Nuts cheers up Arsenal!

Life's never so bad if there's a clown around!

➔ WITH ARSENAL facing yet another trophyless season, they're having a hard time of it. But if one thing can cheer them up, it's surely a clown!

So, Nuts sent Berko, the office clown (don't all offices have one?), to the Emirates to do just that. And it worked! Even ex-Gunner Marc Overmars gave Berko the seal of approval: "You're spreading a little fun?" he said. "Well, they need it!"

Job done. Berko is available for kid's parties. You can pay him in booze.

● With thanks to Angel's Fancy Dress (fancydress.com) for outfitting Berko.

The PS4 is coming!

Sony finally kicks off the next gaming generation!

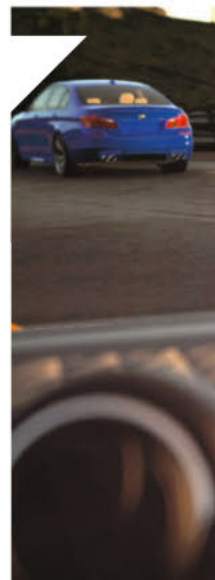

LAST WEEK, Sony announced that they'll be launching the next generation of gaming console, the PS4, in November. Alas, they didn't show us what it'll look like but they did tell us a bit about what it'll do on the inside, based largely around its new DualShock 4 controller. Here are the top notes...

The PS4 – tech facts!

You'll be able to use the PS Vita as a second screen. So if your missus decides Corrie is more important, you can stream your game to the Vita via Wi-Fi and carry on playing.

It'll have 1.84 Teraflops of processing power. Which in non-geek speak means gameplay will be even more awesome and will be continually saved, so you can rewind it and fire off clips to your mates to show off your skills.

As you'd imagine, it'll have a Blu-ray player and big hard drive to store downloads.

NEW PLAYSTATION EYE!

Twin cameras track the DualShock 4's movement and position for Wii-style control.

OUR USA DISMAY!

Nuts geek Rory went to New York but Sony couldn't show him the PS4!

HEADPHONE SOCKET!

A stereo headphone socket so you can be as loud as you like without annoying the missus!

The Games!

KILLZONE: SHADOW FALL

Gorgeous-looking future shooter. If all games look this good, we'll be very happy.

INFAMOUS: SECOND SON

Superpowered individuals take on a security state in a fast-paced action game!

DRIVE CLUB

Online team-based racing where you take on other clubs in 1,000+ player tournaments!

WATCH DOGS

Set in a networked city where your man can hack anything – phones, cashpoints, even cars!

The Console?

No photos of the new PS4 are available yet but we at Nuts were keen to give you an indication of what this futuristic gadget will look like. So, after much snooping, internet poking and mucking about with scissors and glue, we created this mock-up. Sony were unavailable for comment.

It's Lacey & Sabine!

And they're having a sexy girl holiday!

IT'S FREEZING in the UK, so who could blame

Lacey and Sabine for packing their bikinis and naffing off to sunnier climes? Here they are in Tenerife, doing traditional sunny things like oiling, showering and re-oiling. Thanks, cold snap!

The volcano hunters!

Icelanders dice with hot death. For giggles!

WHILE THE youth of Britain fill their free time planking, milking and Harlem Shaking, locals near the Eyjafjallajökull volcano in Iceland have a fun hobby that makes those kinds of shenanigans look embarrassingly pedestrian.

They jump in their 4x4s and take it in turns to drive as near as they dare to the lava flow of the active volcano. Some of them even get out to stroll right up to the 1,200°C flow of molten rock, before leaping back into their cars and negotiating the treacherous three-hour drive back home, over a glacier.

Still, at least it gets them out of the house!

"I knew I should have

Fashion Week lookalikes!

What these posh-clobbered clots resemble!

LAST WEEK was London Fashion Week, an event we love – not for the models but for the absurd outfits they get dolled up in. Highlights included facial horns, high-visibility vests and carrier bag headwear! Now we know nothing about fashion, but we do know how to do amusing lookalikes! Enjoy.

Will.i.am's bonkers car!

What he spends his Voice wages on!

➔ WHEN YOU'RE in of one of the most successful vaguely dodgy rap groups on Earth, you're going to drive something a bit more flash than a Hyundai. And the new ride belonging to Black Eyed Peas star Will.i.am is certainly that. The custom car set him back £590,000, and he now gets to park it alongside the £460,000 DeLorean that he already owns. It's actually a 1958 VW Beetle modified beyond recognition, and it's fair to say it's substantially cooler than any of its owner's music.

Herbie had been to the beauty salon

Fast food!

Seal pops out for a penguin!

THE BEACH of Cuverville Island, Antarctica, presumably sees this kind of primal struggle most days – leopard seal chases gentoo penguin, penguin buggers off as fast as its little feet can flippy-flap. It just happened that nature snapper Paul Souders was about to capture the moment, as the seal got within a whisker's-length. And the fate of this particular birdie? Let's just say it didn't end like Happy Feet and leave it at that.

WORDS: RORY BUCKERIDGE PHOTO: BARCROFT MEDIA

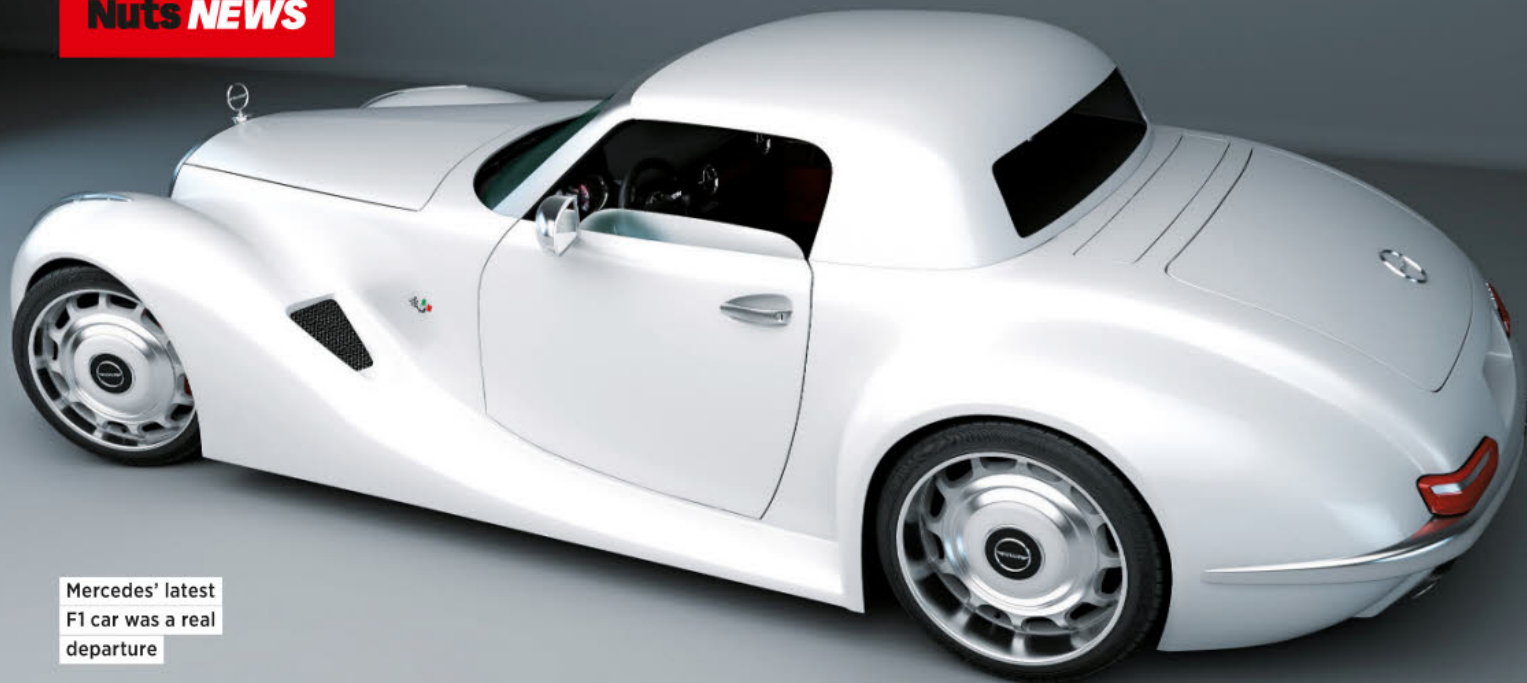

"Ooh, ooh, ooh!
Cold, cold, cold!"

Leopard seal facts!

- Only killer whales and large sharks predate this 3.5m, 600kg cold-water killer.
- Voracious hunters, they'll chow down on king, adelie, rockhopper, gentoo and emperor penguins, smaller seals like the crabeater seal, and fish.
- When hunting, they're helped by the penguins themselves, who often push the one nearest the water in first to, er, check if there are any seals in the water!
- It then kills them by grabbing their feet and smashing them against the surface of the water. Yup, that'll do it!

Mercedes' latest
F1 car was a real departure

Amazing one-off retro Merc!

Modern technology plus a cool '50s look equals guaranteed phwoar!

- As we're sure you're aware, Mercedes has an in-house department of horsepower junkies by the name of AMG. As we're also sure you're aware, Merc AMG makes a downright superb supercar called the SLS Roadster.
- The £177,000 SLS has the kind of handsome hardnut looks you'd associate with Jason Statham. The SLS is a modern take on the classic '50s Merc SL. It's a bit retro, but clearly not retro enough for some. Take a certain Eastern European customer of GWA (Gullwing America) who wanted to buy a new SLS Roadster and bin the bodysell. And wheels. It's

WORDS: JONNY SMITH

"Woo-hoo! Half-price car wash! Let's go!"

Crouchy took one look down and decided it wasn't for him a given that said Eastern European customer's rich, but they were also frustrated. Why? Because there were no 1955 Mercedes 300 SC W-188 series on sale last year. Well, they did make just 92 of them.

- The solution? Build a one-off modern interpretation that goes faster than the original. Keeping that sensationally snorty 6,208cc V8 from the SLS was a wise idea, as 563bhp is enough to make noise and get to 62mph in 3.8 secs. The seven-speed paddleshift dual-clutch gearbox is also ideal.

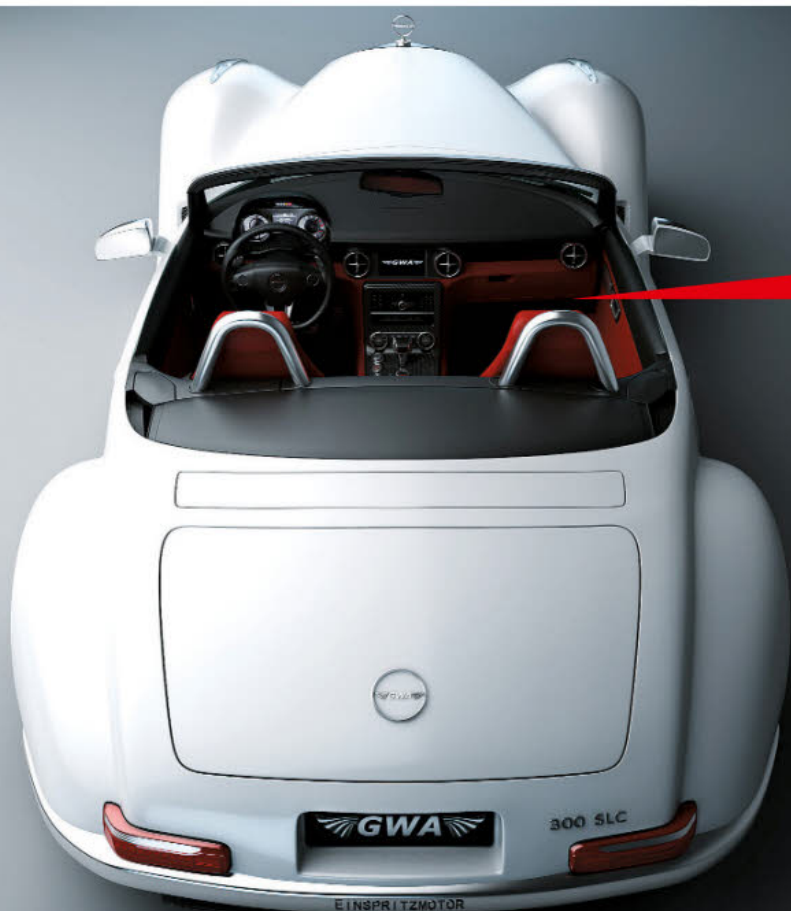

- GWA then borrowed a poster of a '55 Merc SC and proceeded to hand-beat an aluminium bodysheet (as per the original) to sit on the SLS Roadster chassis. Although it shares the tall radiator grille, it's heavily raked, with vertical teardrop LED headlights set into wings either side.

- The SLS electric adaptive rear spoiler has been reused higher up above the boot lid, not far from where the hard top fixes down. There are 21in front and 22in rear rims, and the cabin is unchanged from the showroom-fresh SLS. The other 21st century nods are adjustable suspension and a custom exhaust with quad exits.

- We like this thing. A lot. You sometimes have to applaud daft ideas – some folk will pay a lot to own a one-off.

'A sheet of glass almost severed my arm!'

Window pain! How a good deed very nearly cost a man a limb!

NUTS READER

Shane Monnox was helping to carry a window pane up some stairs when, disastrously, his foot slipped. He lost his grip on the sheet of glass and it came hurtling down, slicing through the skin and muscle of his left arm. The 25-year-old plumber from

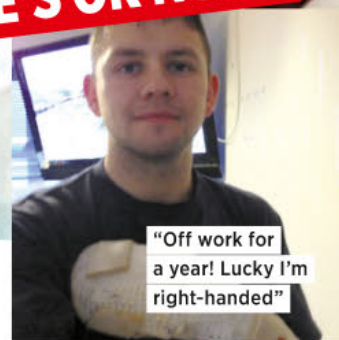

Devon says, "When I saw the damage, my first thought was, 'Oh sh*t!' I passed out almost immediately from shock and blood loss, and woke up the next day in hospital."

An ambulance whisked Shane away for a four-hour operation to repair severed arteries, tendons and nerves. "The doctors were debating whether it'd be possible to save my arm. Luckily, they did."

Amazingly, Shane should make a full recovery. He'll be off work for a year, though. "I'm on a lot of painkillers so the worst thing is the boredom. I watch loads of TV."

Huh? Lying zonked on a sofa watching Loose Women? What's not to like?

LETTER OF THE WEEK!

I'm attracted to my tutor!

I really fancy my course tutor at art college. I'm 19 and she's in her late 30s. She's attractive and flirty, and I feel that there's some sexual tension. Is this something I can act upon or will it go horribly wrong? It's driving me wild!

BARNEY Leeds

What you perceive as flirtatious gestures may not be. Her hand skimming your shoulder may not have been to get your special attention but to hand the coursework around the table. You can sleep with 30-year-olds when you're older. Make use of the fresh faces next to you.

Don't think about it too much. Great sex is about fluidity and that natural touch. If you warn someone of your actions, they have time to plan their response without naturally feeling the first-hand experience. Glide your way down her legs, take notice of her knees, her ankles, massage her heel and suck her toe. And if she doesn't like it, stop.

Is my cousin crush wrong?

My uncle recently remarried and his wife's daughter is my age. At the reception, things got frisky between us. I think we both want to take things further but my mates all think it's weird. What do you think?

STEVIE Great Yarmouth

It's a tricky situation. I believe as long as they don't have your blood, it's fine. However, judge how successful the outcome will be. Will it destroy any relationships within your family? And what happens if it doesn't work and you have to see her every Christmas?

- If you've got something to ask Danni, just email her at thelesbian@nutsmagazine.co.uk or write to her at the usual Nuts address on p66.

BILLIE FAIERS

“I have a girl crush on Taylor Swift – she looks amazing!”

Hello Billie! It's great to see you again. How are you? Hi! I'm great, thanks. We start filming soon, so I have that to look forward to. I've started going to the gym to get fit and healthy for the summer. Plus I've been going out a lot, as you probably know!

Ah, yes. There were a few snaps of you enjoying a rather boozy night out recently... recovered? Yes, thanks. The funny thing is that, although I was a bit tipsy, I only fell over once and my shoe came off. It wasn't like I fell over a million times! People kept trying to help me, but I couldn't get up as I only had one shoe on!

Do you ever get miffed that you can't go out for a few bevies without being papped?

I don't get annoyed, exactly. When snaps like that get printed, all my Twitter followers say things like, "Don't worry, we've all been there." That particular incident was more embarrassing than anything else. At least in the pictures I was smiling! Angry Billie would have been a lot less photogenic.

Do the paparazzi ever cross a line with you?

When I went to Vegas, they were really intrusive. They were taking pictures of me and my friends around the swimming pool and trying to get into our hotel rooms, which was out of order. They always want to get that one awful picture because they can sell them for more money.

Now that you're a big star, can you no longer just nip to Greggs for a pasty, for example?

Ha-ha! There are certain things that have changed, yes. I like to go shopping on my own, and sometimes people follow me around. I try to do all the same things I always did but, sometimes, I feel a bit vulnerable on my own. And ► if I go to a club, I constantly get hassled for pictures. One time, a girl just ran up to me and started pulling my hair for no apparent reason.

A blonde woman with blue eyes is posing on a light-colored tiled floor. She is wearing a black lace-trimmed bra and black underwear. She is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile. Her right hand is resting on her hip, and her left hand is near her head. The background is a plain wall.

“I watch

What do your fellow The Only Way Is Essex stars make of your Nuts shoots?

Debbie [Lydia Bright's mum] in particular is always really supportive. She's always telling me I look great. Most of us have done different modelling work, and people probably relate us TOWIE girls to that kind of thing now.

If you could do any fantasy shoot, what would it involve?

It would be high fashion, but really glamorous at the same time. Tasteful always wins, in my opinion.

Who do you have a girl crush on at the moment?

Taylor Swift. She's looking pretty amazing recently. Her image, her hair... she's really upped her game in just about every department. And then there's Kim Kardashian. She's got curves and everything is very well proportioned.

What can we expect from the new series of TOWIE?

Lots more drama, loads of parties, some fancy dress. Some new characters and maybe even some new relationships.

If ITV said that you needed to radically overhaul TOWIE to freshen it up, what sort of thing would you do?

I would definitely spice things up by getting rid of some of the cast and introducing some new ones to replace them. I'd have hair and make-up on set, as we don't have that at the moment. I'd also try to make the whole thing more structured and organised, so I wouldn't have to spend as long on set and have more time for other things!

What's the weirdest rumour you've heard about yourself?

That I'd had a secret boob job! When I was younger, I moved to Spain, and by the time ►

“Kirk’s a bit dirty and he loves talking about it!”

I came back, my boobs were much bigger. After that, people started saying that I hadn't gone to Spain at all but had a boob job.

How often do you polish your Nuts Sexiest TV Babe award?

Ha-ha! It's got pride of place on my kitchen windowsill! I'm not really a show-off, but I make sure that everyone who comes into my house sees that.

What's the last really awesome thing you saw on TV?

I'm a massive EastEnders fan. I watch it religiously. And I saw Piranha with Kelly Brook the other night. She's beautiful, but that's an awful film. Especially the part where the fish bites the man's willy off then spits it out. Horrendous!

Oh dear! Will you watch the new series of Geordie Shore?

I watch Geordie Shore all the time, and bits and pieces of The Valleys.

Of all the reality shows on TV, who has the sexiest girls?

TOWIE, of course!

We have shows about Geordies, the Welsh and the Chelsea poshos. Which other part of the UK deserves a show?

Liverpool deserves one. I know they did Desperate Scousewives, but that wasn't done very well. It was just weird. If they got the right people involved, it could be amazing.

When you're filming, who's the rudest out of all the TOWIE lot?

I'm not sure. Probably Kirk. He's a bit dirty, and he loves talking about it, too! Definitely one of the boys. It's hard to tell because in the new series we aren't allowed to swear, so no one really does it any more.

Do any of the cast ever play pranks on one another on set and during filming?

Yes, sometimes, when people get bored. The boys usually instigate things. They have short attention spans. I'm sure people just think we turn up, get filmed for a few minutes then go home. But the truth is that every episode requires up to 80 hours of filming. It’s no joke!

BILLIE FAIERS

People always think shows like TOWIE are a little bit staged.

Are any bits ever scripted?

Absolutely none! It’s reality drama. So what happens is, you get a call the night before saying something like, “We’re filming you and Sam tomorrow talking about your situation with Joey in the morning.” Then you go there and just see what happens.

TOWIE Live* came in for a fair bit of stick, didn’t it? Will there ever be another one?

That was a great experience, but I don’t think there will be another one because it didn’t really work out as well as people hoped. There is talk of doing a TOWIE movie in Dubai, but nothing has been confirmed yet.

Cool! What are your plans for the rest of 2013?

I’d like to try a bit of television presenting if the opportunity comes my way. Maybe I could get my own fashion slot somewhere. And I definitely want to open another shop.

Where do you go when you need to escape the trappings of the celebrity lifestyle?

Nowhere! I stay home and have some friends around. Since I’ve had my own home, I’ve become the hostess with the mostest. It’s quite hard to escape, otherwise. Tourists even come to Essex these days just because of the show. It’s crazy!

Thanks for the chinwag, Billie. Finally, do you ever think, “I’m going to do a really rude shoot one day”?

No, not really – I don’t feel the need. I’ve never done topless, and have no intention of going there. Sorry, fellas! ❌

● TOWIE is on ITV2, Sundays and Wednesdays at 10pm.

POINT MAN

THEY'RE THE MEN WHO LEAD OTHERS INTO BATTLE, FIGHTING IN THE CLOSEST POSSIBLE QUARTERS. HERE, NUTS SPEAKS TO FORMER POINT MAN KENNY MEIGHAN ABOUT THOSE WHO TAKE ON A DEADLY JOB LIKE NO OTHER...

KENNY MEIGHAN

ello Kenny. Can you tell us a bit about the job of a point man?

Hello. The point man's the guy who stays ahead of everyone else during a mission, so is the first person to have to respond to an ambush, to notice an IED [improvised explosive device] or to respond to any danger. When I first went to Helmand in 2007, there weren't quite as many IEDs as there are now, so I didn't bother with metal detectors. That would be an essential tool nowadays, but back then I'd be happy with my SA80 rifle. An ambush was something that happened on almost every mission and I found that to be the most effective way of dealing with the enemy.

What would a typical day be like?

It's not a nine-to-five job. Sometimes, you'd do two hours or so of patrolling. Other times, we were sent out for two days and didn't come back for three weeks. As the point man, you have to be incredibly aware of what's around you. I would be about ten yards ahead of the next man, who was usually my friend Sam Hix. He was my wingman and when we ambushed a shelter, he'd be on my shoulder.

How much did you rely on your gut feeling?

You develop a sixth sense after a while. By the end, I felt like a great white shark – able to sniff blood from five kilometres away. Sometimes there would be no sign of danger but I'd just have a hunch that a particular alleyway, for instance, wasn't safe to go down. It's all about watching people as well as bushes, trees and caves. If there were no children in an area, I'd be suspicious, as I'd consider that fair warning that contact with the enemy was about to happen.

What are the main misconceptions about facing an enemy such as the Taliban?

Technically, they don't have what British soldiers have, but in terms of bravery, they're very strong. They have the power to kill, so you have to respect them and it's important to remember that they too have wives and children who they want to go home to.

Do any operations stand out as being particularly tough?

The ones in which friends of mine died were obviously traumatic. I do remember being particularly terrified having a five-hour battle in a cornfield with Taliban, where the visibility was just zero, and I felt I could have been shot at close range at any second. It was an incredible day as it was real close-quarter fighting – I was prepared to use my bayonet, it was that close – but, despite the field being

Clues a point man looks for

"Dickers" are civilians used by the Taliban to act as spotters.

Kenny would report seeing people whisper into phones as the first sign of an attack.

Piles of rubbish would often be used to cover booby traps and loose soil could indicate a fresh bomb.

A lack of children or animals would often be a telltale sign of an imminent ambush.

Fresh human excrement would suggest that an enemy sniper had been positioned nearby.

full of the Taliban, we managed to either kill or flush them out without a single one of us getting seriously hurt or killed.

Some have labelled the role as the most dangerous in the armed forces. Do you agree?

Somebody said to me once, "You could get hit by a bus back at home," and he was right, but on the front line in Helmand Province, you wake up every day wondering if it's the last you're going to speak to your girlfriend or family, or if this is the last day you're going to be able to use your legs. That's the danger we faced and I think that's the difference people can't understand – I hope they never have to.

Were you aware of the Taliban's attempts to sabotage your job?

Our bases were being watched constantly by the Taliban. We'd often have to win hearts and minds of locals by fixing irrigation ditches and things like that. The Taliban didn't want us doing that as they knew we'd win the support of local villagers, so they would attempt to bomb any work we carried out. It never lets up in Helmand. The only time you have time off is when you're asleep.

British troops prepare to enter a compound in Helmand Province

How did undertaking a role such as this affect you when you returned to Britain?

When I left the Army, I went back to Colchester and got a job as a bus driver. I ended up in a rage so much of the time as I couldn't understand how people could whine and moan when they had a hot bath and a meal to go home to. So different from Helmand. I remember another bus driver moaning as he had to work ten minutes later than usual and I just let rip at him. It was moments like those that made me realise that I just wasn't coping with the reality of killing Taliban one month, and then going straight into taking fares on Civvy Street.

And you're using your experiences to raise awareness of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder?

Yes. My father was one of the first people to really push PTSD into the spotlight after his experiences in Northern Ireland as

“YOU WAKE UP EVERY SINGLE DAY WONDERING IF THIS IS THE LAST”

colleague take cover

a soldier. At that time, there was a huge denial on behalf of the government, as they knew that if they had to start treating soldiers with this illness, it was going to cost them millions. My father's still a fragile man and struggles with new people and in crowds. He went through a lot and I hope that a young soldier today would be better treated by the Army than he was.

Did it affect your relationships?

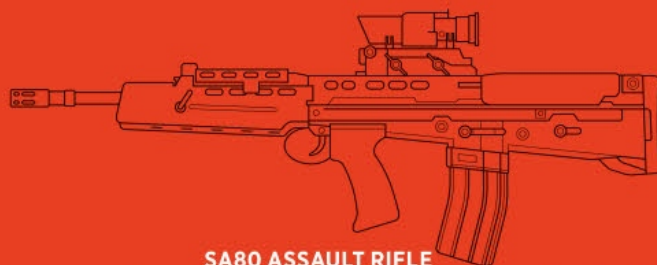

It just got to the point where I was resentful of how easy people had it. It wasn't their fault. I was the one being a d*ck. Every time I'd go to the pub, I'd end up having a drink and getting into an argument or a scrap. I just didn't understand what was happening to me.

What advice would you give to someone who maybe has a pal suffering PTSD?

The main advice I would give would be to get them to open up. There's no shame in PTSD at all. I've had some of the hardest men I've ever known fall to their knees crying in front of me once they're given the chance to talk about it. It's not something you should worry about unduly, but if you're at the point where you can't sleep, you're constantly stressed and you can't even cope with a quiet pint in the pub with your girlfriend then you really do need to talk to a friend and take it from there. X

Tools of the trade

SA80 ASSAULT RIFLE

"I've known some point men use a machine gun but, maybe because I'm of a smaller frame, I preferred a nimble rifle. It was easier to clear rooms with."

BAYONET

"It's a standard 6in British Army bayonet, used for close combat."

METAL DETECTOR

"During my tour, I never used one, but the increased use of IEDs has made this bit of kit essential for any point man."

5 HIGH EXPLOSIVE GRENADES

"It would vary how often I actually used them, but there would be months when I'd use all five on a daily basis."

2 PHOSPHOROUS GRENADES

"The Taliban use underground tunnels to get around. I'd chuck these to use the smoke to locate the tunnel's exit."

Surviving witch hell!

- Hansel says: "Me and my sister almost died at the hands of a witch. That made us stronger."

HOLLY PEERS

HOLLY PEERS

Hello Holly! What's new with you?
Hello! Well, I've recently been to Barbados. There was lots of drinking and karaoke going on.

Some people give things up at this time of year. Are you?

I'm trying to cut down my alcohol intake but I'd rather give up sex than booze!

Blimey! Do you ever get so used to having your boobs out that you sometimes do it in public?

Ha-ha! I've developed a habit of rearranging my boobs in public. I've been told it looks like I'm groping myself!

Which Nuts babe is most prone to a flash on a night out?

Probably Emma Glover. She just doesn't care. Mind you, she has great boobs so I don't think many people complain.

Who do you have a celebrity crush on at the moment?

Colton Haynes. He's the guy in Teen Wolf on MTV. I also have a lady crush on Jenna Dewan.

What's the funniest thing you've seen in the news of late?

I read about a soldier in America who'd been away for a year. When he got home, his wife had had a baby and she claimed to have got pregnant from watching a 3D porn film!

Er, OK! Would you be tempted to sample a horse burger?

No, I couldn't do that. I'd be thinking about War Horse the entire time, or a cute pony.

Which TV shows would you most like to be part of?

I'd like to go on Come Dine With Me, or I'd give Total Wipeout a go. We could have a booby babes edition!

Thanks, Holly. Finally, what's going to be the best thing about 2013?

Me and my friends are going to go on some really girly trips. I plan to make it a year to remember!

NUTS PROMOTION

Meet the winners of Britain's Biggest Bromance!

Would you ever tattoo the name of your mate on your body? One of these guys did!

Over the past few weeks, the Bromance competition has received loads of entries, but there could only be one winner. Congratulations to Lee Arnold and Neil Barnard on winning the title of Britain's Biggest Bromance!

Having met at the tender age of 11, their friendship has never slowed down, even though Lee was left on his lonesome while Neil served in Afghanistan, which was when Lee got Neil's name tattooed on him. Since Neil's return, the pair have been almost inseparable and now not only work together in the same role, but live together, pushing out Lee's girlfriend (who also has to share a house with the pair) as they regularly spend quality time reading Nuts together in bed.

So, having been named Britain's Biggest Bromance, will Neil return the favour and get Lee's name tattooed on him? Either way, look out for them – and maybe that tattoo – heading down to Brighton for their Bromantic Getaway very soon, courtesy of Nuts Great Escapes! Congratulations, Lee and Neil!

Ladies, got a saucy secret you can't keep to yourself? Send your sexy story to our Lou!

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

'It was a playful road trip'

MY OTHER half and I were out driving one weekend when, feeling a bit naughty, I put my feet up on the dashboard and started playing with myself. He almost crashed the car but managed to keep driving, the bulge in his lap growing. I shuffled down in my seat and wriggled his manhood out of his zip. I teased him with my mouth until he couldn't take any more. He raced us home and parked behind our garage, where he pulled my pants down and pulled me on top of him. We were surrounded by houses but didn't care who could see!

Laura Leeds

'I gave the boss a treat'

RECENTLY, I was working as a secretary and one day, my handsome boss collared me in my area of the office while we were alone. He asked me to get him a file which was behind me, so I turned around and slowly bent down to pick it up. I left my bum in the air for some time and added in a wiggle, just for good measure. When I turned around, I saw that something was happening in his trousers. Before I knew it, I was on my knees, taking him in my mouth. The hotness of the situation must have got to him as after a few minutes my mouth was filled with his creamy goodness. It was the sexiest work day ever!

Tilly Derby

'Bi girl invited me to hers'

I'M STILL quite friendly with my ex-boyfriend, so when he invited me out for his birthday, I agreed – even if it was also to meet up with his fab sister. His older sister has always been a crazy, sexy girl and during the meal, she confessed she was bisexual and told me all these exciting stories. When everyone started to leave, she invited me to go over to hers for a few late-night drinks. After quite a few glasses, I started asking questions about what it's like being with another woman. She started to tell me and I was instantly turned on. As she tried to carry on talking, I put my finger to her lips and said, "Don't tell me, show me," and kissed her. Within minutes, I was laid on her bed naked, with my legs spread, finding out!

Loren via email

'Our sparring turned sexy'

I'VE RECENTLY joined a boxing gym with a girlfriend of mine. After a week, she lost interest but I loved being surrounded by hot, sweaty guys – and one in particular. A few times, we glanced at each other and shared a few words, then one night, he asked me if I wanted to spar with him and I agreed. After 20 minutes, I was beat. He told me I needed a massage and opened the treatment room door. He instructed me to undress my top half and climb on the bed. He rubbed my shoulders and back before his hands slipped down my sides towards my boobs. I turned over and we were soon kissing each other all over. We were interrupted by an embarrassed young lad, so we raced back to mine to continue our "workout"!

10 RUDE QUESTIONS!

And a real girl to answer them!

Charlotte

21 Bedford

1 Where's the strangest place you've had sex?

"The strangest place I've had sex is in a stately home while it was open to the public. That was pretty rude!"

2 What's your trademark move in the bedroom?

"I have a few cheeky trademark moves in the bedroom but my favourite is a nice bit of dirty talk, whispered in the ear. That always seems to do the trick nicely!"

3 What really turns you on?

"I really love it when a guy takes control. I also like a guy with a cheeky smile and big muscles."

4 What's your favourite position?

"My favourite position is the cowgirl, as I think girls should take control every now and then."

5 Is it better to give or receive?

"I think it's always better to give! I love to please and make the person I'm with really want to remember me. But I also want to receive as good as I give, that's for sure."

6 What one thing would you really like to try but haven't yet?

"I'd really love to join the mile high club! I know not many people have done it and I love the fact that it's in a public place, so you could get caught at any time, which would just add to the thrill."

7 Ever got it on with another girl?

"I've got with many girls on a night out. I find it fun getting with friends on night out, as it always turns the guys on."

8 What's your role-playing costume of choice?

"My nurse outfit is my favourite for dressing up in. You can be naughty or nice. However, I prefer to be the naughtiest nurse around!"

9 Have you ever made a sex tape?

"Yes – and I must say that I really do come alive in front of a camera!"

10 What's the rudest thing you've done?

"When I was a fresher at university, I stripped and did a naked mile around campus. I got chased by security and everything!"

"I ran naked around campus!"

Wenger: Is it time for him to go?

Should Arsenal axe Arsene after another poor season?

➔ AFTER TWO harmful cup defeats, Arsene Wenger's under pressure. With Spurs up next, we asked two Arsenal legends whether he should be axed.

● Spurs vs Arsenal, Sky Sports 1/HD, Sunday 3 March, 4pm.

“YES!”

SAYS EX-GUNNERS MIDFIELDER STEWART ROBSON

HIS TACTICS ARE WRONG

"There's no game plan, and if you're a coach you need a game plan. I don't know what the tactics are. Some teams play with a high line, some don't. I don't think Arsenal have structure in training – they seem to play completely off-the-cuff."

DEFENSIVELY, HE'S NAIVE

"Wenger doesn't recognise defensive qualities. Look at André Santos. I saw him for Brazil at the Copa America and he was terrible – then two weeks later, Arsenal bought him! The problem's not so much team selection but team recruitment."

HE ALIENATES PLAYERS

"In recent years, he's bought players who play behind the main striker, but they end up in wide areas. Cazorla will be next. The players deserve better. There was a damning quote from Cesc Fabregas when he left: 'Now I'm at Barça, I'm learning the game tactically.'"

HE'S BECOME POWER MAD

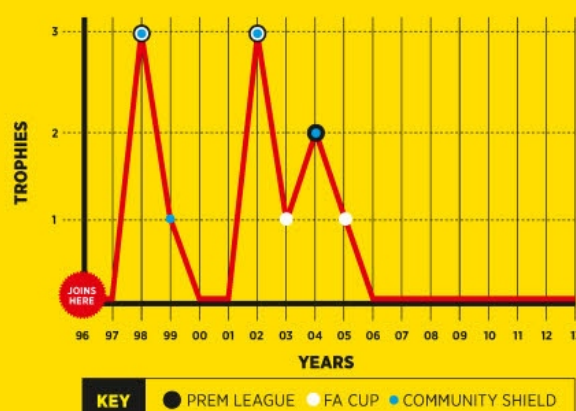

"Wenger's a dictator and he's very much part of the board. Look at him during a game and he's really petulant, trying to affect the decisions of the fourth official and the referee, but he doesn't instruct the players. He's like a fan watching the game. Powerless."

HE SHOULD GET HELP – OR GO!

"The best thing for Wenger would be to admit where he's going wrong and bring in a defensive coach. That won't happen. Sadly, then, he should be relieved of his duties. His supporters ask who could do a better job. Well, there are loads of people out there."

What went wrong?

How the trophies have dried up for the Gunners...

“NO!”

SAYS ARSENAL LEGEND
PAUL MERSON

HE'S CHANGED THE CLUB

“Arsene Wenger has changed Arsenal – and for the better. When he became manager, he took the players to another level with new diets and training routines. We were constantly challenged on the training ground – it was like being at a football university.”

HE ENCOURAGES GOOD FOOTBALL

“Everyone loves watching Arsenal. The only problem is that recently, they’re letting in as many as they’re scoring! Wenger’s approach has made playing entertaining football the goal of the best clubs. All he needs to do is tighten up the defence.”

ARSENAL ARE COMPETITIVE

“They may not have won a trophy for eight years, but in that time Arsenal have been a constant in the Champions League, and have regularly appeared in finals and semi-finals. Plus he’s overseen the building of the Emirates, a lucrative income stream.”

HIS LEGACY IS UNEQUALLED

“The know-how he’s given players proves his understanding of the game is second-to-none. From coaches like Dennis Bergkamp and David Platt to pundits like Lee Dixon and Martin Keown, his philosophy provides a thorough understanding of the game.”

HE JUST NEEDS A BIT OF HELP

“Wenger’s problem is that he’s got too much on his plate – being Arsenal manager is hard enough without trying to run the club. He needs a new chief executive to take care of all that – and sometimes to say no to him, especially on transfers.”

KAMMY!

He's the voice of the fans – and he's only in Nuts!

He always took his giant sun lamp with him when he went out

Mancini – is he that good?

The Man City manager's getting too big for his boots!

➔ I HAD to laugh last week when I heard Roberto Mancini describe himself as the best manager in England over the last 15 months. His Man City side aren't up to the standards of last season, and you measure real quality by how you perform the year after your initial success. Being in the FA Cup with little chance of retaining the league title isn't good enough.

Now, I'm not discounting what he's done with City – bringing the title to Eastlands was no mean feat. But he's been lucky with the club's owner, Sheikh Mansour. He's bankrolled Roberto's purchases and been very patient when they haven't performed.

Another question mark has been his handling of Carlos Tevez. City perform better when the Argentine plays, but Mancini never looks comfortable with him. With Mario Balotelli it was more difficult – they were obviously very close, but it looks to me that the decision to sell him was taken by someone above him.

There's no doubt Mancini has been good for the Premier League, not least thanks to his sartorial style! But will he be at City in ten years? No chance – the days of decade-long reigns at big clubs are coming to an end.

"He still hasn't noticed I've got my hand stuck in his shorts"

Just too close to call in the Championship!

I'VE SAID it before and I'll say it now – the Championship is one of the greatest leagues in the world! You just can't predict who's going to win it.

Even at this stage of the season, it's too early to say who's going to grab the title. Cardiff look the strongest team but you've also got Watford, Hull, Palace and Leicester all challenging. It's brilliant.

As the shocks in the FA Cup show, the gap between the top dogs in the Premier League and everyone else is the smallest it's ever been. This is the year of the underdog – and I absolutely love it!

KAMMY'S UNBELIEVABLE-OMETER™

UNBELIEVABLY GOOD!

YES TO TECH!

At last, Fifa have given the go ahead for goal-line technology. Not only will it help refs, but waiting for decisions will add some extra drama.

UNBELIEVABLY BAD!

N FOR NO!

Paul Elliott, who was awarded a CBE for combatting racism in football, has used the N-word in a spat with Richard Rufus. He should know better.

“Quote me on that!”

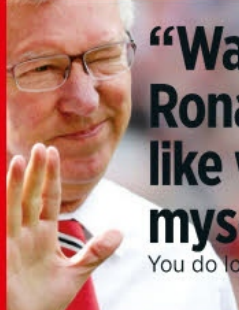

Nuts SPORT

“Daddy is smiling, always happy and cheerful”
Michael Essien on long-lost father Jose.

This week's biggest match debaters!

“Watching Ronaldo was like watching myself”
You do look alike, Sir Alex.

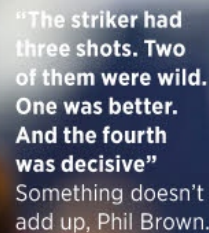

“If you've never had Miss World, you don't really know what you're missing”
Martin Allen sets his standards high.

“It's good to get the sack”
Brian McDermott likes a difficult life.

“The striker had three shots. Two of them were wild. One was better. And the fourth was decisive”
Something doesn't add up, Phil Brown.

“Gareth Bale literally gives James Perch a haircut”
Jamie Redknapp's literally making it up.

“Beckham smells like a lemon”
Clare Balding gets fruity.

“My girlfriend loves a handbrake turn”
Lewis Hamilton reveals Nicole's easily impressed.

The Special One's on his way home!

JOSE MOURINHO'S coming to the end of his time at Real Madrid, and it's looking likely that the Premier League will be his next destination.

Mourinho seems to stay at places for a couple of years before going on to his next adventure, so in the next few months we're likely to see him at Man City or Chelsea.

Some people think he could go to Man United, but Fergie's not ready to step down yet and I don't think Mourinho's the steady pair of hands that will attract them.

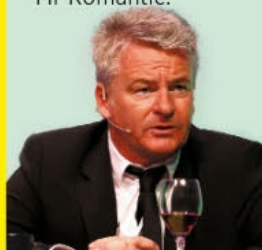

“Someone help – this damn scarf's strangling me!”

OO-ER SOUNDS A BIT RUDE CORNER!

“Walcott got in behind the defender and really hurt him”

Danny Mills watches Theo bang one in.

“Darren Fletcher is the type of player who comes and then squeezes you”
Charlie Nicholas on Man United's Mr Romantic.

“Mine was only a little one”

Sky Sports' Alan Smith doesn't measure up.

"Listen, I don't have a bag of chips on me!"

When mascots go mad!

They're furry and full of fury!

→ AT NUTS HQ this week, we were shocked to see harrowing images of Brighton mascot Gully the Seagull apparently stealth bumming midfielder Moreno David Lopez (see above). But Gully's not the only mascot to suddenly turn nasty, as these disturbing images show...

Rumours that the BBC's Africa had fake scenes were growing

SHARK VS TIGER!

Just to prove that rugby mascots can be every bit as punchy as their football counterparts, here's a Sale Shark and a Leicester Tiger having a dust-up. We'd actually like to see a shark fight a tiger in real life.

"It's no good, I'll have to have you neutered!"

BOBCAT VS BLOKE!

American football mascots really know how to ruck. Here's the Ohio Bobcats' Rufus the Bobcat (note to Ohio: he could do with a catcher name) laying into the Ohio Buckeyes' Brutus Buckeye. Ohio slugfest in the house!

"I knew I should have become a postman"

BARKING!

In case you're wondering, it's the big lion fella that's the mascot of Argentina's Estudiantes, not the stray dog attacking him. Although, if the dog kills him, we reckon they should just promote him to the role.

"When you said you took your teddy everywhere..."

BEAR-FACED CHEEK!

Clearly desperate to annoy Kanye West, this is Clutch, mascot of the Houston Rockets basketball team, making scurrilous claims about his relationship with Kim Kardashian. It would certainly make an interesting sex tape.

The new series of BGT had crossed the line

PUT IT AWAY!

PUT IT AWAY!

As liberated as the Dutch are, you won't be surprised to learn that this isn't actually a mascot, but a naked bloke who has nicked the AFC Ajax mascot's head. Focus on the face, focus on the face...

"Thanks, pal – that's got rid of the crick"

SWAN VS LION!

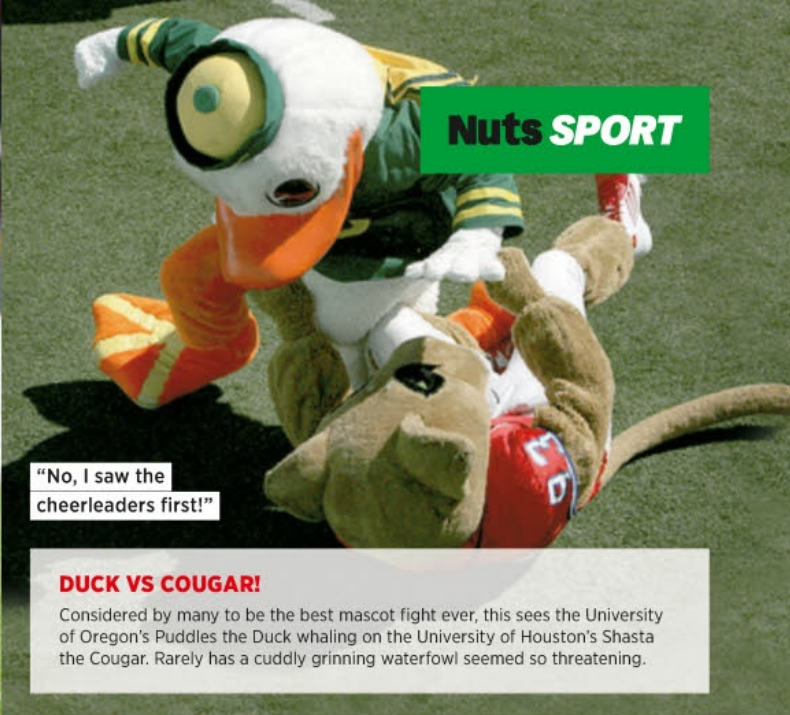

Sometimes, brilliantly, mascots take their team allegiances a tad seriously and come to actual blows, like when Swansea's Cyril the Swan met Millwall's Zampa the Lion. No, lads, of course you don't look absolutely ridiculous!

"Oi! Does this look like a china shop?"

BULL FIGHTER!

This is the kind of mascot we like! Toro the Bull, mascot of the Houston Texans American football team, brings down a pitch invader in true Eric Cantona style. We'd have preferred it if he'd gone in horns first, but this will do.

Nuts SPORT

"No, I saw the cheerleaders first!"

DUCK VS COUGAR!

Considered by many to be the best mascot fight ever, this sees the University of Oregon's Puddles the Duck whaling on the University of Houston's Shasta the Cougar. Rarely has a cuddly grinning waterfowl seemed so threatening.

Crufts wasn't going to plan

WHAT A LOAD OF POOP!

Here's Master Yogi Berra of the North Carolina minor league baseball team the Greensboro Grasshoppers adequately illustrating why most clubs prefer to employ human mascots, rather than dog ones.

"I just love
your new look,
Big Bird!"

IN YOUR FACE!

This is the Phillie Phanatic, the mascot of the Philadelphia Phillies baseball team. If this is how he generally goes about encouraging the team's players, it's a wonder they can get any to sign for them!

THE NUTS LIP READER!

The Latics youngster seems quite pleased to score.

Warnock: “It’s the

Mancini:

You good?”

MAN CITY VS LEEDS The Etihad, Sunday 17 February, 1.55pm
