TOWIE's Ferne in her undies!

Miss McCann gets super saucy!

➔ DROPPING INTO TOWIE
like a fit grenade, Ferne McCann's been pretty much our favourite for two seasons now. We caught up with her and an exclusive first airing of her new lingerie shoot.

Hi Ferne! Did you enjoy the saucy
undies shoot?
I had such a good time.
It was so nice to get in my

"Umm... I think my hand's stuck"

"This old thing? I just grabbed it down the market"

"We spent most of our time in Vegas naked!"

to be a builder there and I jumped in front of the board to get some pictures done, but I'd be lying. It's just a backdrop! It's sexy though, isn't it, the colour of the board against my skin?

It's different! TOWIE kicked off this season in Las Vegas. Fun?
It was so much fun! I shared a suite with Lucy Mecklenburgh, Billie Faiers and Sam Faiers, my best friends – you can't ask for much more! I won $1,000, can you believe that? I was playing blackjack with the girls and it just kept adding up and up.

Congrats! Did you all spend your time in the suite with your hair in bunches having pillow fights?
It was every man's dream, that suite – we girls have known each other for years, so we were either in our underwear or completely naked. I shared a double bed with Billie!

One of the pictures tweeted was of you all relaxing by the pool. Was it all a big jolly or did you actually get some work done?
We got a lot of work done, but there was a lot of down time, where we could do whatever we wanted. We went to see the Chippendales and ran riot in the Chippendales shop. We bought a little blow-up doll and named him Leroy. He came with us everywhere, to the pool parties, to the nightclubs. There was a mad moment when me and Billie went down to the pool, and we had to go through security to get into the pool party. Leroy was in my bag and this woman pulled him out and said, "Ma'am, you can't take this in here. You need to deflate your doll." We let Leroy down!

Finally, why do you tweet so many pictures of pandas?
I'm obsessed with them. If someone's obsessed with pandas, I call them a "puppy panda". There's a voice that goes with it as well. If you told me you loved pandas, I'd go, "You're so cute, you're like a little puppy panda... come give me some panda lovin'!" It's quite embarrassing.

Advice for noobs!

Executive producer Mark Rubin with tips for the CoD novice!

USE SQUADS
"If you're a first-time player concerned about your skills, use Squads. Set it on easy, work your way up, and really level up your character. You're not wasting time."

TRY EVERY WEAPON
"In Squads, you can get familiar with every weapon. So try every weapon. I might not be good at sniper rifles, but if I don't try them, I won't know."

FIND WHAT FEELS NATURAL
"If everything in the game doesn't feel natural, switch your loadouts and your perks around."

BUT STICK WITH IT
"If you go out and you're just getting demolished, you'll think your set-up is wrong. But that doesn't necessarily mean that's true. Keep trying."

RELOADING
"Never reload after you've just killed someone as their mate is likely to follow them around the corner. Engage, engage, engage, fall back a little bit, reload."

DON'T BRING A KNIFE TO A GUN FIGHT
"I see on kill cam all the time that I'm shot while my team-mate is running up trying to get the knife kill. Don't go for the glory kill, just shoot someone!"

YOUR MINI MAPS
"Use your mini map and find out where you can run and where you'll get into a choke point. Even good players are uncomfortable on a map they've not played before."

LISTEN
"The game gives you sound cues. If you hear a Predator missile coming, run indoors. Learn those cues and learn what to do when you hear them."

"Now to rescue Princess Peach from that castle..."

WEAPONS

Ready for your trigger finger is a sweet remote sniper rifle, a mission where you're dealing death from a helicopter and a fun, thudding underwater machine gun. And don't panic, the A10 gunship drone makes an appearance.

"Reckon you can jump that cavern, Fido?"

SIGHTSEEING

The venues you'll be staring at down your iron sights add lashings of fun. Highlights include a shark-infested underwater mission, a jungle section in Mexico and an epic zero-G battle in lower Earth orbit near the end.

"Your party trick's great Doug, but the aliens won't care"

MULTIPLAY

Alongside your death matches are new modes Cranked (kill within 30 seconds or you explode), Infected (a zombie game where a kill infects other players) and Extinction (a four-player co-op game fighting off aliens).

"Come on lads, this asbestos isn't going to remove itself!"

Verdict!

With 18 great missions that'll take about eight hours on normal difficulty, there's campaign aplenty to fill your boots, but it's the multiplayer that's your year's time sink. And with Squads and new modes - in particular the awesome Extinction, which sees you fighting off armour-plated aliens in an alternative world where the aliens have overrun mankind - it's better than ever. It's a classic CoD! ★★★★★

Gollum had been working out

THE CAMPAIGN

You play Logan Waller. With your brother and your dog Riley, you take on "The Federation" - a crudely drawn amalgam of South American states that've declared war on the US - by joining a band of special ops, the Ghosts.

EXCLUSIVE!

Call Of Duty: Ghosts first play!

Nuts plays the new CoD to the end!

→ THE KINGS of Call Of Duty this year decided to reboot the popular shooty game, chucking out the Modern Warfare and Black Ops brands for a shiny, new CoD: Ghosts. The simple story of two brothers and their dog fighting against an entire angry continent of bad guys is out this week on Xbox 360 and PS3. We played it to the end. Here's what we reckon...

"Here, fishy fishy!"

SQUADS

If you're tired of being canon fodder for online ninjas, Squads is your friend. You create a group of ten soldiers and fight offline against game-created bots. You learn the maps and experiment with weapons before going online.

PLAYED TO THE END OF GAME!

Here's gaming berk Rory and Ghosts' credits. Look out for a final surprise!

"Does this face give me a trout pout?"

Whale sharks suck!

He opens wide and fish say, "Aargh!"

➔ IT'S BAD enough for the unfortunate fishies that they've been ensnared in a net. But it's just a bit too much when a whale shark then turns up and starts sucking at the net like it's a giant fishy boob, hoovering you and your pals into its gob for dinner. Well, the good news for these Pacific Ocean-dwelling tiddlers is they can go to Fish Heaven knowing they made for a great photo.

Whale shark facts!

- There are places in the world where you can go swimming with them, and because you're not a small fish or plankton, they won't eat you.
- They don't start mating until they're about 30 years old (imagine how bad that must be?) and live to over 100 years old.
- They migrate over vast distances. One tagged specimen covered 8,000 miles, one third of the circumference of the planet, in three years.
- Remora fish, which feed on parasites clinging to whale sharks, have been pictured feeding inside whale shark anuses...

Shut up Sepp!

Swiss FIFA prez Blatter's top 11 finest moments!

→ HERE'S AN idea for Sepp Blatter: give up talking, because when you do, silly things come out. He was at it again last week – blurring out some nonsense about wanting Lionel Messi to win the Ballon d'Or because of Cristiano Ronaldo's hairdresser expenses. Very impartial, Sepp! But as this brief recap shows, Sepp is a master at saying the wrong thing...

"Lionel Messi is a good man. The other one (Ronaldo) is something else. They don't have the same attitude and that gives life to football. One has more expenses for the hairdresser than the other. I prefer Messi"

On the Ballon d'Or front-runners, 2013

"They should refrain from any sexual activities"

Advice for gay football fans travelling to the 2022 FIFA World Cup in Qatar, 2010

"Let's get women to play in different and more feminine garb than the men, in tighter shorts for example. Female players are pretty, if you will excuse me for saying so"

On women's football, 2004

"If this had happened in Latin countries then I think he would have been applauded"

On John Terry's affair with England colleague Wayne Bridge's ex, 2010

"We now have three ladies on the board. Say something ladies, you are always speaking at home, now you can speak here"

To the first three female members of the FIFA Executive Committee, 2013

"There is no racism. During a match, you have battles with your opponents and sometimes things are done which are wrong. At the end of the match, you apologise to your opponent, you shake hands, and it is over"

On racism, 2011

"There are gay footballers, but they won't be accepted in these macho organisations. Look at women's football – homosexuality is popular there"

FIFA pledges zero tolerance to discrimination of all forms, but here Blatter drops another clanger, 2008

"I was surprised by all the English complaining after the defeat. England, of all people, the motherland of fair play ideas. Some of them are bad losers"

On England's World Cup bids failure

"Every game should have a winner. When you play cards or any other game, there's always a winner and a loser. We should have the courage to introduce a final decision in every game of football"

On abolishing draws, 2004

"I could understand it if it had happened in Africa, but not in Italy"

On Italian match fixing, 2011

"I cannot resign. Why should I?"

Blatter shrugs off calls to quit after his controversial remarks on racism, BBC interview, 2011

What the stars think

"I ask every football fan, current and former player, and managers and coaches to join me in asking for the resignation of Mr Blatter from FIFA." Stan Collymore, 2011

"He has to go. Enough is enough. It has to be resignation. He has no idea what goes on day to day. People can't be as ignorant as him and stick their heads in the sand." Chris Kamara, 2011

"Tell me that I've just read Sepp Blatter's comments on racism in football wrong. If not, I am astonished. I feel stupid for thinking that football was taking a leading role against racism." Rio Ferdinand, 2011

"Wherever FIFA goes, accusations of corruption, skulduggery or financial mismanagement follow, and the same goes for Sepp. Stop talking about your own 'legacy' and 'mission' and let someone else have a go." Colin Murray, 2013

"Epic, archaic ignorance from someone who wields power... but uses it not to foster positive change, but to entrench bigotry." Former NBA star John Amaechi, 2010

EXCLUSIVE!

A quick word with John Bishop!

The Liverpudlian comic on footy, teeth, marriage and underpants!

➔ Hi John. You've written your autobiography.

Was it hard to do that?

I've never written a book before. I did the audiobook, too. It took three fking days to record. I did it in this booth in Manchester. It was so hot, I did it in my undies. I can't tell you how odd it is reading your own book in your undies in a room in Manchester.

You're known to have got into comedy after you'd split up with your wife. What happened?

We met at university, got married and had three kids. Kids put a strain on things. After seven years, we split up. I was working for a pharmaceutical company, so I had the kids at the weekends, and dropped them back on Monday mornings. It was so depressing that I started "working from home" on that day. I'd have a telephone conference at 9.30, then I'd start drinking until it stopped hurting.

Blimey! We're sorry to hear that, John.

Mondays were crucifying me, so I needed something to do on a Monday night. I went to an open mic night at the Frog and Bucket in Manchester. The bloke on the door said, "It's four quid to get in, but if you get up, it's free." As I was getting divorced, I thought, "That's four quid she's not getting," so I put my name down. There were seven people in the audience and my name got called after a bloke doing chicken impressions. That's a hard act to follow. So I just started talking. I thought, "What have I got to lose? There's only eight people, and one of them thinks he's a chicken." I talked about splitting up and getting divorced, so none of it was funny. When I came off, the bloke running it said, "It was all right, that, but the crying wasn't the best. Why don't you think of some jokes and come back next week?" On another night my wife was in the audience on a work do and she had no idea I did comedy. We started dating again, and when I asked her to move back in, she agreed.

What was life like growing up in Liverpool?

I had a brilliant childhood on a council estate. We were supposed to live our whole lives in Liverpool, but the council knocked our house down. They'd declared the house a slum, which psed dad off because he'd just decorated. They moved all these Scousers to Cheshire to work in factories. It became an island of Scousers – that's why my accent is so strong. Everyone tried to exaggerate their own identity. I was surrounded by people trying to out-Scouse each other.

"I came on after a bloke doing chicken impressions!"

Which came first – the comedy or the teeth?

My brother Eddie knocked out my front teeth when I was five-and-a-half, so my big teeth came early. Since then, my head's had to grow around my teeth. It did affect my ambition to be a footballer, because it upset my balance. But I still managed to become semi-pro, and played for Hyde and Southport FCs.

And now you're best chums with Liverpool FC, right?

Before the England vs Poland World Cup qualifier, I sent Stevie [Gerrard] a text, and said, "I'm in London. If you win, do you want to go for a drink?" If they'd been beaten, I wasn't going to hang out with a loser. And he went, "I've got to go straight back, I'm training with Liverpool tomorrow." Training! It's like having a job.

If you could be a woman for the day, who would you be? God, I'd be my wife – just so I could walk around in her head and understand what the fk is wrong with her. I'd spend the day as her writing down the answers, so when I became me again, I could look in the journal and go, "Now I fking know... the milk is on the wrong side of the fridge."

Thanks, John. Are you such a chatterbox in real life?

I never wanted to do this for a living. We didn't do drama at school. I was a salesperson, and if you work in sales, you've got to know when to stop talking. When I'm with my mates, I'm the quietest in the group. They say to me, "How the fk are you a comedian?"

● John's autobiography How Did All This Happen? is available now.

1 "You looking at my bird?"
"Yes, I am actually, with a view to catching and eating it."

2 It's looking bad for the birdie as the lion makes a two-pawed lunge for his plump pigeon prize.

The Great Escape!

Pigeon thwarts lion in search of feathery lunch!

➔ WE LIKE a story with a happy ending, and if you're a pigeon fancier, you'll find none happier. It looked like this bird at Adelaide Zoo was set to end up as a lion's dinner. But, as the king of the jungle tried to clamp his jaws around it, the bird squirmed its way through the bars and lived to take a cr*p on someone's car another day.

3 There's a gap in the fence! Quick, little pigeon! Fly and be free. And don't get eaten either!

4 "You know, you didn't have to fly away in a hurry like that, I was only playing. Honest..."

A shotgun, you say, officer? No, haven't seen one

The 200mph Ferrari Quad Lazareth V8F!

You don't need a skid lid to ride a quad bike legally, but you might for the Lazareth Wazuma

- We live in a world where downsizing has become the norm. Formula One engines are shrinking and, thanks to technology (and the need for more miles per gallon), big motors are trading places for smaller-cc engines armed with turbos or superchargers. But not everyone plays by such rules because not everyone thinks quads should be the preserve of farmers and chavvy helmet dodgers.
- Say hello to a French-built four-wheeler called – deep breath – the Lazareth Wazuma V8F Matt Edition. Calling it a quad would be like calling Buck Palace a quaint little bolt-hole.
- For a start, this quad's heartbeat is that of a red-blooded Italian Ferrari 3.0-litre V8 engine – taken from a 308 model. It can do 250bhp, thanks to fuel injection devised from two Yamaha R1 superbikes.

WORDS: JONNY SMITH
PICT: WWW.FACEBOOK.COM/LAZARETH

The injection is a tuneable Sybelle system that can be remapped from a laptop.

- The quad is far lighter than a car, so although the engine "only" produces 250 horses, it tips the scales at 650kg, which equates to 385bhp per tonne.
- It has a max speed of 200mph, if you have the balls or stupidity for it. That's a gnat's pube faster than a Ferrari 458 Italia.
- Changing gear doesn't involve any Italian car parts or Japanese bike bits. In fact, it's a six-speed sequential transmission borrowed from a BMW M3, so cogs can be shifted via buttons on the 'bars. A shedload of hardcore engineering, then.
- It does look like a three-wheeler, but the pair of special Momo 18in rear rims are actually positioned close together. Each hoop wears a monstrous 315/30/18 section tyre, while the front end sports 285/30s. Brakes are vital when you hack about with your legs clenched around Ferrari firepower, hence the fitment of Brembo calipers and 324mm disc brakes in each wheel.

- Nothing on earth looks quite like this Wazuma V8F. It's spectacularly low-slung, with Ferrari motor on full show, side pods inspired by an F1 car, leg-singeing side exit exhausts and not even a tiny windscreen to shield you from wasps while doing 200mph. The whole thing's custom, including a suspension system with racecar-style horizontal shock absorbers.
- Apart from the obvious lunacy and showboatiness of the Laz Waz, it is ironic that a) quads were invented for off-road use and this would probably get stuck if it parked next to a puddle. And b) it is not road legal in France, where it was created.
- The chances are, this calibre of quirkiness will be sold to someone who can afford the £154,800 price tag and who won't be using it to check over the sheep on a muddy hillside.

Gory proof that not all pints are a good thing

→ GLASS, AS we all know, can be dangerous – as can umbrellas, if used as an offensive weapon. But put the two together and they can be calamitous.

"We were in a pub garden when someone came at me with an umbrella," says Daniel Laisby, 27, from Cumbria. "As I fell, I put out my hand, but there was a pint glass on the table and my weight crushed it to shards. All of a sudden, my palm and part of my wrist were gaping open and I could see what was going on inside my hand."

Off to A&E, then, where Daniel found that he had severed tendons. Six ops and "30 or 40" stitches later and Daniel still needs more surgery. Those bloomin' brollies – absolute deathtraps.

'I'm worried she'll be bored'

Is it true that women become more sexually adventurous as they get towards their 30s? I'm 23 but I'm seeing a woman who's 28. I'm worried she'll get bored of me in the sack. What can I do to keep her satisfied?

JASON Brighton
Not having confidence in the bedroom is the only thing that's going to hold you back. In my personal experience, women aren't the easiest books to read and no one is the same. Some women never get into bondage, for example, whereas some have had a go at tying themselves to bedposts by 19! Communicate with her. Some would see your age as an advantage as you'll have more stamina. Don't panic, just give her lots of pleasure. Who can complain about that?

'Do I dip my nib in office ink?'

Is sex in the workplace ever acceptable? I have a thing going with a girl from the office, but I'm not sure it's cool during the nine to five.

ANDREW Sunderland
Play this one carefully. It'll affect your relationship with work buddies and your position may suffer. Remember, you're going to be around each other daily. If you like your space, don't go through with it. On the other hand, one should never live life too prudishly so do it in the coffee shop toilets over the road!

Is there a male equivalent to the female G-spot? I know that it sounds weird but I sometimes struggle to "bring things to a head", as it were, when I'm using the usual sex methods, so I wondered if there were any other areas I could focus on? Help!

JORDAN Sheffield
A man's G-spot is in his bum! It's about three inches inside, nearest your genitals. Sex toys for men aren't scary or unheard of to use these days. Treat yourself and watch how you explode. The quicker that you're comfortable with your own body and how it works, the more open you'll be when it comes to exploring a woman's body up close and personal. It's not weird at all – different people enjoy different things.

JOKE OF THE WEEK!

In between the sheets

AFTER NEARLY 50 years of marriage, a couple are lying in bed one evening, when the wife feels her husband begin to massage her in ways he hasn't in quite some time.

His fingers start at her neck, and then begin moving down past the small of her back. He then caresses her shoulders and neck, slowly working his hand down, stopping just over her stomach.

He then proceeds to place his hand on her left inner arm, working down her side, passing over her buttock and down her leg to her calf.

Next, he strokes up her thigh, stopping just at the uppermost portion of her leg. Suddenly, he stops, rolls over and becomes silent.

As she's become quite aroused by his caressing, the wife asks in a loving voice, "Honey, that was wonderful. Why did you stop?" To which he responds, "I found the remote."

NUTS PROMOTION

We chat to Lauren...

Hi Lauren. How do you throw a WKD party? It's all about your WKD side!

Loads of friends and some massive tunes...

How do you plan to win the sound clash?

Ooh, I have some big tracks on my playlist and I'll get all the girls behind me to make sure he has no chance!

What's your ideal playlist?

1. Run The World Beyoncé
2. Animals Martin Garrix
3. Blurred Lines Robin Thicke
4. F For You Disclosure
5. Holy Grail Jay Z
6. Million Voices Otto Knows
7. Reload Sebastian Ingrosso
8. Can't Hold Us Macklemore
9. Greyhound Swedish House Mafia
10. As Your Friend ft. Chris Brown Afrojack

What practical tips do you have for any aspiring DJs?

Listen to as much new music as possible, try and see some of the big guys live (Sebastian Ingrosso is a personal favourite!) and, most importantly, play as many gigs as possible!

Thanks for the chat, Lauren. Finally then, how can we look boss when we're spinning discs at out nan's birthday party?

As long as you look reem, feel reem and play some reem tunes... you can't go wrong!

DISHY DJ!

"Do you mind? This booth is private"

➔ AS JOLLY as nightclubs clearly are, the most interactive DJs usually get is shrugging their shoulders and tutting when you ask for Mumford And Sons. Well, our chums at WKD are putting an end to that with four Sound Clash events in Warford, Liverpool, Northern Ireland and Lincoln.

TOWIE's Lauren Pope and Kiss FM's Melvin O'Doom will be throwing down in a special Sound Clash, but this being a WKD night there's a catch: all the tunes will be crowd-sourced by you and powered by Spotify.

So hit up the WKD Sound Clash Facebook page at Facebook.com/WKD or visit wkdclash.co.uk and you can dictate what tracks the DJs have available. And the best bit is, you'll get the chance to win VIP tickets to these excellent bashes!

"I had a cheeky sleepover with Holly Peers!"

India

Hi girls! What have you been up to?
Beth: Hello! I've just got back from Lithuania. I've been shooting a movie out there called Parlor. It was an amazing experience!
India: My photography course has been keeping me busy. Hopefully I'll be snapping these sexy shoots as well as starring in them soon!

Creativity is in the air, clearly! Have you had any down time?
India: I was in Manchester the other week. Me and Holly Peers had a sleepover and got through two bottles of wine! And then the JD came out...

Girlie sleepover? That's pillow fights in your pants, right?
India: Ha! Someone actually asked me on Twitter if that's what we were up to. You can keep that as your fantasy! The reality of a girlie sleepover is that we all lie around in our trackies eating Domino's.

Sounds ace! It's around now people get excited about the 2014 calendars. Is it good to see yours on the shelves?
Beth: I love it. It was shot by a fantastic photographer.
India: I haven't seen mine in the flesh yet, so I can't wait!

We spy Christmas lights going up in the high street. Have you started your Crimbo shopping?
Beth: No way! I'm very much a last-minute kind of person. Last year I managed to do it all on Christmas Eve.
India: Oh God, I'm hoping someone will just whisk me away to an island so I can forget about it all! I'll start in December like normal people.

Agreed! Finally then, what are you most looking forward to about the end of the year?
Beth: My film's released in 2014, so that's exciting!
India: I'm counting down the days till I get to go on the Modball Rally in Ibiza with Holly Peers, Rosie Jones and Kelly Hall!

Nuts how to make it as a comic

STAND-UP SURVIVAL GUIDE!

Prepare for grim gigs...

When you start out, you're going to play some tiny venues. You end up in these horrendous dressing rooms, sat on crates. There's no glamour. Often, you have to stand in a kitchen where they'll be making curly fries and chicken in a basket and when you go on, you think, "I actually smell of chicken. I smell of chips." I played a tiny 40-seater in Edinburgh. One night, there was a kid in the front row. He only looked about 12 so I thought I'd better not swear. I said, "Hey mate, what's that under your chair?" He pulled out a copy of Harry Potter and said, "It's a book in case you're sh't."

Handle your hecklers...

Just be quick and harsh. My contract is, "I'm here to tell you jokes and not be mean to you." When they break that contract, all rules are gone. I was 17 when I started doing stand-up, all fresh-faced, and someone shouted, "Where's your pubic hair?" I said, "In your wife's teeth." He didn't laugh, but it's you versus him. And you can't let the heckler win. Then again, if the heckle gets a big laugh from the audience, just laugh and take it. You look churlish if you start going, "Yeah, but, your mum..."

Don't turn into a diva...

I used to play these rooms above pubs where people were on fruit machines and playing pool while you're in the corner of the room trying to tell jokes. Sometimes there wasn't even a microphone. At least now, everyone's facing the right way. I've got a really good tour manager. If I ask a question too far, like, "Can you put filtered water in the kettle before you make my brew?" he'll just tell me to fk off. My only demand is that there's fruit backstage. You don't eat all day since you're nervous, and afterwards you're starving, and there's no late-night salad bar. Otherwise, you're there at midnight at the Colonel's...

Get new material off your mates...

I find myself with random pieces of paper that say things like, "Why does no one ever believe you when you say you've sat on the remote?" I always think, "I'll write something about that one day," but I never do. I always listen to people. Even in the most inane conversations, you'll find something funny, especially when you're just hanging out with your mates. Stuff like, "I'll get all these pints in, lads, this is tax deductible." I go back to the smaller clubs and turn up unannounced sometimes. For the first three minutes, the audience is like, "Brilliant, what a lovely surprise, it's someone we've actually heard of." That's all you're getting though, three minutes of grace. After that, it's, "You'd better be funny..."

Read the papers...

You have to do as much preparation as you can for a panel show. You don't know what the questions are going to be, but you know the themes, especially with the topical ones. You think, "I'll just watch the news all week and read every newspaper, and I'll be able to crowbar stuff in." It's all about the crow-barring. These shows take two-and-a-half hours to record. You have to have the confidence to go, "What about this?" Of course, I think that everything I start to say is going to be hilarious. It's only when you get to the end...

Don't tweet your best gags...

Often, I'll put an observation out there. I don't know if something is a general observation until people have confirmed it. I could say, "Have you ever noticed when this happens?" and you might be thinking, "I've literally never seen that in my life." If people go, "Yeah, it happens to me all the time," I'm on to something. Social media is so good for comedy. People are always going to nick Jimmy Carr or Tim Vine gags because they're so easy to remember. No one's going to nick a full routine from me. You can't be sat with your mates going, "You know when you're in Tesco..."

Deal with negative press...

I've had all sorts of mad things written about me. I got a review once with five stars and thought, "God, I've never had five stars". As I was reading it, I realised the jokes they were describing weren't mine. I just took the five stars and put it on my poster. I don't mind interviews. The classic worst question is, "Tell us a joke, then." No one asks anyone else to do their job for free. "What do you do for a living?" "Oh, I'm a plumber." "Could you have a quick look down my toilet?" For some reason, it's fair game with comics.

There's a comic in everyone...

Anyone who's dared to get up on stage deserves respect. So many Nuts readers will be funny blokes and their mates will go, "You should do stand-up." On the outside there's bravado but inside they think, "I would cry if I went on stage and no one laughed." Getting heckled is horrible. Everyone staring at you is horrible. No one laughing at your jokes is horrible. But it's not as bad as the feeling in 50 years' time when you're on your deathbed thinking, "I wonder if I could have done that?" Stand-up is not as hard as it looks. It's all a confidence trick!

It's KELLY Brook

The star's sauciest 2014 calendar shots!

KELLY BROOK

"I don't really fancy celebrities. I like normal blokes"

Hello Kelly! Please introduce the chaps to your lovely new calendar...

Hello, and welcome to my new calendar shoot! Wake up to Kelly Book every morning in 2014!

You're looking amazing, as usual. What's the key to your sexiness?

Being comfortable in your own skin and having confidence in yourself is the most important thing. I'm not super-skinny, but I think I've got a pretty healthy relationship with my body and my appearance. You've got to accept your shape and how you are. I just want to look like me, not a plastic version of me.

So you're not likely to go down the plastic surgery route?

With people who've had plastic surgery, you don't go, "Oh they look great with that new nose," or "They look great with those new boobs!" You just go, "Oh, they've had surgery," whether it's lips or Botox or boobs. It can be a bit of a sign of low self-esteem, too.

What sort of bloke do you traditionally go for?

Erm, I don't really fancy anyone on TV or anything. I don't get to watch much anyway, but I like more normal guys.

We imagine you have this proper glitzy lifestyle. Do you ever just go to the local pub for a pint and a packet of peanuts?

Ha-ha! Well I quite like driving down to my little cottage in Kent and making myself at home there – it's very rural and countrified. In the evening, I'll just pop down to one of the village pubs to meet a couple of friends for a meal.

On the flipside, what's the most insane showbiz party you've been to?

When I was in Cannes last year, I went to one of P Diddy's parties – that was phenomenal! Seeing him walking around in his white tuxedo serving champagne was cool... ▶

Blimey! So you have a pretty awesome life, but who would you like to swap places with for 24 hours?
I'd probably be the Queen for the day. She's done such a fantastic job for the country and I'd have liked to be her on her Jubilee Weekend last year.

What's the weirdest thing a fan has said to you?
You know, sometimes people think I look like me but they don't think it's really me. They usually say things like, "You're like a skinny version of Kelly Brook!" Someone once sent me an apple press. That was weird.

Er, who wouldn't need an apple press? You're always in the papers - what's the oddest thing you've read about yourself?
Someone once wrote that I was going to a hypnotist to try and reduce the amount of time I spent getting ready before going out. Not true, obviously!

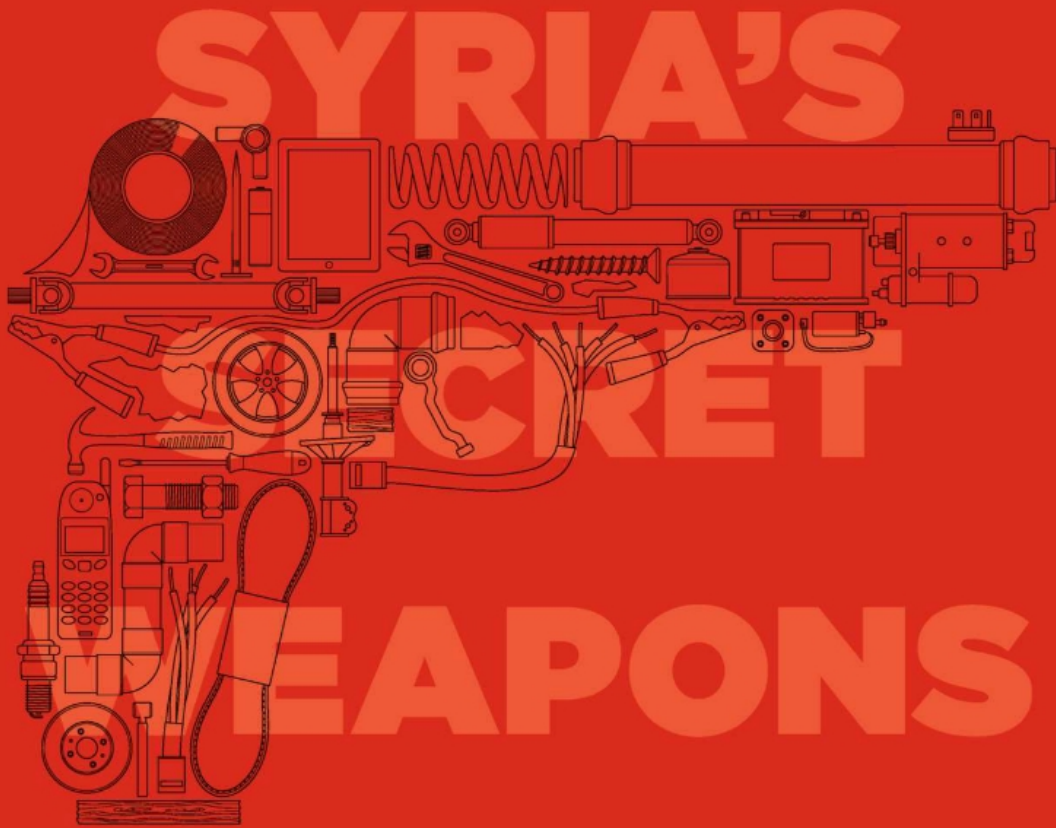

What's the worst job you've ever done?
Probably a paper round I did when I was very young. I'm not good at early mornings, so that didn't last long.

You did a few on-stage nudey scenes in Calendar Girls a while back, then played Keith Lemon's love interest... which was the most daunting?
Calendar Girls wasn't at all daunting. I was surrounded by fantastic actors and it's a great play. With Keith Lemon, I got to play a parody of myself. I had fun with it and just took the mickey. But I don't get embarrassed, and if I do have embarrassing moments, I don't remember them. I try not to think about them and just focus on the best bits!

Finally, we've got some very sexy brunettes in this issue, but would you ever go over to the blonde side?
Well, last year I was a blonde for a play. It was a bit weird! It was fun, but it didn't work, so I won't be going blonde again in a hurry... X

PHOTOS: BENJAMIN KAUFHANN/LISTOCK SYNDICATION

"I tend not to get embarrassed. I like taking the mick out of myself!"

Syrian rebels make use of iPads, elastic bands and scrap metal to make weapons of destruction!

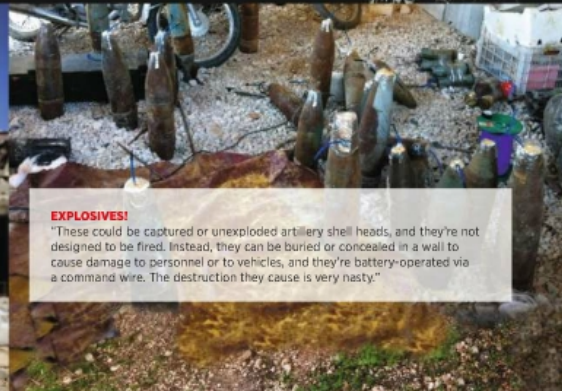

NOW HEADING into its third year, the Syrian civil war has been marked out by the sheer brutality shown by forces loyal to President Bashar al-Assad and the groups that make up the rebel opposition. While the government has access to a vast amount of weaponry, those on the other side have to use ingenuity and skills learnt in previous trades to construct their armaments. Here, former SAS and MI6 operative Colin Berry casts his eye over these deadly DIY weapons of war.

IPAD MORTAR!

"This mortar is being used in conjunction with a widely available app which provides angle degrees or compass directions - see how one of the guys in this photo is adjusting the stand. It's a good use of modern technology so long as they can convert the data it provides effectively - which I suspect they can."

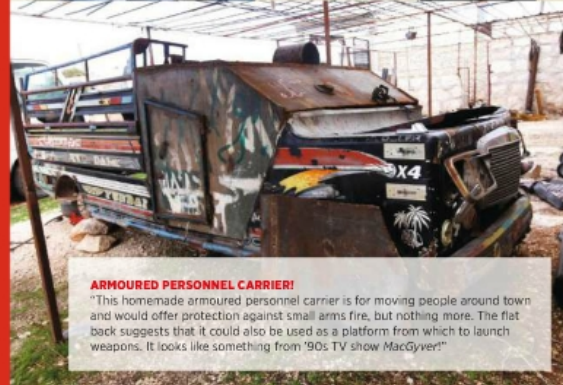

EXPLOSIVES!

"These could be captured or unexploded artillery shell heads, and they're not designed to be fired. Instead, they can be buried or concealed in a wall to cause damage to personnel or to vehicles, and they're battery-operated via a command wire. The destruction they cause is very nasty."

GRENADE LAUNCHER!

"This is crazy - it reminds me of something you might find in a Chinese military museum. It's an improvised device for a small hand grenade, which is probably launched via the use of a shotgun shell. It's not very safe at the firing end and it'll have a minimal effect on the receiving party, too."

ARMoured PERSONNEL CARRIER!

"This homemade armoured personnel carrier is for moving people around town and would offer protection against small arms fire, but nothing more. The flat back suggests that it could also be used as a platform from which to launch weapons. It looks like something from '90s TV show MacGyver!"

HEAVY-DUTY MORTAR!

"This is fantastic! At first I thought it was a piece of old equipment from the Eastern Bloc but upon closer inspection, I realised that it's actually a gas bottle with some fins stuck on the side and wheels to enable portability. Again, the charge is provided by a car battery."

SYRIA'S DIY WAR

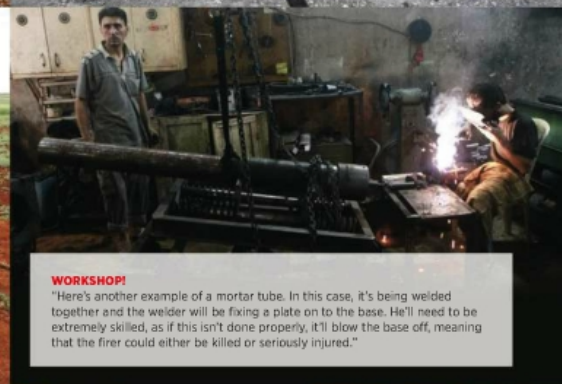

COLOURFUL MORTAR ROUNDS!

"God knows why these mortar rounds are getting a bright-red makeover. They're not something you'd usually worry about visually, unless you painted them in drab colours to prevent them from being seen. Maybe this guy just took a shine to them and wants them as ornaments in his house?"

ROCKET LAUNCHER!

"That circle on the front is there to keep the missile on its trajectory, as without it, the missile would go astray. The propellant - a sulphur-based substance such as gunpowder - is put in the bottom of the missile and the explosive in the tip. This launcher looks heavy, but it's probably just for show."

WORKSHOP!

"Here's another example of a mortar tube. In this case, it's being welded together and the welder will be fixing a plate on to the base. He'll need to be extremely skilled, as if this isn't done properly, it'll blow the base off, meaning that the firer could either be killed or seriously injured."

TWIN MORTAR

"This is a home-made twin mortar tube that's designed to be a portable weapon. Judging by the accompanying heavy-duty battery, I'd say that the rounds are ignited via a crude but effective firing system, which probably comprises a couple of spark plugs."

GRENADE CATAPULT

"This will be used to lob grenades at targets nearby. It could be effective, but a grenade will go off soon after the pin has been pulled. If it slipped off the sling, the firers would have to hit the floor to avoid the worst of the blast. I wouldn't like to be the one at the front."

UNIVERSAL/HD • 9pm

Yet another superb Hollywood film has been given a TV series retouch and this time, it's Tim Burton's ace historical slasher. In an modern twist, analytical police constable Ichabod Crane (played by Tom Mison in this series and Johnny Depp in the film) has been transported 200 years into the future. Worth a watch.

Masters Of Sex

CHANNEL 4/HD • 10pm

Michael Sheen is absolutely flippin' magnificent as the weird, cold and clinical sex scientist William Masters, who revolutionised attitudes to sex with his partner Virginia Johnson in the 1960s. And, just to let you know, there's the added bonus that pretty much every episode has rudery in it! We don't mind a bit of that!

Super-silly spoof The Starving Games!

Our monthly flick fest enjoys a spot of stupendous satire!

THE STARVING GAMES
11 November • 12
Some time in the spring of 2012, the men of Great Britain were dragged to the cinema to see fruity sci-fi flick The Hunger Games. But now we finally get our own back, with mirth-making mickey-take The Starving Games (see what they did there?)

Sultans of spoof Jason Friedberg and Aaron Seltzer (think Scary Movie, Meet The Spartans) have a knack for preposterous parodies, and in their latest romp, Avengers Assemble, Sherlock Holmes and Avatar get a good ribbing as well as The Hunger Games.

The "story" focuses on an awesome archer called Kantmiss (geddit?) who volunteers to fight in the barbaric "starving games" to protect her sister. Of course, the real fun comes with all the swipes at Twitter, reality telly and pop culture in general and the guy who plays President

Head to the Nuts Twitter page for your chance to win a Blu-ray copy of the film and a mini PC from DinoPC.com worth £399! @nuts_official ➔ BLACKJACK IS one of the most popular card games in the world. Its balance of tactics and luck make it a perfect blend of fun and cash wins.

HOW TO PLAY:
You play against the dealer, and whoever has the total closest to 21 wins. You're each dealt two cards to start, then you can 'Hit' for more cards or 'Stand' if you're happy. Make 21 from any number of cards, though a ten or a picture card and an ace - Blackjack - beats other combinations.

SINGLEDECK BLACKJACK

Top tips to win big

- Play the dealer - The dealer must draw more cards until he reaches 17 or above. This gives you the advantage of knowing what he'll do, and sometimes he'll go bust.
- Splitting - If you've got two matching cards, you can split your hand into two. The best cards to split are two aces.
- Doubling Down - This is when you double your original bet, after you've looked at your first two cards. After doubling, you can draw one more
- Insurance - If the dealer's first card is an ace, you can safeguard your hand against the event that the dealer has Blackjack by opting for insurance. If he has Blackjack, your insurance will pay out at 2-to-1.

10 RUDE QUESTIONS!

And a real girl to answer them!

Katie

21 Chippenham

1 Where's the strangest place you've had sex?
"Hmm, I would say it's a tie between a trampoline in my back garden and a car bonnet in a dark alley! Both were great fun and, obviously, one was much bouncier than the other!"

2 What's your trademark move in the bedroom?
"Very topical, but I love to twerk in the bedroom. It involves me being bent over, doing my thing!"

3 What really turns you on?
"Ooh, I've got to say having my neck kissed. It's a massive turn-on. Also, when a guy smells really good, it just makes me want to drag him to the bedroom. You can never go wrong with a good scent!"

4 What's your favourite position?
"I'm not a fussy girl, I like them all. But if I had to pick one, it would be reverse cowgirl because I like to be in control. I can get a good grip that way, too. Naughty me!"

5 Is it better to give or receive?
"I'd say both. Giving really turns me on and it's great knowing that a guy's enjoying himself. But what girl doesn't like to receive? It's amazing if it's done properly!"

6 What one thing would you really like to try but haven't yet?
"This is a tricky one. If I can really choose only one thing, I'd probably have to say a threesome. It could get really messy and sounds fun!"

7 Ever got it on with another girl?
"Well, I have a friend who gets a bit frisky when we're on a night out together! We always kiss each other and get a bit touchy-feely but it would never go any further than that. It's just a bit of fun for the two of us!"

8 What's your favourite sexy outfit?
"That's easy - my nipple tassels and my stockings! I'm a very big fan of the less-is-more look!"

PHOTOS: PAUL MUESO

Nuts REAL GIRLS

9 What's the rudest thing you've done?

"It's got to be sleeping with two brothers straight after one another. I couldn't choose so I thought I'd have both!"

10 Have you ever made a sex tape?

"I've never made one but I've always been a little bit tempted. It would really turn me on knowing I'm being filmed."

LADIES CONFESS!

TO OUR SECRETARY!

Racy revelations from our female readers!

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

'Our early airport check-in'

MY FIANCÉ and I were due to fly home after a weekend away. Our flight was at 7am but we were early and everything was closed, so we took a seat. We soon started snuggling up and talking about our naughty antics over the last few days. It wasn't long before we started kissing and touching, and it was getting me really turned on. He'd soon pulled my panties to one side and slid his fingers inside me. I was so wet. I stood up and bent over our luggage cart, he lifted my skirt and slid straight into me. What a way to end a holiday!

Tracey Durham

'My ride on the train'

I WAS on a long train journey and decided to buy some wine from the buffet cart. The train was pretty busy but a cute guy offered me his seat, so I offered him a drink. After a good number of stops, the train was deserted and it was just me and him left. By now we were really flirting and both a little tipsy. He put his hand on my knee and I looked around nervously to check if anyone could see. His hand moved up my body till it was inside my bra, his fingers finding my nipples. I gasped out loud and suddenly wanted him inside me. Keeping an eye down the aisle, I hopped on his lap and rode him hard and fast. Now, that's what I call a sex-press train journey!

Hayley Manchester

'A sexy shower at lunchtime'

ON MONDAY lunchtimes, the boys in our office always play football. There are a couple of guys who are very fit. There's a tiny shower room on our bottom floor and I decided to wait there after my lunchtime netball game to catch one of them in their gear. I suddenly wondered if I could get one of them alone in there and my cheeks flushed with excitement. I spied the sexiest guy arriving down the corridor, so I went inside and left the door ajar. I was peeling off my kit just as he walked in and I stared as his bulge instantly grew. I gave him a cheeky smile and walked into the shower. He followed me in and we ended up having sex doggy-style while I hung on to two of the coat hooks. It certainly perked up my day!

'My saucy salon secret'

I HAD an evening hair appointment last month and when I arrived, I was surprised to discover it was just me and my hairdresser. She's gorgeous with long blonde hair and juicy lips. She led me to the backwash to wash my hair, bending right over so her boobs were in my face. She gently massaged my head, holding eye contact. I felt really aroused and could feel my nipples getting hard. I knew she was staring down my cleavage. We couldn't take it any longer - she moved round to the front, I lifted her tight skirt and began rubbing her. I could feel her getting wetter and couldn't wait to get between her thighs. I pulled aside her pants and buried my tongue inside her. I've got another appointment next week, but this time it's a home visit!

10 reasons why this season is brilliant already!

The start to this season's footy has been an absolute cracker and here are just a few of the reasons why...

➔ WE MAY be just ten games into the Premier League season but already we've all come to the conclusion that it's been a belter. Sky Sports pundit Matt Le Tissier agrees, and he tells Nuts why he loves this season!

● Gillette Soccer Saturday is part of an unrivalled schedule of football programming live on Sky Sports and HD, mobile with Sky Go and on NOW TV. Visit www.sky.com for details.

SAINTS MAN LE TISSIER!

In 443 first-team appearances playing for Southampton, midfielder Matt Le Tissier put away 161 goals.

EVERYONE TRYING IS TO BE BARCELONA!

"Well, not everyone, but plenty of teams are going for it and why not try? Barça are great! We've seen Swansea, Southampton, Liverpool and more all going for that possession-based game plan. It's just funny that not every team has players like Barcelona do, as without players with ability it can fall apart..."

WE'VE NO IDEA WHO'S GOING TO WIN THE LEAGUE!

"Far too often, it's one or two teams racing away even at this stage, but now that's all changed. Liverpool have made a charge and Arsenal look good in the top spot, but they need to take care, as seven other teams want to snatch it from them!"

COMICAL REFEREEING PERFORMANCES!

"It doesn't seem like they're improving at all and that's a huge shame! Getting the big calls wrong really does detract from the quality we have in the Premier League. They'll need to up their game as the players have done, otherwise the stick they get will continue!"

WORDS: JOE BARNES PHOTOS: ACTION IMAGES, PA PHOTOS, GETTY IMAGES, SKY SPORTS HAS AN UNRIVALLED SCHEDULE OF FOOTBALL PROGRAMMING LIVE ON SKY SPORTS AND HD, MOBILE WITH SKY GO AND ON NOW TV. 9

ANDROS TOWNSEND!

"What a cracking start the lad has made! He's timed this run of form perfectly - coming into the England squad and helping them get to Rio, and he's been a vital part of Spurs' start. For those who say he lacks a final product, look at his goal at Villa Park. It may have been a cross - but it was a superb one!"

10

...AND AS FOR THE GOALIES

"Recent performances don't make Joe Hart a bad goalie, but he needs to improve if he wants to be England's number one! Cardiff's David Marshall performed well against Spurs, it's just a shame he was broken after 93 minutes of heroics!"

Nuts SPORT

THE ÖZIL EFFECT

"Arsenal didn't make a great start to the season and every Arsenal fan was frustrated with the club's lack of transfer activity, but then they go and land Mesut Özil. I'm not sure if he's single-handedly dragging his side to the top but he's giving it a good go!"

NEVILLE/CARRAGHER DOUBLE ACT!

"Heated debates, aka arguments - what's not to love about Gary and Jamie on our screens? They're experts, and the way they bounce off each other is great. When Jamie said Steven Gerrard was better than Paul Scholes, Gary's face was a picture!"

WONDER GOALS!

"The names Jack Wilshere and Pajtim Kasami were on everybody's lips for a while, but the wonder strikes keep coming! Gylfi Sigurðsson's strike against Hull in the League Cup had me off my seat. But if you're asking me for a favourite, that lad Kasami's strike was the real deal!"

THE DECLINE OF MAN UNITED?

"David Moyes has an epic task in taking over from Sir Alex and he's still finding his feet. But don't worry, they'll be among the front-runners soon. I'm just glad my Saints boys are above them!"

ENGLAND ARE SUDDENLY GOOD!

"But don't celebrate just yet! We've booked our place in Rio, but we can't get carried away. Qualification is the least of our expectations. Let's start celebrating when we reach the quarter-final stage. When that happens, we can give credit to everyone involved!"

EXCLUSIVE!

Walker: 'I'd get to boot camp on X Factor!'

Spurs' wing-back wizard Kyle rates his footballing talents and soulful melodies!

➔ Hi Kyle! You were part of the England squad that qualified for the World Cup. How was it when you got through?
We won the first game [against Montenegro], which was fantastic, but I picked up a silly yellow card so I was suspended. We still had a job to do the following Tuesday against Poland, and the lads did it. I was supporting them, jumping up and down in the stand, not just as a player, but as an England fan, too.

Do you have any spectacular swimwear planned for Rio?
No! I'll let my missus take care of all that.

Does the World Cup seem like a big holiday?
No, it's far from being a holiday. You've a job to do out there, to represent your country and you have to do yourself, your family and your country proud. I've got to put in the performances that I've been working on since I was six years old.

As for Spurs, what's it like playing under a young manager like André Villas-Boas?
He's a manager – and you have to respect that. It wouldn't matter whether he was 29 or 17 – whatever he says, goes. Someone like Brad Friedel is 42, but he wouldn't tell the manager what to do. Because of his age we can have some banter with him. He's chilled out, and a great all-round guy. We all want to achieve big things with him.

When you've finished training, what do you do?
About 40 per cent of the lads sleep, and I'll either go home and spend time with my son or I'll have a sleep. Michael Essien used to have 14 hours of sleep a day when he was at his peak. It's vital. Otherwise I'll relax by playing FIFA... my missus doesn't like it!

Speaking of games, who's the best at FIFA?
We'll know after the tournament in the next couple of weeks. The last one was won by our midfielder Tom Carroll.

As a Sheffield lad, do you know the Arctic Monkeys?
I don't know them personally, but being from Sheffield I have to have them on my iPod. I sing all the time. I go to bed singing and when I wake up I'm singing. My missus tells me to give it a rest. I'm not the best, but I tell myself I'd get through to boot camp on the X Factor.

So, you've a soulful voice?
Not I'm totally off-key. I couldn't sing in the changing room, either, it'd be a recipe for disaster, I think!

You've got a lot of tattoos. Tell us about them...
I've got an eye on my arm for my grandad who passed away – he got me into football. I've also got one of my son, some koi carp, and there's even a Buddha tattoo. When you get a tattoo done, the pain isn't that bad, but there's a burning sensation. It's clearly not horrible, though, because I've gone back to have more done.

Back to football, could Spurs win the Premier League?
Why not? With the team we've got, it'd be silly to say we couldn't win the League – there's a lot of quality. We can't get ahead of ourselves, but the bare minimum is the top four – anything above that'd be a bonus. Come February, we could be saying a top-four spot would be an underachievement.

You've just signed a contract that'll keep you there till 2019...
It's a fantastic club to be at. I came here when I was just 18 years old. This is probably my home, even though I love Sheffield. It's going to be home for a lot longer.

"And another thing – your tie looks sh*t"

The executioners had forgotten something...

Sepp, keep your mouth shut!

The foolish head of FIFA has been spouting rubbish again!

➔ OH, SEPP Blatter. No, his comments about Cristiano Ronaldo weren't as bad as some of the things he's said in the past, but the man still insists on making a fool of himself. Nobody commented on the hairstyles of Diego Maradona when he was the best player in the world and nobody said anything about the amount of time George Best took to style his hair – and he spent hours on it!

It's just such rubbish the man spouts. I think that this is Ronaldo's big chance for the Ballon d'Or, too. Messi didn't have a vintage year in 2012. I may be firmly in the camp that believes Messi is the better player, and I know a lot of people are talking about Franck Ribéry as a good outside shot, but they should be basing it on how a player performs over the whole season. People are only talking about Franck Ribéry because of the stuff Bayern achieved over the last six weeks or so of the season. That's how these voting systems work – you tend to get the people who are exhausted with football going for the player who's currently on top form on the largest stages. But for me, the Ballon d'Or should definitely go to Ronaldo. If he doesn't win it this year, I fear he never will.

Joe will get the number one slot back

I SPOKE recently about how Joe Hart needed an arm around the shoulder and a boost of confidence but, last week, Manuel Pellegrini dropped him. He's been allowed a few mistakes by his manager, who hasn't seen the best of him like Roberto Mancini did.

Hart hasn't saved City in any of their games and a few of his decisions have been wrong. Whether it's the language barrier or the absence of Vincent Kompany, I don't know but the lad Pantilimon came in, played great and looks massive! If he gets a run in the team, Joe's place in the England squad could be under threat. But I expect Joe to come through it. Every goalie has a bad patch.

The Capital One Cup should be taken seriously

MAKE NO mistake: Arsenal should have been genuinely aiming to beat Chelsea in the Capital One Cup. They need a trophy, and I bet they're really disappointed. I'm sure Arsène Wenger was mindful of the impending Liverpool game, but he'll still have wanted to put out a side that showcased their strength in depth. But the result proved that Chelsea's second XI is better than Arsenal's. I suspect Arsène's priority is the league but the bottom line is he needs a trophy – any trophy – and can kick on from there.

Man United vs Arsenal

10 NOVEMBER, 4.10PM • Sky Sports 1/HD

I think the pressure is starting to ease on David Moyes and the players are starting to express themselves. People forget United are traditional slow starters and really build up more momentum as the New Year approaches.

PREDICTION: 2-1

Key man

Arsenal's footballing style will lead to a lot of shots on goal, so David de Gea will look to keep his great form going.

Mike Ashley is making a big mistake!

NEWCASTLE ARE in a no-win situation, banning the local newspapers from their ground. I always considered myself a media-savvy manager but the papers, when I was at Stoke City, were disgraceful on occasion. Get the hump, refuse a few interviews, then ease them back into the fold.

Özil: 'I'm a Gunner now!'

The German ace on why he loves it in London

➔ Hi Mesut! It looks like your move to Arsenal was something of a masterstroke! Yeah, I'm pleased it has started so well. I was excited by the challenge and so far that excitement has carried through into the results. Arsenal have a great reputation and now I see why. I'm very fortunate to have ended up here.

What was the major factor in you joining the Gunners? It was obviously a factor that my international team-mates [Per Mertesacker and Lukas Podolski] have had great experiences here. But speaking to the manager was so, so important. He showed a lot of trust in me which was everything I needed to hear. I knew that the coach in Madrid did not have that same trust – so it was time for a new challenge.

Have Arsenal delivered that? Definitely. So far it's going well and we must continue this. I wanted to be in an environment where I could develop and get better. I'm confident in my own ability but, again, just need to feel the trust that will allow me to perform at my best. And here I am, at a club where I have that!

It was a shock to see you leave Madrid especially after you gave a statement saying you were staying... Well, you know, things change very quickly in football. As I said, once I learned that the [Madrid] coach didn't have trust in me, that was the end. To know that a club of Arsenal's stature wanted me and had faith in me was enough. I still have a lot of love for Madrid and I wish them well. But now I am a Gunner and am determined to make this team successful.

You've certainly hit the ground running! Ha! Yeah, the club have been good to me. I wanted to come here to improve and with a World Cup coming up I needed to show good form. So thanks, Arsenal, for helping me do this!

So no pressure at being Arsenal's "saviour"? I have no control of stuff like that. I play football for the joy of it and also to be a success. Nothing else is my concern.

How good are the group of players at Arsenal? We have a team capable of challenging for trophies, absolutely. The spirit in the dressing room is fantastic also. The quality is there to do great things.

What can you personally bring to the Emirates? Trophies, hopefully. That's why I am here, guys!

So you're saying can Arsenal win the title? Yeah, of course we can. We have the players, we have the manager to do that, so why not?
