*Santa Monica, CA
(West Los Angeles)*

4. What did you like most about growing up in LA?

Growing up in LA is great because there is always so much to do. For example, you can surf and snowboard in the same day, quite literally. I don't think there is another city in the world where that is possible.

5. What kind of mischief did you get into while growing up?

A better question would be what kind of mischief didn't I get into. We used to set off random fire works all over the city in the middle of the night, get chased by cops. Did I mention I'm a really fast runner? My friends and I were so bad, we used to sneak out at night steal our parent's cars and joyride way before we were old enough to have a license. I learned all the freeways in the LA area that way. When I finally got my license I remember I was on the freeway with my mom one day, and she was stunned, asking me how I know all the freeways. I could go on and on about the Rukus I've caused growing up in LA, pun intended.

6. What's the craziest thing you've ever done?

Can I give you a list? Just kidding. Probably one time in High School, my friends and I were partying in Malibu and decided to go streaking down Pacific Coast Highway, followed by a skinny dip in the ocean. Fun times.

7. What brought you to LA?
My parents.

8. What's your favorite hobby and why?
Playing and Watching Football. I believe football is the greatest sport known to mankind. It takes strength, agility, mental prowess, and athletic ability more than any other sport. I play for the Los Angeles Temptations in the Lingerie Football League. Snowboarding is probably my second favorite hobby, followed by Surfing.

9. What's your guilty pleasure?
Being lazy. I love laying around naked doing absolutely nothing.

10. Who do you admire?
Madonna. I had mixed feelings about her growing up, I thought she was weird, specially when she did you know what with a DOG. But I've come to realize she is a Boss Bitch, she is the poster child for Blonde Ambition. She pretty much took over the world.

11. What's one of your personal goals?
To take over the World. No, my number one personal goal is to be Happy. I don't mean momentarily happiness, I want to attain a situation in my life, both professionally and personally, where my good days outnumber my bad days by far.

12. What do guys compliment you on the most?
Guys who know me compliment me on my personality, and how "cool" I am. Guys I just meet compliment me on how "beautiful" I am. As far as physically, I'd say I get complimented on my body in general. (Cont'd on Page 8)

Get In The Driver's Seat!

INTERIOR:

The GT500's design team challenged itself to create the ultimate Shelby Mustang interior. They used genuine leather materials in all the seats, real aluminum on the instrument panel and Alcantara® inserts on the seats and steering wheel giving you a precisely crafted, jewel-like appearance while keeping it functional. The classic white shift knob is an added bonus letting you flashback to the days of the past while cruising into the future

EXTERIOR:

The Shelby will come equipped with a set of 19-inch Goodyear

F1 Supercar tires and forged aluminum wheels (convertible comes with 18s) giving you a dynamic driving experience. An obvious difference for the 2010 Shelby is the addition of the racing stripes. A lower-drag spoiler and more aggressive front splitter are added to improve the aerodynamics. Don't forget about the unique signature coiled Cobra badges on the front grille and front fenders. This will let everyone know your bite is venomous.

to deliver you more horsepower and torque for your dollars, this is due to advancements pioneered on the GT500KR. A cool-air intake feeds the coolest air possible directly into the air box, helping to increase horsepower. The Shelby's distinct sounds will be apparent as always, though with new refinements, due to the work of the Noise, Vibration and Harshness (NVH) team. The 540 hp V8 and 510 lb.-ft torque are a force to be reckoned with.

SAFETY:

You can't take safety lightly when it comes to this much hp and torque. To put your mind at ease Ford has added a few features such as: AdvanceTrac® ESC® (Electronic Stability Control), Personal Safety System™, which includes seat belt pretensioners, load limiting retractors, dual stage front air bags, side impact air bags, driver seat position sensing, crash severity sensing and the Post-Crash Alert System (SOS), which automatically flashes the turn signal lamps and sounds the horn following deployment of an air bag or activation of the safety belt pretensioner. RM

13. What's your favorite body part on yourself?

My booty, breasts, & Abs.

14. What's your least favorite body part on yourself?

My arms. I use to swim competitively since I was 9 years old all the way up to college. Thankfully I've lost a lot of the muscle I had in my upper body, but I still think my arms and shoulders are too big and bulky. If I could change one thing it would be to make my arms skinnier.

15. What do you look for in a guy?

Honesty, Sincerity, Swagger, Sex Appeal, Sense of Humor, Athleticism, and Street Smarts.

16. What's the first thing you notice about a guy?

His eyes.

17. What turns you on?

Guys with sex appeal. This is different from just being good looking. I'm never attracted to a guy just because he is good looking, he has to bring it with the sex appeal.

18. What turns you off?

Liars, Cheaters, Liars, Liars, Lack of Character, Lack of Integrity & Core Values. I like a guy who is in touch with who he is and isn't easily swayed from it.

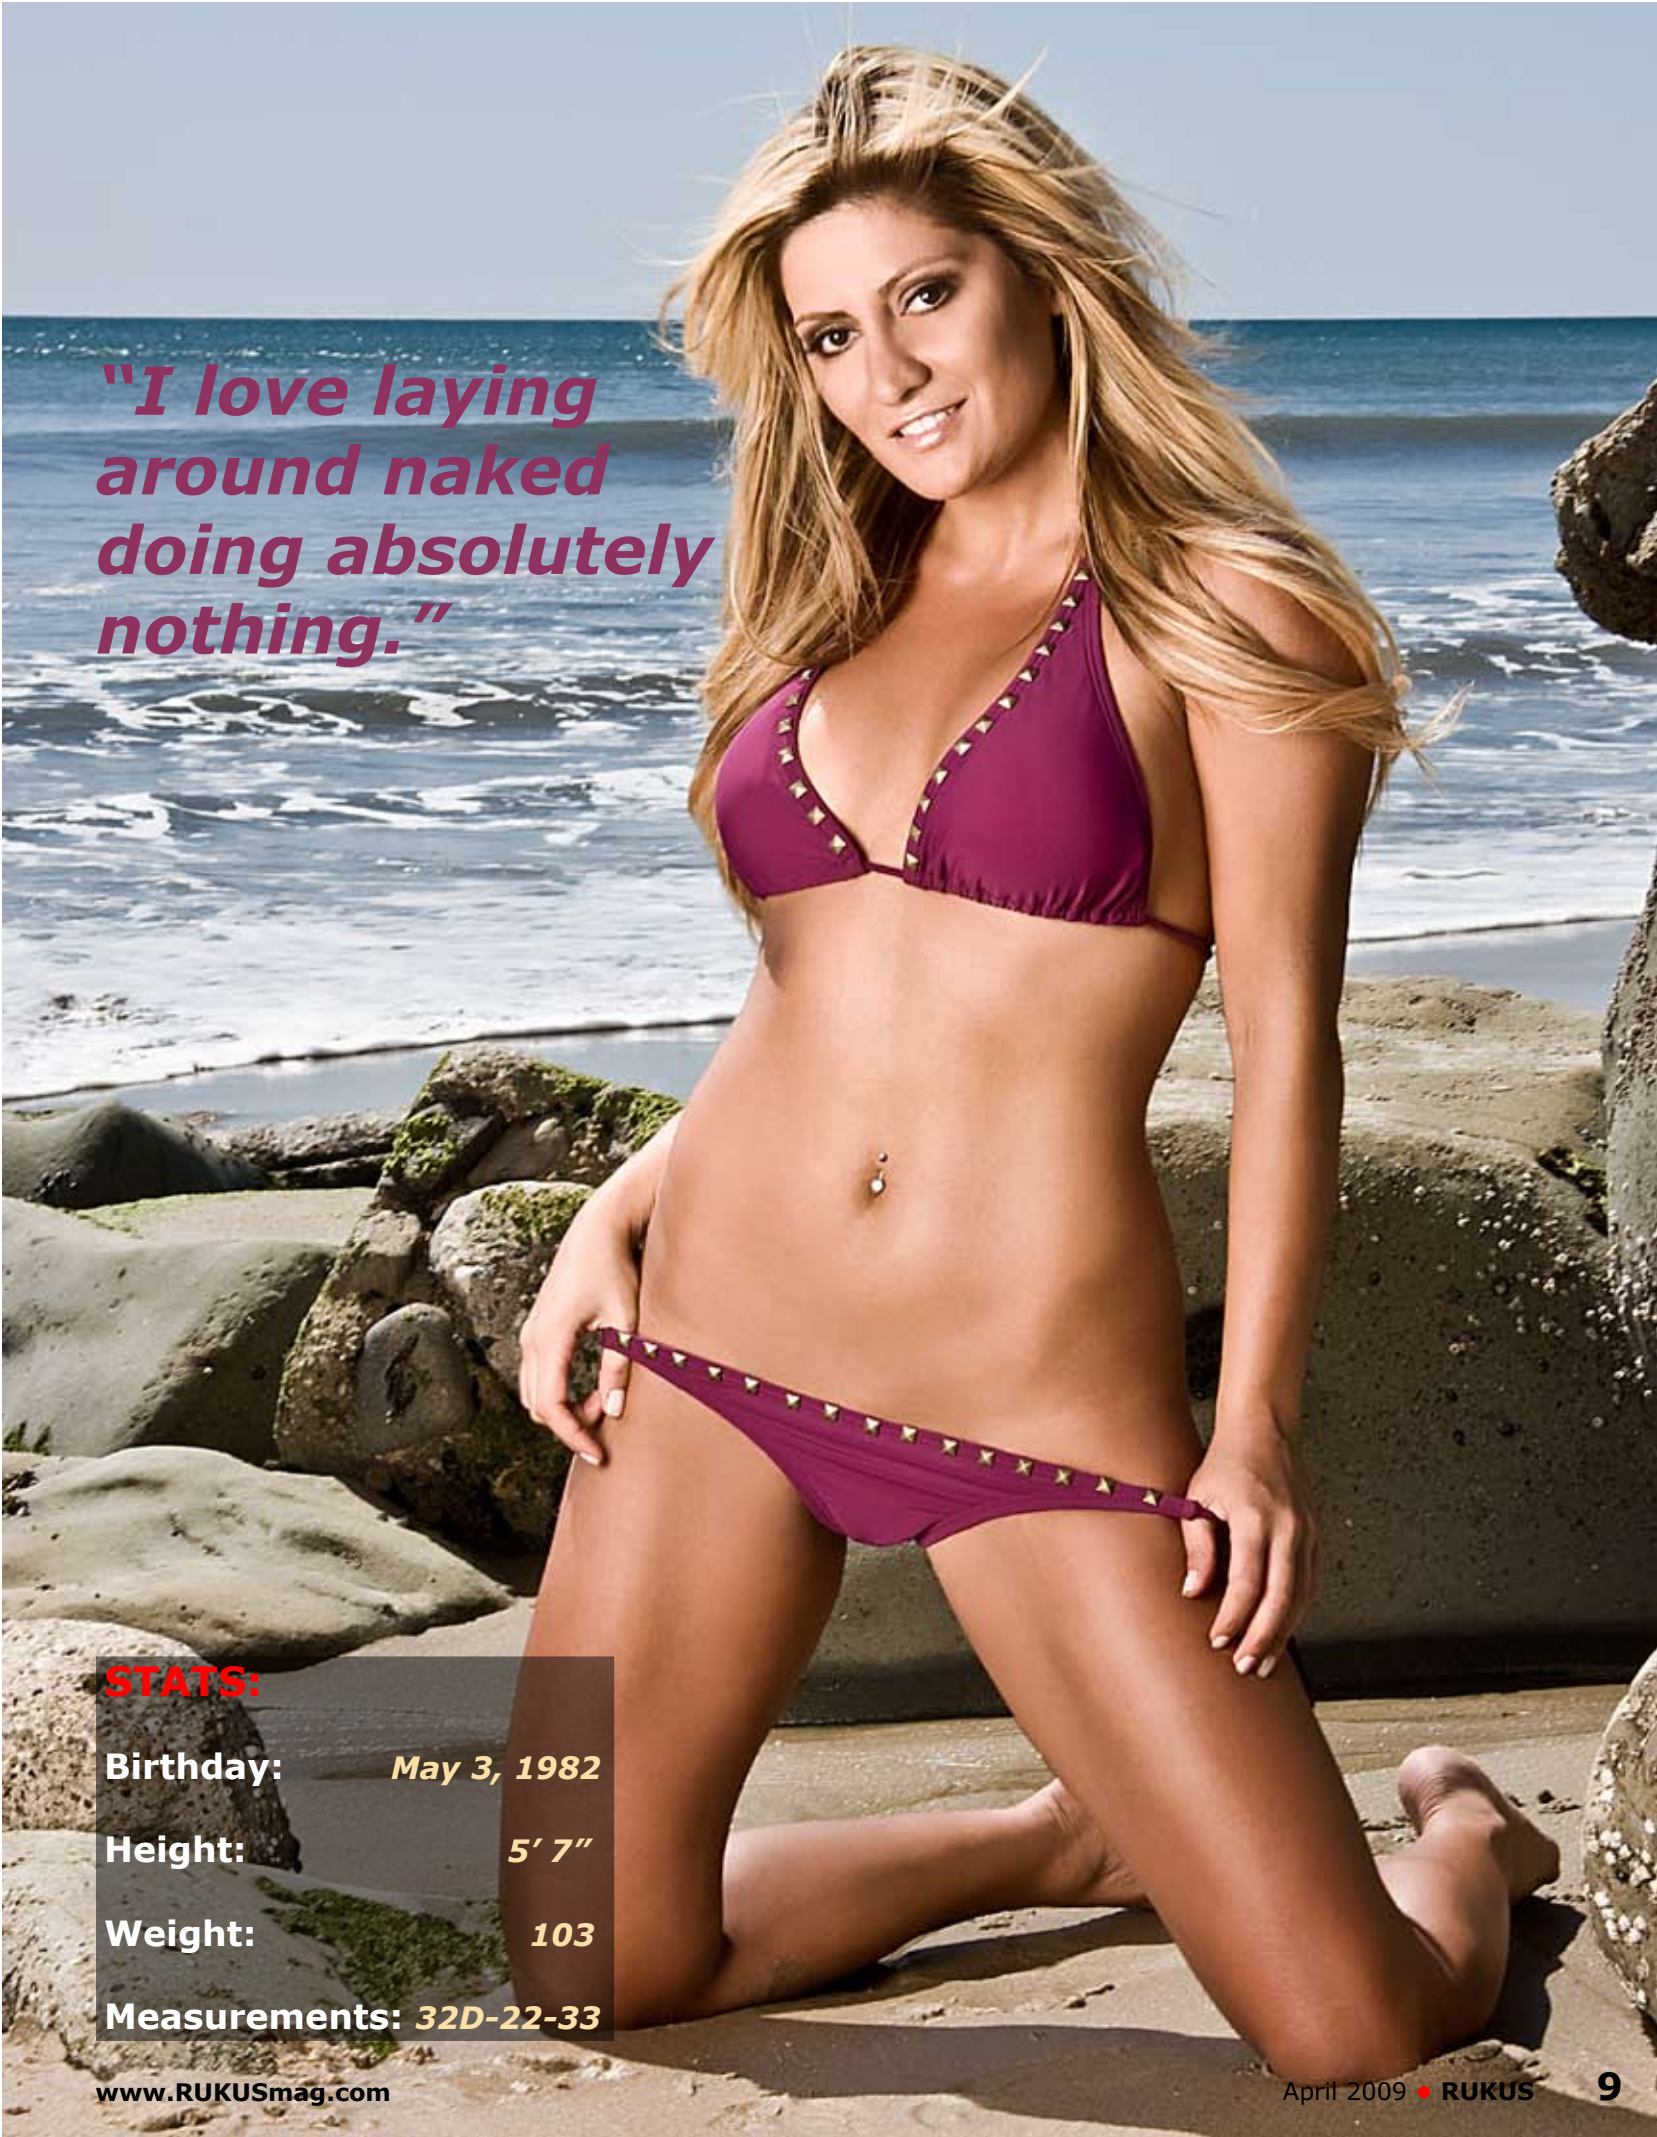

19. What's your biggest pet peeve?

Liars and Idiots

20. Who's your celebrity pass?

I've already hooked up with my celebrity pass in real life so now I have to think of a new one :). Plus I'm single so I can date who I want to at this point . RM

Papa Roach Morph into a Hard Rock Machine

Unapologetically furious and occasionally profane, the fifth major-label release from Papa Roach finds the Northern California rockers gearing up for war. Metamorphosis (Interscope Records), originally titled Days of War, Nights of Love, tellingly underscores the true nature of this collection of a dozen profoundly bitter but undeniably catchy pop-metal tunes that deal with battles on a variety of levels, from fighting inner demons to attacking targets on a larger scale. Outraged and rallying against a number of inglorious subjects, including compromise and acquiescence ("Change or Die"), wretched show-biz excesses ("Hollywood Whore"), gang violence ("Had Enough") and, inevitably, affairs of the heart ("I Almost Told You That I Loved You"), lead vocalist Jacoby Shaddix provides the lyrical bile while composers Tobin Esperance and Jerry Horton augment it with savory, often blistering melodies that closely recall Linkin Park and System of a Down. The resulting war cry makes it clear that on Metamorphosis, Papa Roach is out for blood and taking no prisoners.

The band gets right down to business with the brief instrumental fanfare "Days of War," a prelude designed to get your heart racing and in the mood for the coming onslaught...and then the bloodshed begins. "I'm sleeping with all of your friends, and I hope you find out, cause nothing's sweeter than revenge," growls vocalist Shaddix in "Live This Down," one of the most savage poison-pen letters to a cheating lover I've heard in recent memory, and arguably the album's single best fuck-you. Fans got a taste of the CD nearly half a year ago with the release of its first single, "Hollywood Whore," a kick in the crotch to all of the "white trash queens" who never deserved their fifteen minutes of fame in the first place.

Fortunately, the Roach understands that too much of anything isn't always good, and the crew have wisely balanced the rancor with several decidedly more introspective tunes to prove their mettle—and score some all-important airplay. "Lifeline," a second single released in January, couldn't be more radio-friendly (it hit #3 on Billboard's rock chart) and it's one of the disc's most sensitive tunes, packing an altogether different kind of punch, this time at Shaddix's own "ocean of self-despair." The boys slow things down considerably for "Carry Me," another self-conscious number that amplifies the album's recurring themes of contradiction and angst ("It takes horns to hold up my halo"), that will astonish and confound me if it isn't the third single.

Tightly performed and immaculately produced (by Jay Baumgardner, his first with the band), Metamorphosis finds Roach at the top of its game, and may be forgiven for the occasionally simplistic lyric. The brilliance of the CD is in the music, which demonstrates the band's titular metamorphosis from the nu-metal rap-rockers of 1990's hit "Last Resort" to the alternative guitar heroes of "Change or Die," in which Shaddix & Co. offer their self-described wake-up call: "This is our battle cry, we're ready to fight." Pump up the volume and don't you dare bet against them. RM

New Direction for Prince of Persia

The critically acclaimed Prince of Persia franchise returns for the first time on next-generation platforms with an all-new epic journey.

Out of a sandstorm emerges the Prince on a mission to find Farah, his donkey, when out of nowhere a beautiful young woman seems to fall from the sky landing on top of him. Atop the cliff above the Prince and woman appear three guards with a look of desperation. The woman takes off after landing on the prince leaving him to wonder and shout, "At least tell me your name."

Now you are in control. The Prince is curious as to what's the matter and can't help but follow. When you finally catch up to her, she is cornered by two armed guards. It is up to you to disarm them. Once you defeat these guards you have a few words with the girl and then she flees the scene leaving you to catch up once again. The mystery woman's name is finally revealed just before you are nearly crushed then fall to your death as a bridge collapses from under you. It now becomes apparent this girl, Elika, is no ordinary girl as she magically pulls you from your freefall and spares your life.

The destination for Elika also becomes known as she exclaims, "I've got to get to the temple." Your curiosity gets the best of you and you decide to follow. Along the journey you are confronted by one and then two armed guards and must defend yourself before making your way down a steep cliff and on to the temple, which is off in the distance.

Making your way into a chamber inside the temple, a glowing tree comes into view. As you approach, what seems to be the life force for the city, the glowing tree a bearded and burly man comes out of the shadows. It is revealed this is Elika's father, The Mourning King. A battle ensues and when The Mourning King is faced with defeat he swings his sword and chops down the glowing tree plunging the city into darkness. You must flee the temple as it comes crashing down around you.

As you escape from the temple ruins it is apparent that you will need to help Elika fight the corruption and heal the lands to bring the city back to life, out of the darkness and into the light. Let your journey begin...

I really liked this game. The controls were easy to use and the dialogue was quite witty at times. It's not your average shoot 'em up, blood and gore game so don't expect that. It is an adventure and you can expect to find yourself amazed by the graphics and the design of the different lands. I had a good time playing this game and found myself not wanting to put down the controls as it pulled me in right away. The only downfalls are that it does become a bit repetitive as you fight the same kind of characters over and over. It may lose its appeal to an older person, but it's a perfect game for kids. I think they will be intrigued by the graphics, story and ease of use. It is a definite purchase in my book especially if you have kids in their teens.
