Welcome to our Second Annual International Issue. This year's edition represents the diverse nationalities and ethnicities that make up the African Diaspora. Although every one of this issue's models is Black, they reflect the many countries and regions of the world where people of African descent can be found. The beautiful women that fill our ninth issue were either born or raised in different and unique countries including Guam, Somalia, Puerto Rico and Japan, many of them being mixed. Of course, I had to give you two Jamaican women as the gorgeous ladies from my country are my favorite.

The African Diaspora is the diaspora created by the movements and cultures of Africans and their descendants throughout the world, to places such as the Americas, (including the United States, Canada, the Caribbean, Central America and South America); Europe and Asia. Much of the African Diaspora is descended from people who were enslaved and shipped to the Americas during the Atlantic slave trade, with the largest population living in Brazil. With that being said, SHOW is going to have to head south and bring you and entire issue featuring Brazilian beauties to make up for not having one in this issue!

I love my Black people and I love our women especially. In addition to spreading African culture, music, food and traditions through out the world, we have also spread our natural beauty. Our women have the most sensuous curves, the fullest lips and of course the nicest derrieres. Thank God it's now fashionable to have the figure and features of Black women. In addition to non-Black women looking good, our Nubian queens are able to shine the way nature intended. SHOW intends to bring you beautiful women from the world over every issue. However, we are most proud to bring you an entire issue that celebrates the beauty that is Africa, namely its women.

Let the SHOW begin,

SHOW,

Okay, man! I wrote you about a year ago after your magazine first came out to tell you how beautiful the women in your magazine were. I've kept an eye out for it since then and have seen a few issues that I liked and some whose concept I wasn't feeling (although the women were still beautiful). But I have to write you again because I recently picked up your 2008 calendar (outstanding, by the way!) and the Latina Lover's Collectors Issue (great idea and also amazing) and when my boys saw them, among the comments heard were: "Is this a new magazine? Have I just not seen it before? You are going to tell me where I can find it?" (all one question from the same person), "Oh my God! Do you see the dumps on her!" (inspired by Temeca, Ms. July on calendar), "This magazine is the shit!", "Are you kidding me?" and "Look at that, man! Come on, that's unnecessary!"

Sean,

You've gone and done it this time. Just unwrapped my Latina Lovers edition of SHOW and it is simply the best edition EVER!!! Though I detect copious usage of the airbrush, the results speak for themselves. Alexis, Sandra, Christine, Delicia (volume of my voice going up with each name) and, Dawg, how could you do it to us?! Brenda?!!! Amazing!!!

I'm re-uping the membership right after I send this. Keep up the good work, Sir!

David

Yo,

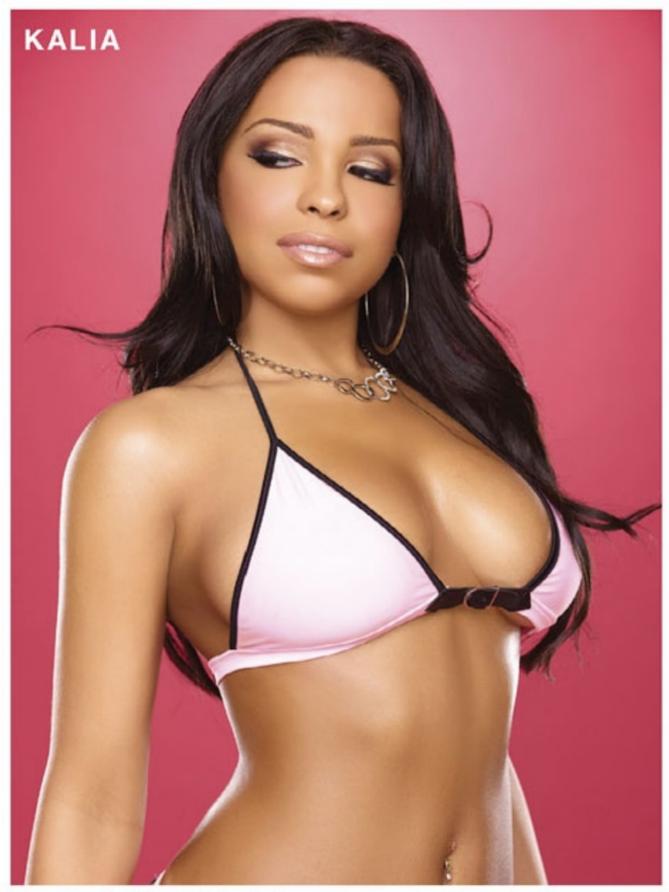

I gotta give it to ya... SHOW is the future! It has brought the Urban mag back up to the level where it use to be a few years back....

Lately all the other Urban mags has really let me down with the selection of models,, repetition of models (same ol' faces), saturation of misc. advertisements and their layout in the mag....And most of all,, the overall print quality... I was flip-pin' thru a mag the other day and noticed that the poor print quality actually took away from the model...

SHOW is definitely 100% in the game right now

BRENDA

really feeling Alexis!)

So it's safe to say you've got a few more fans now. And if you come to Atlanta, we'd love to work with you on video production, music and possibly sponsored drink promotions! It's all possible!

Holla at your boy and keep up the good work!

Sabe

Mr. Cummings,

My name is Brandon Goldstein. I am a Staff Sergeant in the United States Marine Corps. I am currently deployed in Iraq. I have been viewing your magazine for a minute now! It is a big morale booster for me and my Marines! I must say, your models that are in the issue of BLACK LINGERIE are some of the finest ladies I have ever seen!

I have a problem, though! Temeca, that is, the last featured model of this issue is extraordinarily beautiful! I have a bet with my Marines'. They say her backside is "fake"! They say, she has implants or her backside was airbrushed in her photos'. I say it is the real thing! I know you probably have a lot of guys trying to contact your models. I am no stalker! I am just trying to settle a bet! Temeca has an intriguing, mysterious, beautiful smile! Everything about her is intriguing. Could you settle the bet for me or have her e-mail me and settle the bet? Thank you for your time.

Editor's note: it is 100% all natural - REAL!!!

What's up SHOW! I'm finally here thanks to Pablo from CMG castings and Sean Cummings. I'm Adia, (pronounced "Ahd-ja") the middle child out of three. I was born in the Philippines; however I was raised in Zama, Japan. Even though I'm mixed with African-American and Filipina many have assumed different. I moved to Los Angeles, summer of 2004 to continue my education and to pursue a career in the entertainment industry. Being the Granddaughter of the once lead singer (Tony Williams) of the hit 1950's group The Platters and radio personality "Margie Spencer" its no wonder why I too would like to succeed in the field. It's in my blood.▶

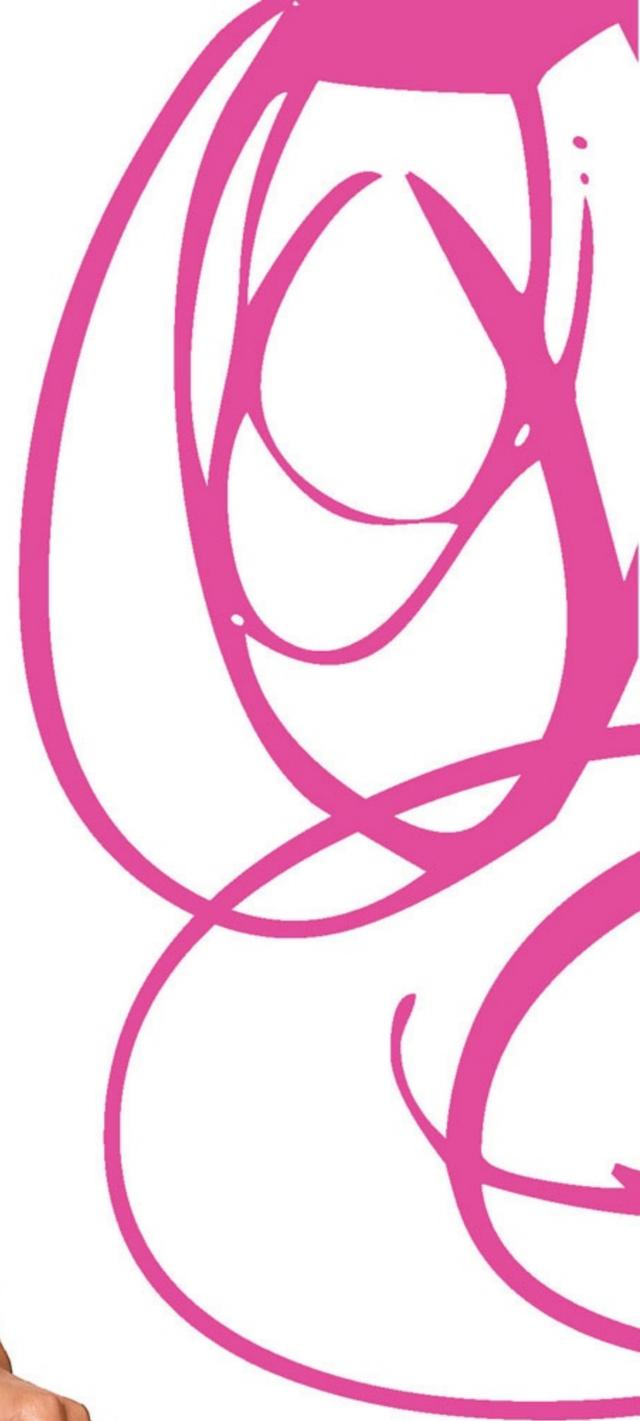

I'm homebody, very close to my family and I love my two dogs. Growing up, I was somewhat of a tomboy, playing basketball, and soccer every season was a must. In high school I did the morning and after school announcements and I enjoyed it and later took a class in video production. All the behind/in-front of the camera really interested me. Which I guess is where it all started. While stuffing a whopper in my face from Burger King a woman approached me and asked if I ever thought about modeling. I was like, "sure why not." She took a few snap shots with her digital camera next thing you know I'm booked to do a music video in Yokohama for a Japanese music artist at 16 years old. I loved it, working on set and portraying different characters was great! I told my Mom and Dad that I wanted to continue to work in the business and they support me to this day. ▶

When I graduated high school in 2003 I worked and waited for my sister to graduate a year later to re-locate to L.A. The following year a friend suggested that I go to the Busta Rhymes "touch it" audition I immediately thought, "no way, I'd never book it" due to the fact that I had no representation. She convinced me to attend anyway, and I landed it, which also was my first U.S. gig. I was excited and it was big to me because it I knew it was going to be played everywhere! After that I started to book more music videos, I was thankful and happy that I got my foot in the door, and have the opportunity to network.

Right now I am focusing on graduating with a Mass Communications degree, (emphasis in radio and television) taking dance and acting classes. With my degree I hope to fulfill my dream of having my own show. I still enjoy playing basketball and watching it (GO LAKERS!). Although I enjoy the L.A. nightlife, I'm not much of a "club-head" more like a dinner and some sort of activity after kind of girl (get your mind out the gutter). I mean bowling or pool, that sort of activity. I am some what of a computer geek, (LOL) my Myspace page shows it. Check it out, say hello... Myspace.com/Adia_K is the link. ■

My name is LaToiye. I am only 19 years of age as of now, but have come a long way already. I have a mixture of African American and Thai genes so I like fried rice with my fried chicken. Ha! Ha! I started modeling at the age of 17 and since then I have featured in some of the most exciting videos such as: Jagged Edge's "Good Luck Charm", Mobb Deep and 50 Cent's "Have a Party", T-Pain's "Im In Love With a Dancer", Cherish's "Do It To It", Jim Jones' "We Fly High (Remix)", and the latest, T-Pain's "Buy You a Drank". It has been so much fun living a grown and vivacious life with my man by my side to help me stay focused. That's right!!! Sorry, I am not single. Behind almost every human being's success there is another human being. It is always good to have someone to turn to. Plus, I am a Leo, so I think he may have made me purrrr the right way. Every girl likes to be petted sometimes. ▶

One of the most frequently asked questions I get is, "How did you get started?" Well, I started as a back up dancer. I met the CEO of the modeling agency Aaron's Entertainment and was told I should try modeling and it has been history ever since. Aside from my career in modeling, I am in the process of designing clothing for the company R2G (Road To Glory) so keep a look out for my designs.▶

SHOW | LaToiye

I have always been proud to have a mixture of Thai in my blood. Growing up, it was strict but that kept me in line. With Thai people it is always about respect and honor. Being the oldest out of six does not make it any easier. You always have to be on your best behavior because you have younger siblings looking up to you. I am just thankful that my mother's ways are some what American. Thai people believe in marrying off their daughters. So, being a female, we would not get to chose who we spend the rest of our life with. On the bright side, we learn how to cook at a young age. If you want some lop and sticky rice I got you. ■

My name is Sened and I was born and raised in the Bay Area. I'm 100% Eritrean and I currently reside in L.A. I am twenty-years old and a second year student at Cal State University Northridge. I plan on graduating with a bachelor's degree in Communications then continuing on and getting my Masters degree.

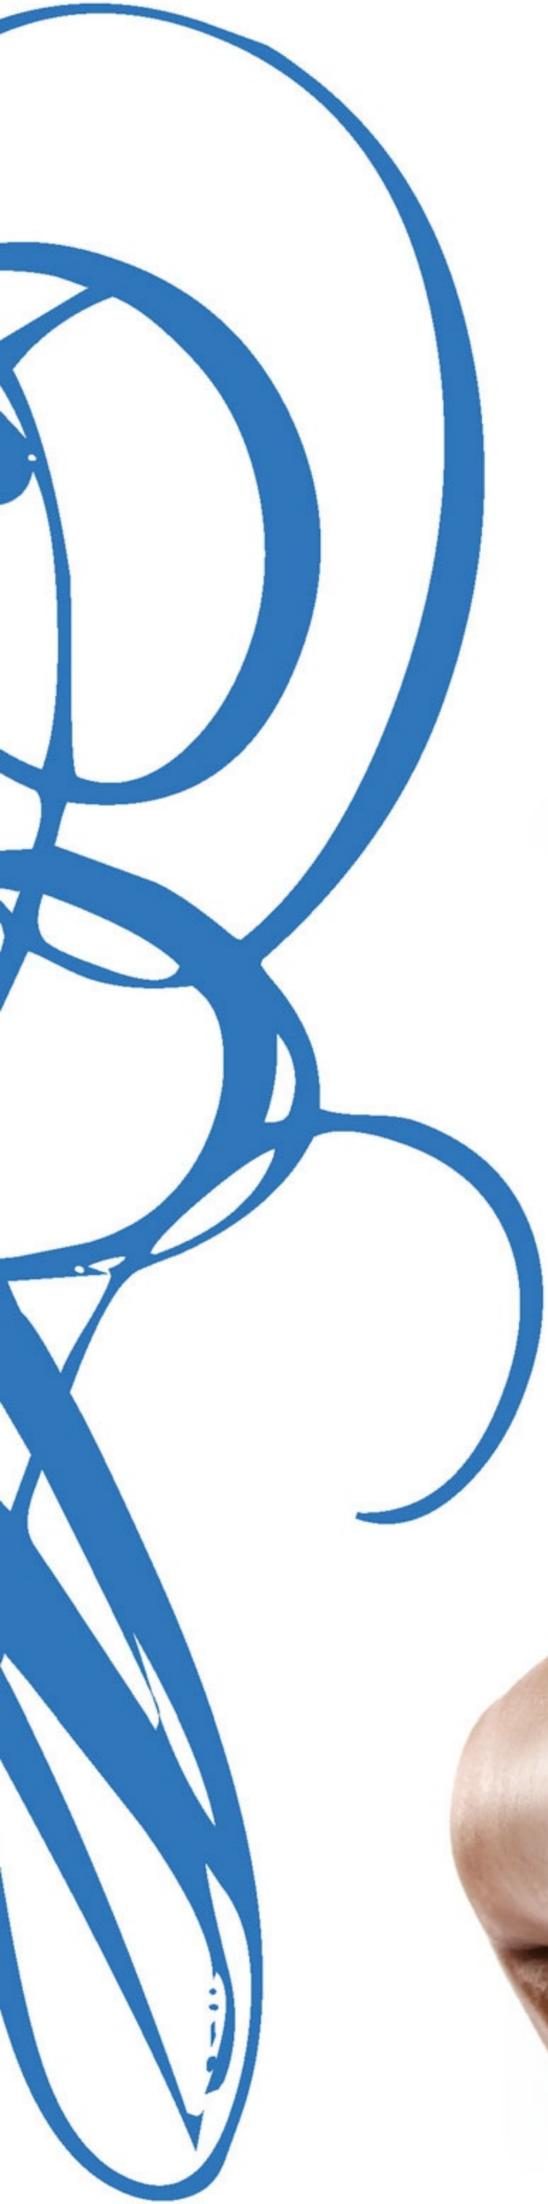

I'm a down to earth, personable, humble girl who's extremely close to my family. I love meeting new people and learning about other indigenous cultures which is why traveling is one of my major ambitions. I'm an Aquarius who does not dwell on the past. I live for the moment and make the most of today.

My ultimate goal in life is to be happy, money means nothing if you don't have a piece of mind I would also like to go to Africa and help fight the war on poverty. I believe poverty should not exist in this world since there are lots of resources 2 eliminate this massive problem I have been blessed with so much in my life I would like to help those who are less fortunate.▶

My favorite quote is "You are born God's original. Try not to become someone else's copy" which is self explanatory

My parents were born and raised in Eritrea. They escaped Africa as refugees from the war and fled to the United States. Eritrea is a small country located in Northern east Africa. It's bordered by Sudan in the west, Ethiopia in the south, and Djibouti in the southeast. Eritrea gained its independence from Ethiopia following a 30-year war that lasted from 1961 to 1991. Eritrea is a multilingual and multicultural country with two dominant religions Sunni Islam and Oriental Orthodox Christianity and nine ethnic groups. The country has no official language, but it has three working languages: Tigrinya, Arabic and English. ▶

With my parents being from Eritrea, I finally got the opportunity to visit last summer. I did not know what to expect. I heard so many stories from my parents and other family members but I had no idea what was in store for me. When I got there we went to my Grandmother's house in Asmara where my family and I stayed for most of our trip. We met so much family, it was unbelievable. We also went on a two week tour across the country and saw the most beautiful places on earth. We also got a chance to go to the Red Sea which was one of the highlights of the trip. The people were so beautiful and so welcoming it was amazing. I also got to eat some of my favorite Eritrean food as often as I wanted. I would never trade that experience for anything in the world, and I plan on going back as often as I can. ■

A star was born in the land of the sun in the summer of 87. Since my birth I've been quite a rolling stone. I've lived in places from Canada to California and went from Brooklyn to Beverly Hills. I am a down to earth girl who has been through it all. I appreciate everything I have today because not too long ago I was living in a basement in Brooklyn. My vast range of lifestyles really makes me appreciate the wonderful opportunities I have now. I'm a college girl and closet nerd. School has always been my main focus but I can't help that I look cute in a bikini, right? I have worked hard for everything I have, from my full tuition leadership scholarship to the gas that's▶ in my hooptie. I am working towards going to law school and I want to do sports contracts. I am probably one of the biggest football fans you'll ever meet! Go Saints! (Sorry I had to slip that in there). Another reason I love sports is because of the way they give back to the community. I take pride in trying to do the same. I've volunteered at homeless shelters and food pantries to help feed the struggling members of our community. I've also raised funds for breast cancer, a disease that has affected members of my family. In my eyes giving back to your community is not a choice it is a necessity! I want to do great things in the future and I hope you will all be there to support your favorite crazy Jamaican nerd! ▶

“It's only human to want to be extraordinary.”

My grandfather used to say that to me. He was the minister of a church back in Jamaica and he meant the world to me. I use those words for inspiration every chance I get.”

I am an Island girl and I have to say nothing beats Jamaica! Both my parents were born there and so was I. My family owns a large farm back in Jamaica so I am a bit of a country girl. I grew up with the goats chasing the chickens and the dogs outside fighting for scraps. One thing I love about Jamaica is its purity. Everything is natural. You can leave the artificial crap at customs because it's not welcome in my homeland. The food is out of this world! The juices are made from freshly picked fruit and when we make fried chicken lets just say the chicken was "freshly picked" too! The weather isn't the only thing that's hot in Jamaica. The spices will blow you away. When you visit Port Royal there is a great restaurant by the water that serves the spiciest fish you could ever dream of! As soon as you step foot in Jamaica you automatically feel relaxed. There is just something in that cool Caribbean air that would make anyone feel at home. ■

My name is Eleese Donavon, and I'm 20 years old. I am originally from Kingston, Jamaica. I now reside in beautiful Miami, Florida. I'm 5'5, 34-24-38, my zodiac sign is a Taurus, and most people say my eyes are my best features. I have been modeling for the last 3 months, which I decided to get involved with because, it was something that always interested me, I feel as if I can be someone else, and be carefree, especially because i'm usually a very shy person, and i'm overcoming my shyness more and more each day. I haven't did much yet in modeling, but hopefully that will change soon. I've always been a creative person, that's why I decided to ► attend college, to study Fashion Merchandising and Design; hoping one day to pursue a career as a stylist, fashion designer, and a makeup artist. My favorite quote is "Don't dream it, be it". In this industry I meet a lot of people who have all these great goals, and ambitions; but don't even try to accomplish them, because they don't believe it can be done, they only talk about it. I'm currently single. What I look for in a man is someone who is intelligent, I love learning new things. Someone who has goals in life. Honest, which is very important to me; especially after dating a terrible man named Monte, who decided he wanted to live a double life for almost two years. Well this I can definitely tell you isn't the last you'll see of me, so look out for me. ■

Discovered at age 19 in the local mall, it did not take Michelle Bernard long to work her way to the top of the modeling world. Born in San Juan, Puerto Rico as Alice Michelle Bernard Cruz, Michelle came to settle in Miami, FL when she was four years old. Life was not always so glamorous for the Latin beauty; her parents were divorced not long after they arrived in America. Michelle was raised from then on by a single mother, who taught her all she needed to know about resilience: "My mother was left to care for two children on her own. I learned that women were just as strong as men, if not stronger."

That kind of resilience has served her well all of her life. Childhood dancing accolades lead to admission at the prestigious New World School of the Performing Arts. While she continued to excel at dance (ballet, jazz, tap, and modern dance), she was able to stay focused and graduate in the top 10% of her class, earning her a full academic scholarship to Florida International University. Michelle continued her success, graduating Magna Cum Laude with a Bachelors degree in Psychology, including honors from several honors societies. Even though she came from fairly innocuous beginnings, winning a local mall modeling contest at the age of 19, Michelle has since risen to the top echelons of the modeling world.▶

Soon after her debut, Michelle signed with Ford Modeling Agency and has since worked for the top fashion and commercial institutions all over the world. This includes but is certainly not limited to: Armani, Tommy Hilfiger, Phat Farm, Baby Phat, Enyce, Target, Macy's, Glamour, Glamour en Español, Cosmopolitan, Seventeen, Vibe and Maxim en Español. This young girl's star is rising and there is no end in sight. Now as a professional model and international star, this Puerto Rican-born beauty has her eyes towards writing, TV hosting, and clothing design. Michelle B. is ready to take this world by storm. Even considering all of these possibilities, Michelle won't be satisfied with her accomplishments until she sets up a foundation for underprivileged children. "No child's dream should go unrealized because of a lack of resources," says Ms. Bernard. "I want to create a safe and productive environment to help ensure a solid future for these children." After already seeing so many of her dreams come true, all Michelle can do is credit her family for getting her to where she is: "I thank my mom for all the values she instilled in me. I am the woman I am today because of it."

I've been using this quote since high school. It's a line in a poem by one of my favorite writers from the Harlem Renaissance; Langston Hughes. It basically means to never let a dream go. Sometimes pursuing a dream is more fulfilling than actualizing it. ▶

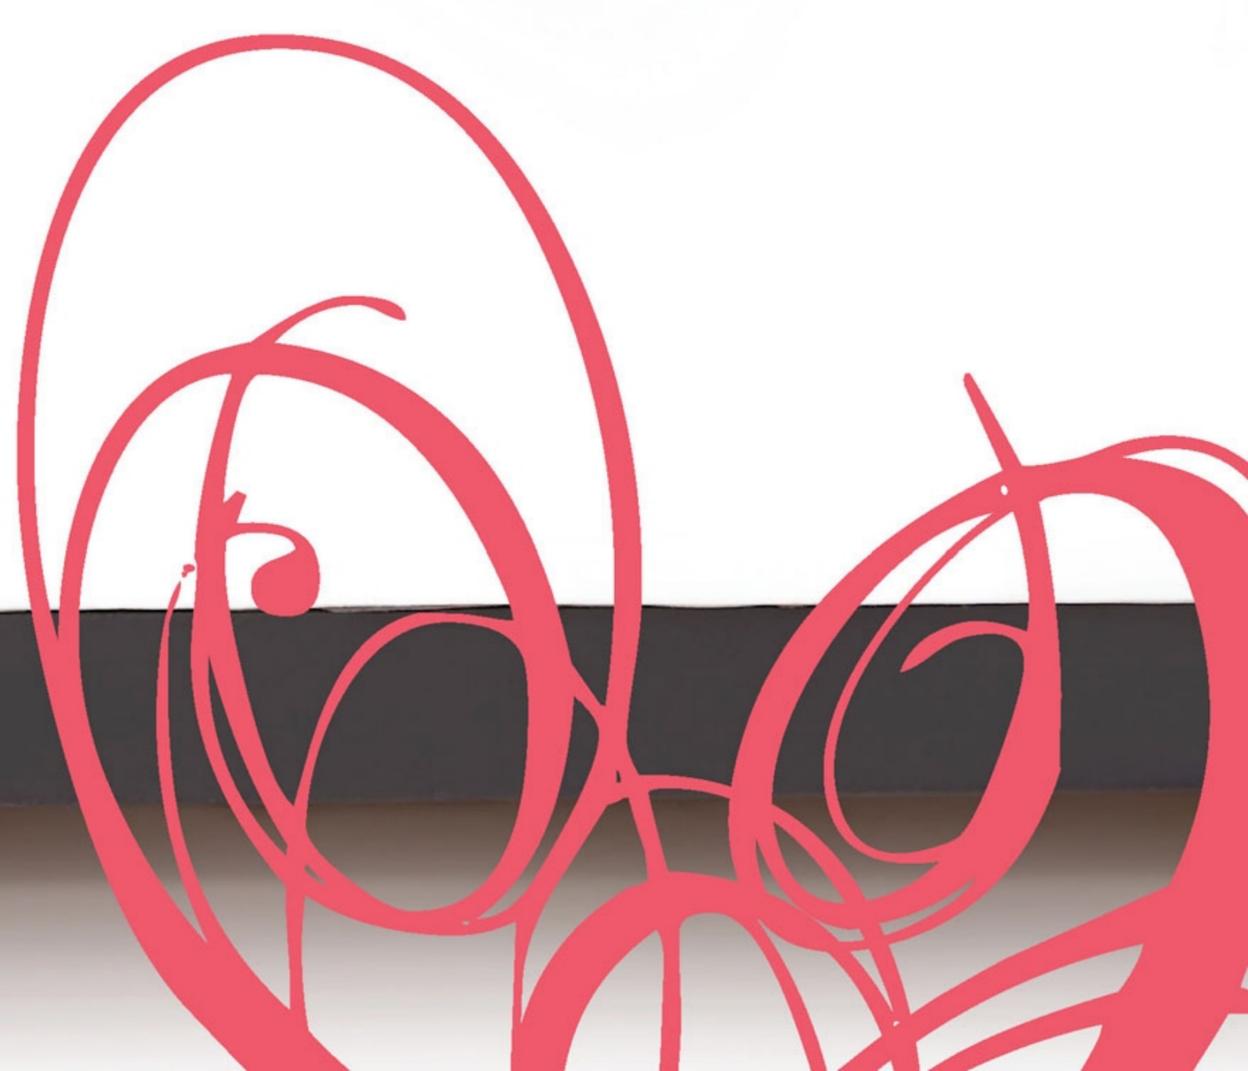

I am originally from Puerto Rico. I was born in San Juan and lived in Bayamon until my family and I moved to the states. The bulk of my family still lives in PR. I enjoy going back to visit, although I don't have the time to go back as often as I'd like.

I love the food, the weather, the music and the colors. I love the feel of Puerto Rico. I love my people, I love my little island. The food is very typical of any Latin Caribbean island; rice and beans, maduros (sweet plantains), alcapurias (our version of fritters made with either meat or crab). There is nothing like homed cooked Puerto Rican food! Living in NY now definitely makes me miss the tropical weather. I miss how the sun just kind of kisses your skin. The music of course varies with taste and preference but you'll here a lot of salsa, balladas and Reggaeton. Puerto Ricans helped pioneer and mainstream Reggaeton. It's been around for as long as I can remember but just now getting recognized in the US. ▶

A full-page photograph of Michelle Bernard lying on her back on a white surface. She is wearing a white bikini with a large, sequined graphic on the top piece. She has long, dark hair and is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile. The background is plain white.

Puerto Ricans are typically mixed with the three types of people who makeup our ancestry, that is: Spaniard, African, and Taino Indian. So its funny to me when people, out of ignorance, tell me I "don't look Puerto Rican". Because of our ancestry, we come in all different shades, eye colors, and hair textures same as any other Caribbean island. Everyone in my family is Puerto Rican so we are all very mixed. Except for my grandfather (my father's father), he was French (Hence, my last name Bernard) and was the only pure Caucasian in my family. But of course he couldn't resist the beauty of the Puerto Rican woman and married one (haha)... ■

SHOW | Fanaye

Hey everybody, my name is Fanaye and I'm originally born and raised in Oakland, CA (aka Yay Area) but I currently reside in Los Angeles where I work behind the scenes in television. If you caught the last issue I was in, some of you already know that both my parents are Ethiopian. I left a few things out the last time that I feel is very important to mention about my culture. ▶

“I don’t necessarily have a famous quote that really sticks to me but I tell people when you deal with me ‘I give respect to everybody, you gotta fuck up with me to earn disrespect’”

Besides the corrupt government and poverty issues, Ethiopians are proud people that have deep respect for their history and its rich culture. A lot of people don't know that Ethiopians are speculated to be the original Jews. And a lot of people are disappointed to find out we all don't look like anything that's on the Discovery Channel. I'm very proud of my culture and the traditional values my parents instilled in me because when it comes down to it, it all has to do with respect. For example, Ethiopians never turn away people from their homes. They're very hospitable people. Always offering whatever they have to make that guest, even a complete stranger, and a welcomed guest. Between my brother and I, we always had the house full of our friends. It was basically the hangout spot cause my mom will always cook and friends were always welcomed to stay the night. Another cool thing to mention is that we eat the traditional food with our hands. And often with love ones we feed each other. The moral behind that is, you can never have "beef" with a person that feeds you or puts food in your mouth (literally). Its a beautiful culture that can't be explained in a mere 200 words bio but hopefully I gave you guys a good running start to want to learn more. ■

I was born in St. Louis, Missouri as the youngest of three children in the Woods' family. My parents introduced me to the performing arts at the early age of three when I began dance and gymnastics classes. My father worked at the Chrysler factory in Fenton. The closing of the plant moved our family to Delaware when I was eight years old.

In Delaware the dance recitals and cheerleading competitions continued, and at age 16, I started modeling, often traveling to Philadelphia, New York City, and Baltimore. In high school, I excelled in the sciences and made Varsity track, cheerleading, and cross-country all four years. As a captain in all three of these sports, I learned leadership and my coaches would often describe me as "someone who leads by example." ▶

After high school, I matriculated to Princeton University, where I majored in Psychology and earned certificates in Theatre and Neuroscience. Freshman year was a time for new adventures: I joined the crew team as coxswain, competed in ballroom dance, and discovered acting. My passion for acting blossomed during my time at Princeton as I had the opportunity to perform in student theatre productions and numerous student films. When I was not in class or filming, I was belly dancing in the university's troupe, Raks Odalisque. The summer following my junior year, I interned in Los Angeles at a couple of production companies on the Warner Bros. lot. After that summer, I knew I wanted to move out to LA after graduation to pursue a career in the dramatic arts.▶

 SHOW | Kimberly Woods

I currently reside in Los Angeles and am a member of the Screen Actors Guild. I've hosted a pilot for a TV show in Miami called South Beach Style and modeled for American Eagle and Nike. Coming up in 2008, you can see me briefly as Laurie in the feature film Spring Breakdown. Right now I'm working on a couple of projects that I can't talk about because they are in early stages of development. Stay on the look out for me because I'm not leaving this industry anytime soon.

You may be surprised that I hail from the heartland of America, the "Show Me" State of Missouri. People are generally puzzled when it comes to my ethnicity and guess I am something more exotic. I am half African-American, a quarter Mexican and Spanish and a quarter Irish. I get my African-American half from my father; my mother is Irish and Spanish/Mexican. Both parents were born in the United States. Growing up in America one cannot escape the issue of race. In America, people want to put you into one box, one category, but I don't fit into just one. I am a combination. When I was young I often fell asleep to my mother singing me Irish lullabies at night.▶

Diversity in culture brings with it diversity in food, which is a beautiful thing for a food-lover like me. I would find on my table an array of dishes from collard greens and pigs' feet to corned beef and cabbage to sopapillas to good old-fashioned American burgers.

I only know a little of my family history, but I have heard stories about my great-great grandmother hiding under the floorboards when the Mexican revolutionist Poncho Villa was attacking her city in Mexico. She later escaped to the United States. My dad often tells me about being raised by his grandparents, who were cotton sharecroppers on a farm in Tennessee. ■

“Henry David Thoreau said, ‘If you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost. Now put foundations under them.’ To me this means believing in your dreams enough to pursue them adamantly. You set your sights high and you go after the dream whole-heartedly, no matter what. With confidence, perseverance, and diligence you can lay down those foundations, and that’s what I’m working on right now in my life.”

Wouldn't you like to know about "The Martos." I was born in San Diego. My mom was a sweet Chamorro-Japanese woman. She was one of eighteen children, very typical in Micronesia. My father was an African American-apache indian dreamboat. He was a marine stationed on Guam. I guess the moon was looking pretty big that night..... and damn did they make a pretty baby! I grew up with my mother, so I guess I never connected to my black side until I was in my teens. My ass grew up on rice! I swear I learned to make it when I was five. I guess you could say, my moms house, to this day is the one on the street with all the shoes outside of it! When I was sixteen I moved in with my dad. I experienced greens for the first time.... EVERYBODY remembers their first time. I grew up. I did some college and started modeling full time at eighteen years old. My modeling has ► taken me all over the United States, Europe and South Africa. I've done runway from Tommy Hilfiger to J Lo, LA to Miami. I've done videos such as Pretty Ricky's grind with me and Omarion's touch video. Last year I shot the Enyce campaign. I sang in a girl group. I have a few commercials under my belt. I am a member of the Screen Actors Guild. If you pay close attention, you may even see me in a couple of scenes in last season's Entourage. Currently I reside in Miami. I have the best friends anyone could ask for. I love to laugh. I laugh like Rick James. I love my life. ■

Sharyn

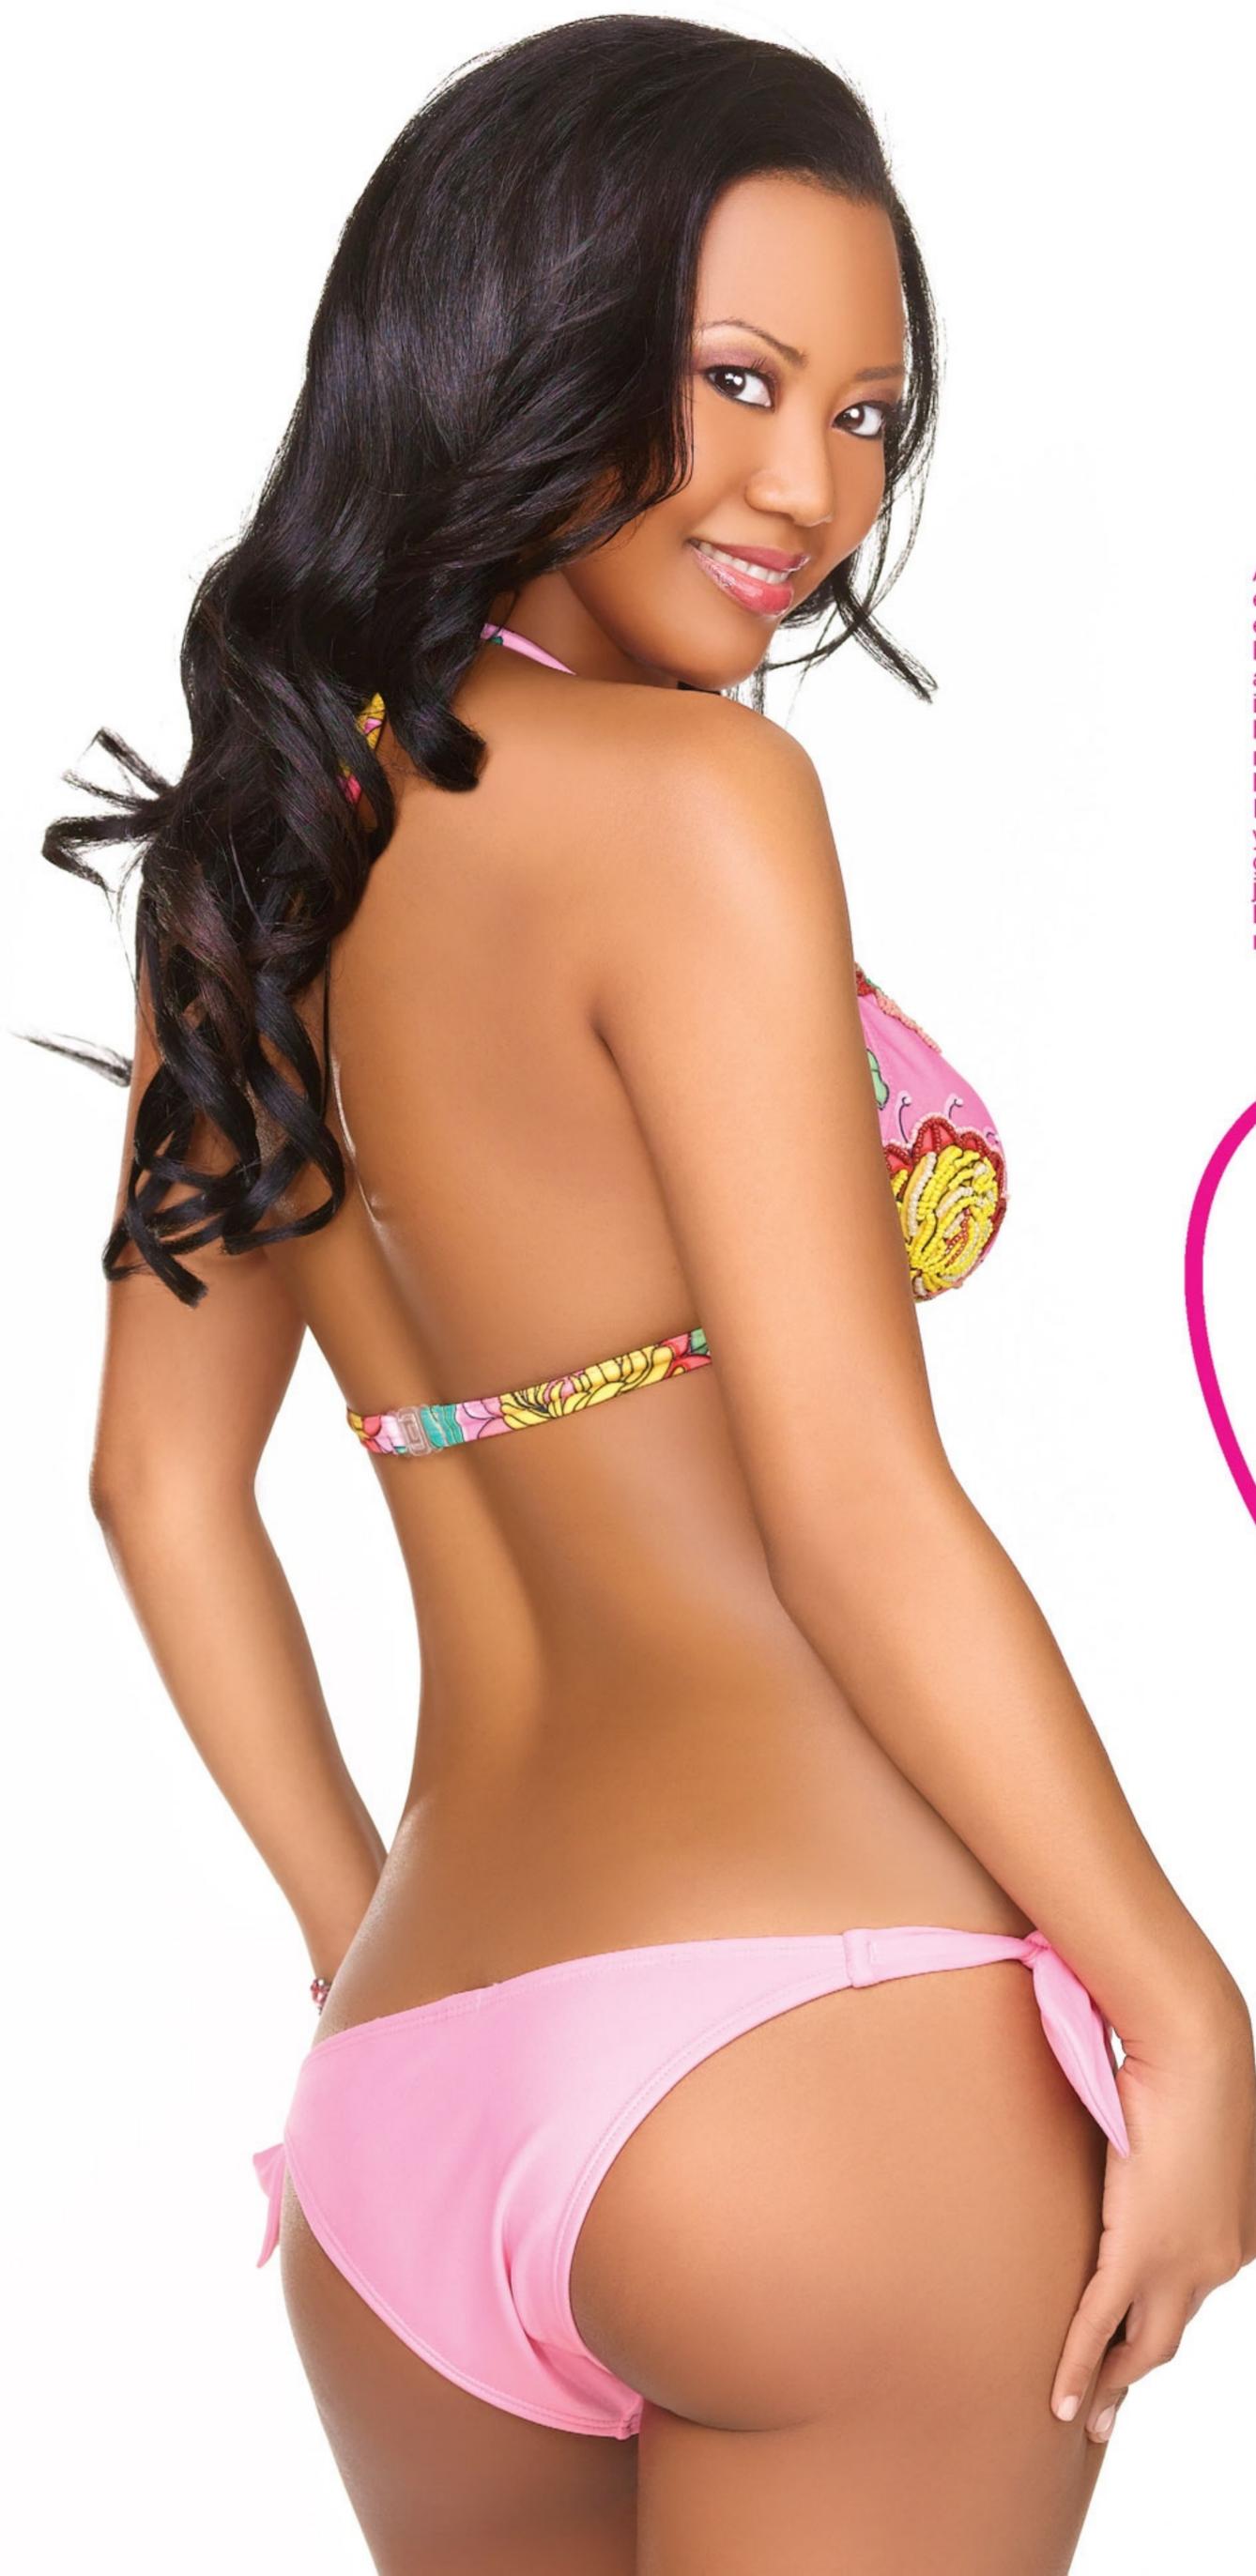

I was born as an only child to a Korean mother and African American Father in Seoul, Korea. After traveling for a few years my mother, her family and I settled in section of Los Angeles called Koreatown. Learning English as a second language usually shocks a lot of people, but that is one of the many unique things about me. During my teen years I moved with my father side of the family. Everybody agreed that this would be in my best interest to get to know both sides of my nationality. I love the fact that both cultures are completely different from one another. I am so honored and proud to a part of both. I think that is one of the main reasons why I am so proud to be who I am. I can truly say I have the best of both worlds!!! ▶

As a child I knew I wanted to be in the entertainment industry even if my parents were against it at the time. I also knew I had an intense interest in fashion also, lucky for me the two can go hand in hand. I decided to go to school for both and ultimately chose one. At the moment, I'm enjoying doing print work, but my ultimate goal is to be on a Soap. I've only been doing this the last few years so I'd like to see where all this is going to take me. In the meantime, I'm just grateful for all the blessings that have come my way hopefully there are many to follow...▶

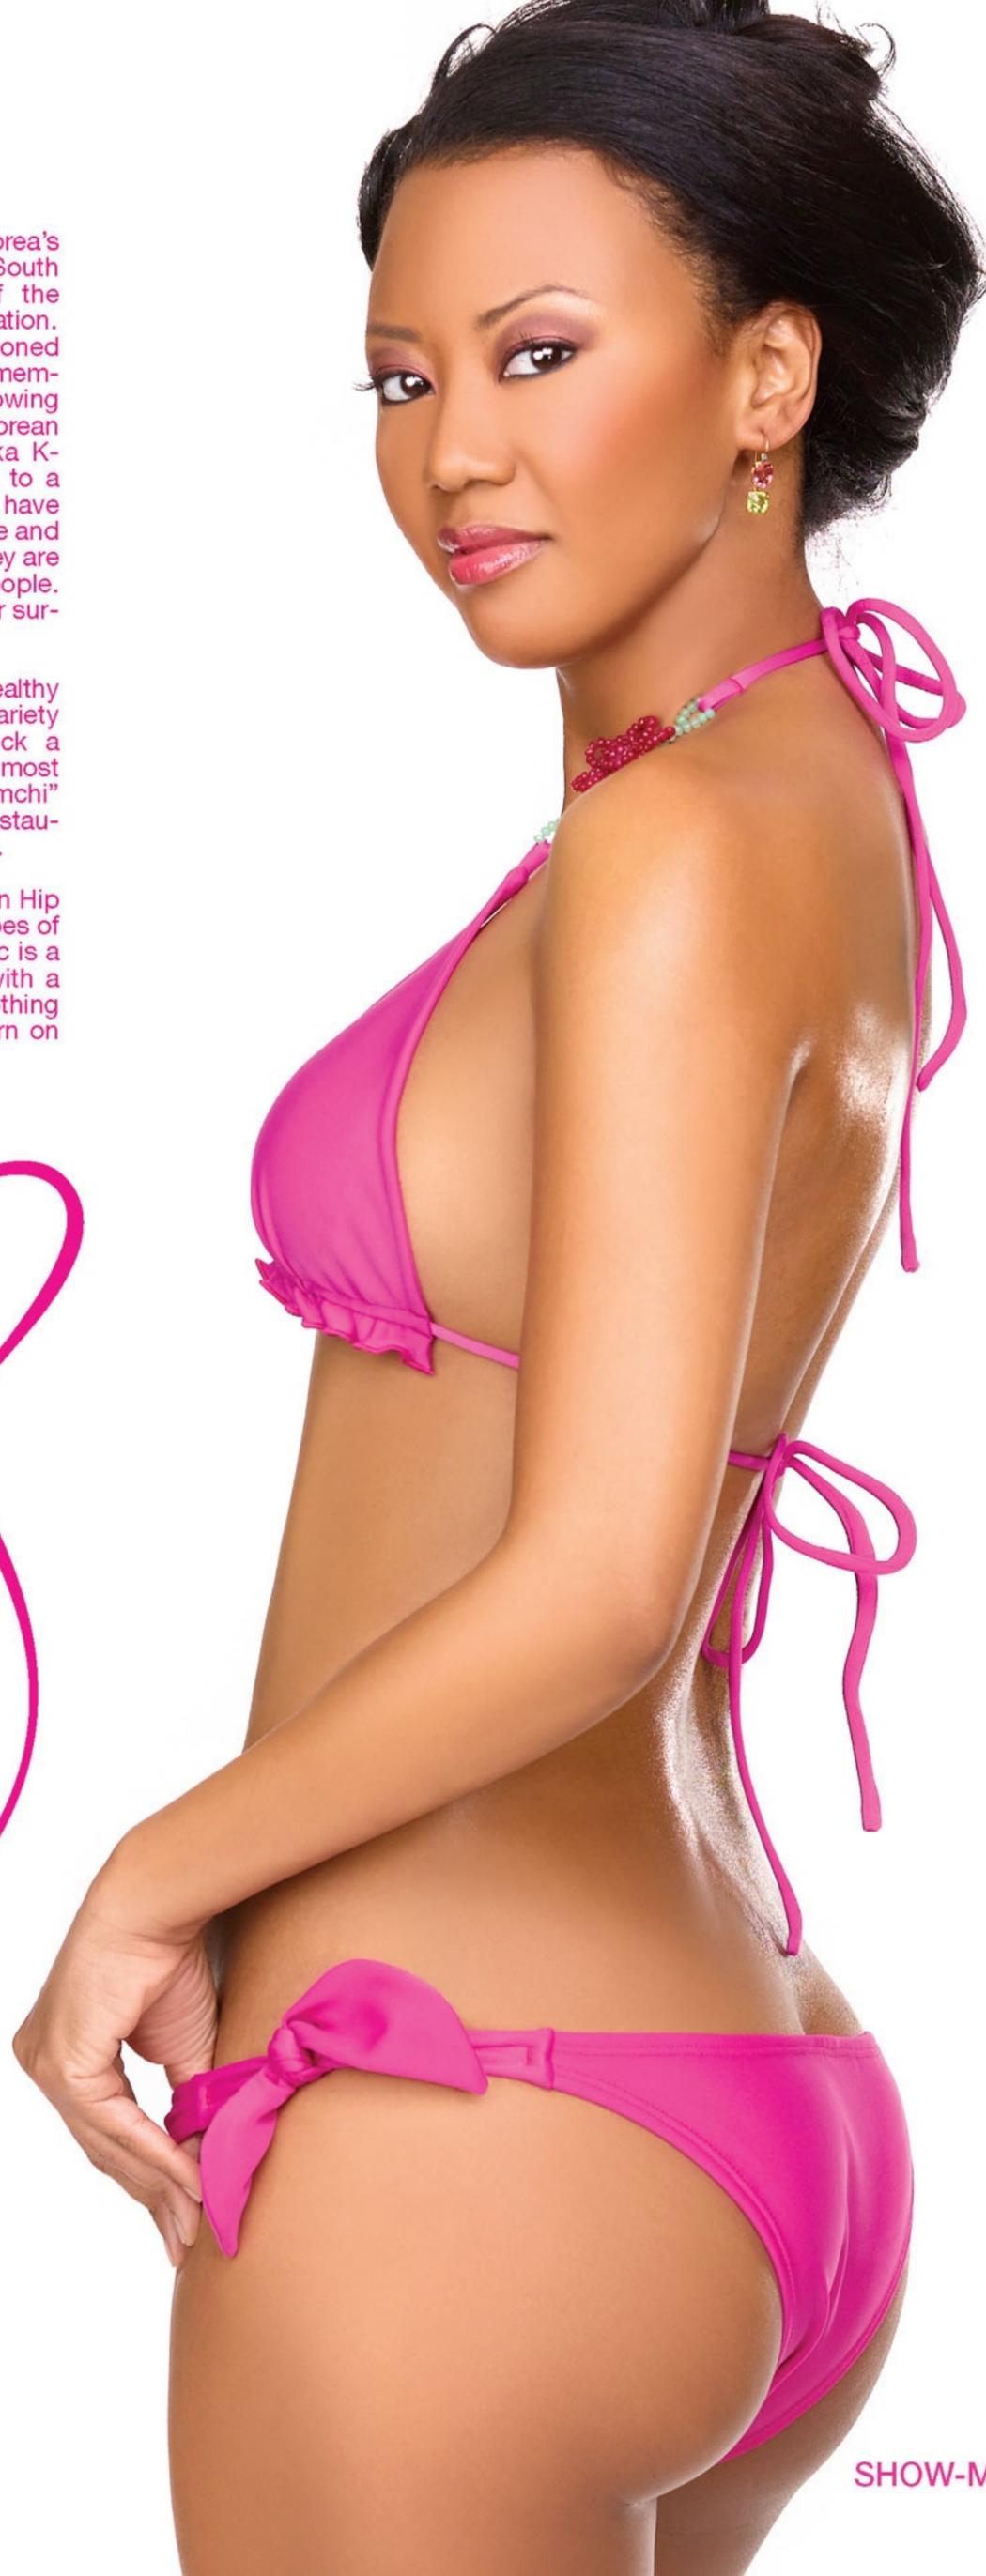

SHOW | Sharyn

I was born in Seoul, which is Korea's capital located in Asia. Seoul is South Korea's largest city and one of the largest cities in the world by population. My father was in the Army, stationed there for a few years, so I do not remember much of the country itself. Growing up in Los Angeles with a huge Korean community called Korea Town (aka K-town) is like being in Korea itself, to a certain degree. A lot of people have mixed feelings about Korean people and their culture. I'm here to say that they are very hospitable and genuine people. They will welcome anyone into their surroundings with open arms.

Most of the Korean food is very healthy and light. We have such a wide variety to choose from it is hard to pick a favorite, but the traditional and most popular is a spicy dish called "kimchi" There are many authentic Korean restaurants in Koreatown to choose from.

Believe it or not, but there is Korean Hip Hop, but there are also different types of music. The traditional Korean music is a type of folk that is incorporated with a fan dance draped in traditional clothing called "hambok" which is also worn on special occasions. ■

Reminiscent of a young Iman, Yurub is straight from Africa, Somalia to be specific. It was one of those late nights after the club when photographer extraordinaire Nick Saglimbeni and I spotted this tall beauty at the dinner. She came complete with that European accented English many high fashion models from Africa seem to have. Us deciding to shoot her was a no brainier, of course. One of the hallmarks of SHOW is the diversity of the models. I am always very careful to include ladies that are going to appeal to a variety of readers. If you're the wrap your legs around my neck type, then you are loving Yurub right about now. Her legs are as long as she is tall as you can tell. ▶

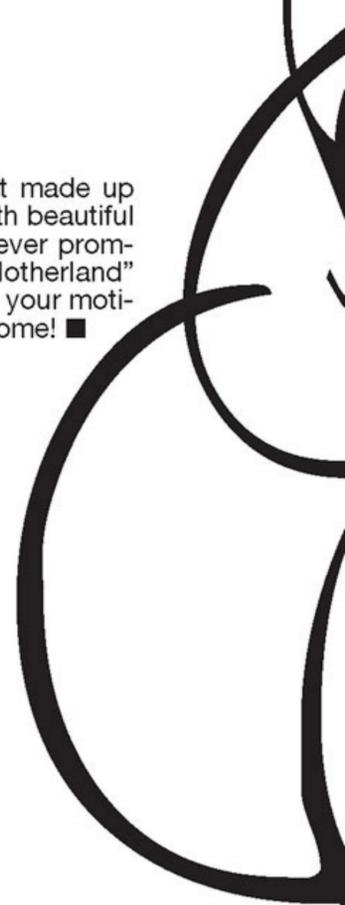

Africa is a beautiful continent made up of beautiful countries filled with beautiful women like Yurub. If you've ever promised yourself a trip to the "Motherland" let this long legged beauty be your motivation. Mother Africa here I come! ■

This is Kersti's third appearance in SHOW. She is the first SHOW girl to achieve that distinction. Our beautiful 19 year old former cover model can also be found gracing the front of issue number 6 as well as through out issue #7. You will be seeing plenty more of Kersti in a couple more issues as she is certainly a fan favorite. ■
