Bikinis in a Junkyard ???

March 2014

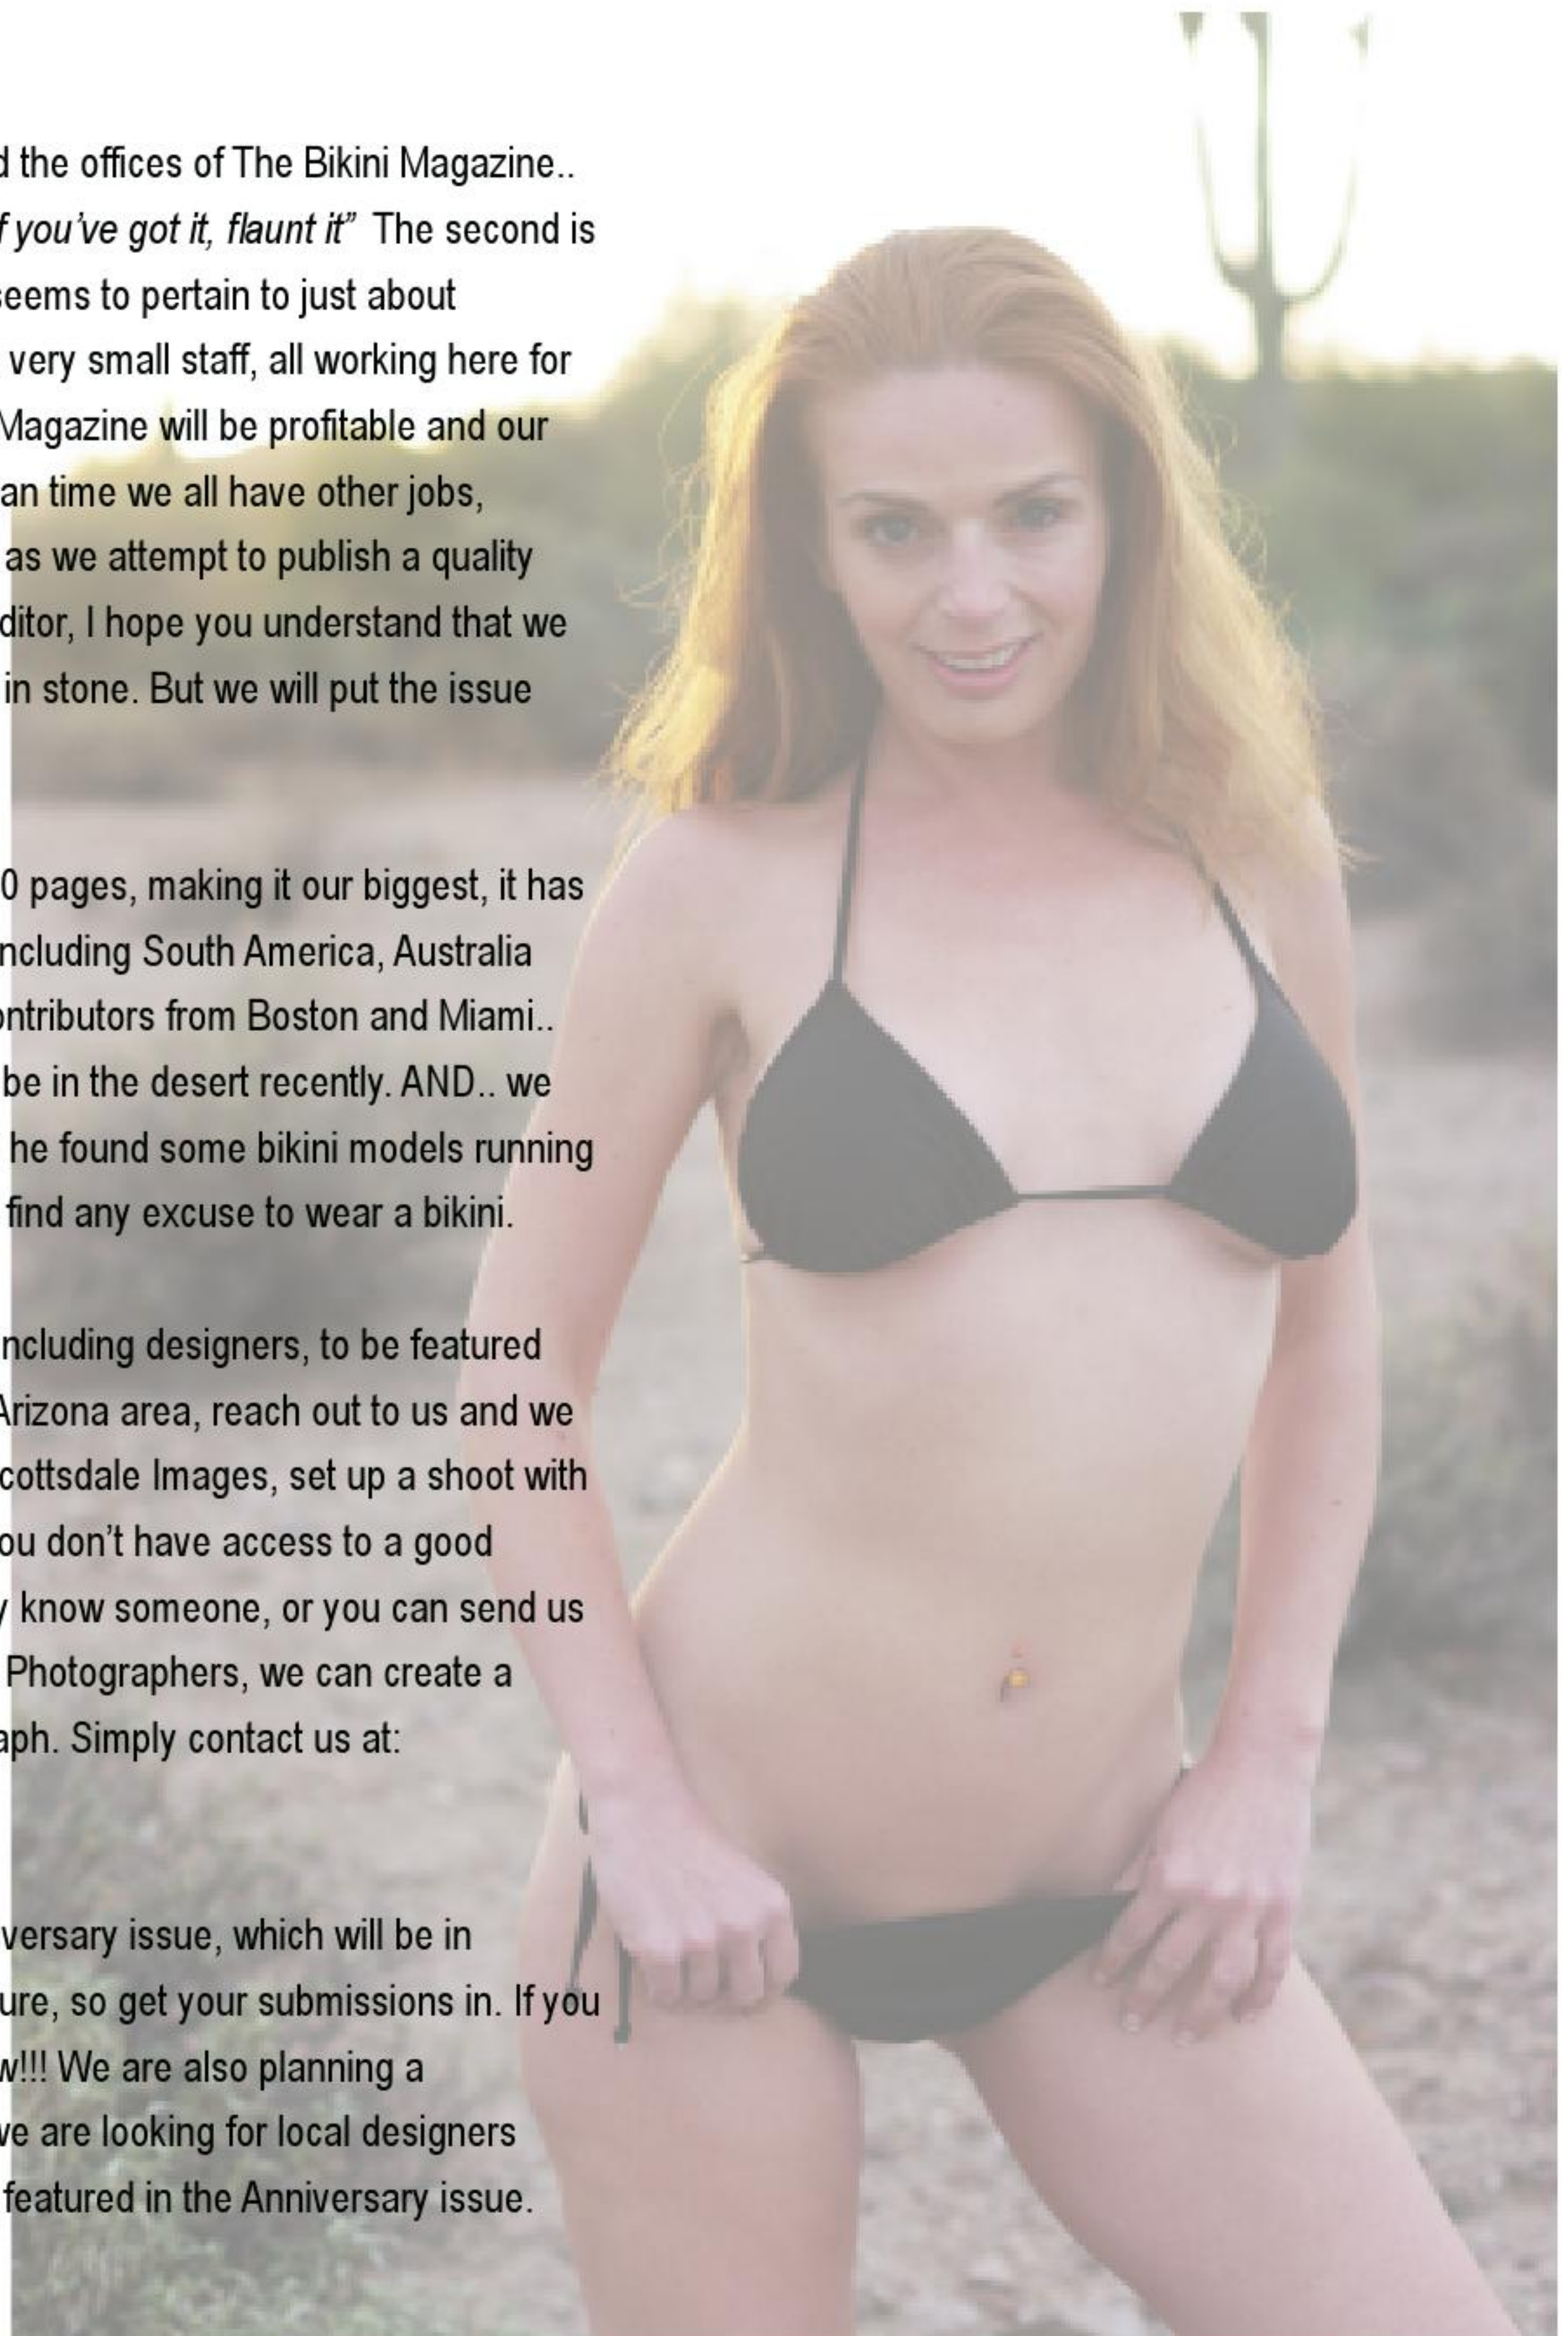

Another issue is in the books.

There are two important mottos tossed around the offices of The Bikini Magazine.. the first being our tag line by Coco Chanel.. "If you've got it, flaunt it" The second is our most used.. "Better late than never" This seems to pertain to just about everything we do here. To be honest we are a very small staff, all working here for the love of a project. We hope one day Bikini Magazine will be profitable and our time and effort will be rewarded, but in the mean time we all have other jobs, projects and lives going on in the background as we attempt to publish a quality periodical that our readers can enjoy. So as Editor, I hope you understand that we have deadlines; however, they are not written in stone. But we will put the issue out.. Better late than never!!!

This issue has many firsts, it is our first over 60 pages, making it our biggest, it has the most contributors from around the globe, including South America, Australia (again), and the UK. Not to mention the US contributors from Boston and Miami.. along with an Atlanta model that happened to be in the desert recently. AND.. we sent our staff photographer to a Junkyard and he found some bikini models running around there... here in Arizona, the ladies will find any excuse to wear a bikini.

We are always looking for more contributors, including designers, to be featured with us. If you are a model or designer in the Arizona area, reach out to us and we can arrange to have our staff photographer, Scottsdale Images, set up a shoot with you. If you're a designer anywhere else and you don't have access to a good photographer and models, contact us, we may know someone, or you can send us some suits and we'll shoot them here for you. Photographers, we can create a feature about you, or the models you photograph. Simply contact us at: bikini magazineus@gmail.com

We are counting down the months till our anniversary issue, which will be in September, this will be a collectors issue for sure, so get your submissions in. If you want to advertise in this issue, let us know now!!! We are also planning a celebration/bikini show later this Spring, and we are looking for local designers interested in showing off their work and being featured in the Anniversary issue.

Louise Cooper

Louise Cooper began modeling in early 2012 when she worked up the courage to participate in a local competition, and she hasn't stopped competing since! Now she participates in photo shoots regularly with various photographers around Australia. From this, her confidence and modeling ability have grown significantly since that first experience.

Some of her bigger achievements so far include being selected to compete at a national level in the 2012 International Lingerie Model Search and the 2013 Swimsuit USA Model Search. She was named the 2012-13 Port Macquarie Race Course Ambassador after winning that competition, along with becoming the 2013 Face of JF Designs (a Newcastle swimwear brand). She has also been published in the 2014 'Bronzed Aussie Girls' Calendar available in Australia. In her spare time, Louise gains experience doing paid promotional/waitress work, which she says she really enjoys.

Sapphire STORM a British pint-sized mixed race ball of energy and enthusiasm has been modeling for over 4 years! She is oriental, black and white giving her a unique and very distinctive look. Her skin is caramel colored and her hair dark brown with chunks of green. She has 9 piercings and no tattoos. Born and bred in the UK, she has plans to one day move to Australia, home of finding Nemo! Her specialties include classic art nude, fashion and beauty. She has traveled to France, Spain, Ireland, and all over the UK for her modeling. And has been published worldwide in magazines such as BIZARRE, NUTS, ELITE ONLINE, RYZE-UP etc.

Makeup by Katrina T MUA*

Mostly though, she enjoys photo-shoots and thrives on being the center of attention. Modeling is very seriously to her and she always brings her A GAME to every shoot. Having curves in all the right places is plus even though being one of the smallest models around at only 5ft! Although her huge personality more than makes up for her height! Sapphire has walked Alternative Fashion Week 2013 which showed everyone how petite models can work it just as well (if not better) than the stereotypical catwalk model. She also a agency signed and has a fan base of over 10,000; and is at University studying Psychology. Her interests include dancing, animals, socializing, clubbing, philosophy and psychology. Her aspirations are to get a number of covers in well-known successful magazines as well as to travel to other areas of the world to model, such as Japan, AUS, Germany and maybe Hawaii. Sapphire wants to be known for her edgy, versatile and artistic work which tries to fight the radical inequality which encompasses the model industry. She is a semi-pro Hip-hop/street dancer as well as a keen raver, who also enjoys video games and long rides on her 125cc motorbike, even in the rain.

Martin Enterprises/ Martin Robinson*

Sapphire modeled Fetasia Latex in 2013 and this was a defining event in her career “all alternative models model latex and finally after nearly 4 years I got to as well even though I am tiny!” She is passionate and dedicated, friendly and creative, and has never had a photographer be disappointed or not enjoy shooting her. She hopes to create more beautiful work and inspire more people, showing them that ANYONE can model, no matter what color, height, modifications, size or hair color! “The most fun music video shoot I did was with Daniel Beddingfield, me and the other girls had to act like crazed fans and literally rugby tackle Daniel and RIP OFF all his clothes while also kissing him and acting aroused. It was a CRAZY day but was so much fun. I was even happier when the video was released on YouTube and I found that even though I didn’t make the lead, I was still heavily featured.” For anyone who wants to witness the chaos it’s called “Rocks off” by Daniel Beddingfield”. Sapphire is 21 (nearly 22) but does not see her model career ending any time soon so watch out for this one!

Irene Savona

As a child Irene was often found posing around the house for her mother or strutting fiercely down the hallway in her grandmother's heels and dresses. At the age of fourteen Irene started modeling professionally for Via Entertainment doing promotional work and portfolio development. After working with the agency for two years she decided she wanted more and ventured into the world of modeling on her own with her mother by her side as her hair and makeup artist.

In addition to modeling, Irene holds a deep passion for musical theater and martial arts. Throughout junior high and high school she participated in a variety of musicals and short plays, including "Songs for a New World" through Childs Play Inc...Additionally, she competed in Speech and Debate competitions throughout high school winning her several awards in duo acting and duo interpretation. Irene has been practicing Traditional Tae Kwon Do for over fifteen years and continues to develop her skills. She is always looking to do a martial arts photo shoot (hint hint).

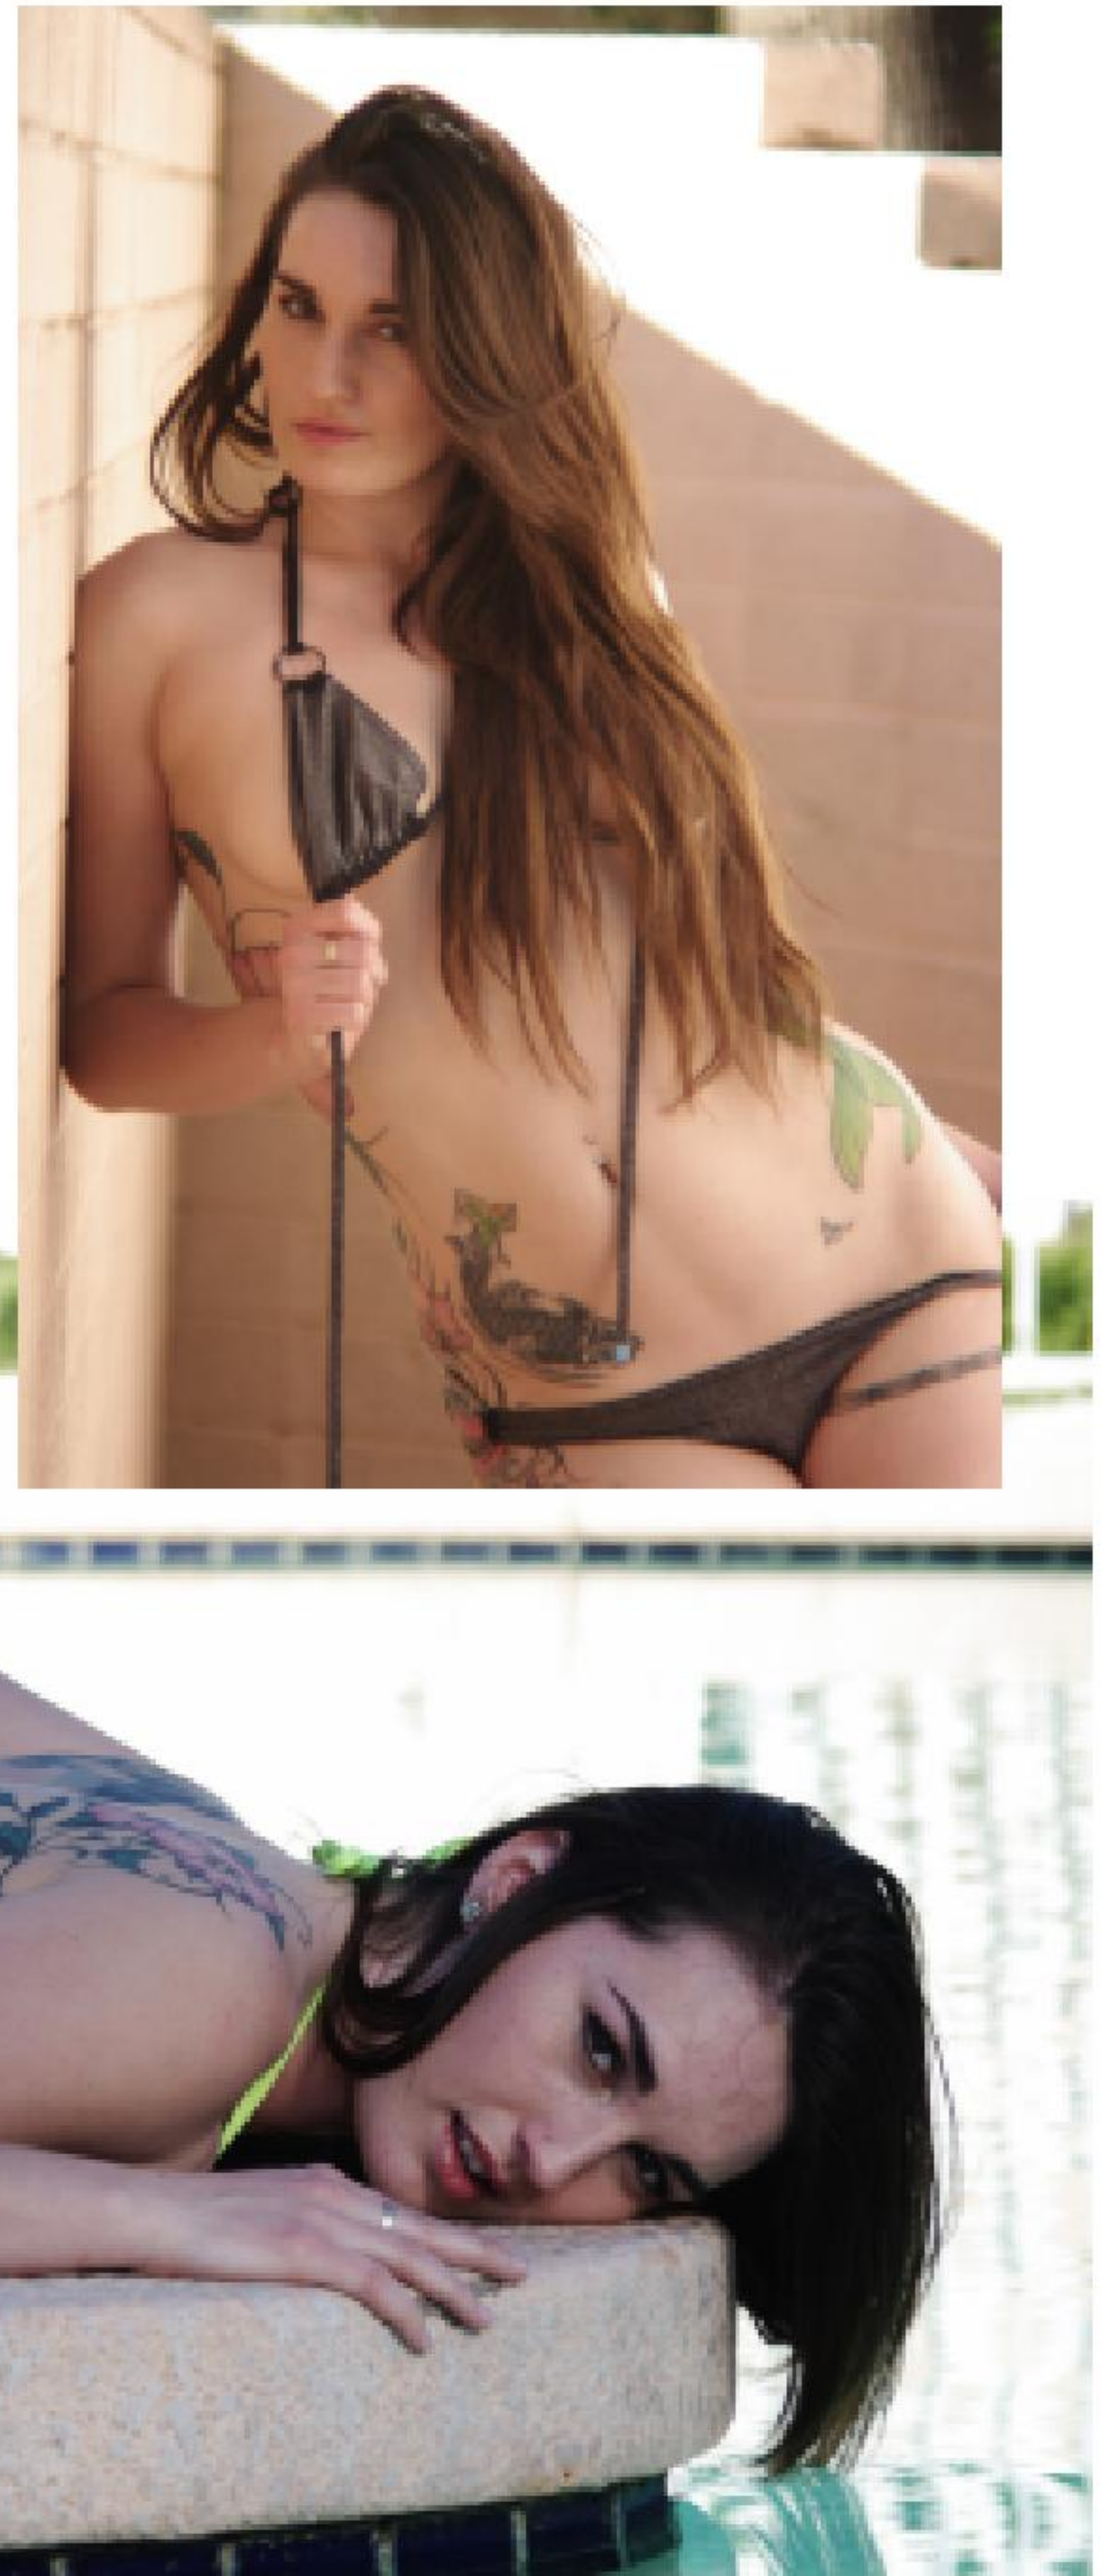

Now after taking a three year break from modeling Irene is back and ready to make magic. She most enjoys shooting alternative and fantasy concepts, though she is no stranger to commercial and fashion looks. "Anything that makes the viewer stop and think about the blurred lines of reality in the photo" is her prized shoots. Irene believes that beauty can reach beyond the traditional pretty face and body to a deeper level of displaying an individual as they are in their true form. When looking through her portfolio there is quite the mixture of concepts ranging from traditional glamour to disturbing horror. She is always looking to expand her portfolio with something she hasn't shot before in an attempt to push the limits of her modeling ability. Besides focusing on her own growth, Irene has begun helping girls develop their own portfolios and is offering coaching to new models here in Arizona.

Photography by Scottsdale Images

She hopes to give prospective models a head start towards reaching their dreams of becoming a professional model. When coaching she reminds every girl of a simple truth that she holds herself to; “no matter how many years you model, no matter how good you think you have gotten, you can always reach a new level of ability. You can always grow and learn from others, weather it be a makeup artist, photographer or fellow model. As a model you should always be reaching out and looking for inspiration, for ways to become better than you were the day before.” Recently Irene has decided to pick up a camera of her own and is spending more and more time behind the lens. “Looking through the other side of the lens and spending time editing has changed my perspective on modeling. Photographers put a lot of work into their trade that I think goes unnoticed. Now, more than ever, I strive to create an image that requires as little post as possible. I try to provide the perfect capture in the moment so that it can stand as is.”

Claudia Rivarelli

Claudia Rivarelli was born in Montevideo, Uruguay, making her the first South American model to be featured in Bikini Magazine. At the young age of 6 she started skating because of problem in her legs. Thanks to this, she feels her legs are fantastic today. Then, when she was 16, she began designing clothing and is still an active fashion designer. Claudia has always been athletic and likes many sports, in particular, fitness and martial arts (kick boxing) along with cross-fit. She has studied at the local University (Communication Area 3 years) and has taken 2 years of graphic design at Bios University. She speaks English, Spanish, Portuguese and Italian.

Her first taste of modeling came at the age 18. Starting out as a runway model but she really didn't like the slim body required for that. She had always felt she looked better with a more sporty and muscular physique. Currently, she is a sportive model and does photo shoots in Uruguay, Brazil and other surrounding countries.

Diana Phillips was born in a small beautiful Mexican beach town on the pacific side called Mazatlan. She enjoyed growing up by the beach and surrounded with loving family and friends. Starting her modeling career in her hometown when she was about 15 years old when a scout from one of the few modeling agencies there saw me and invited me to work with them. Diana has been doing all kinds of modeling work since then and couple years after finishing college she moved to Florida. She started working on a corporate career leaving modeling aside for a short time but that didn't last too long since she has a big passion for modeling. So it wasn't a hard decision to go back and do what she loves. Doing it since then working fulltime with national campaigns, runways, print adds, commercial, film etc...

Diana is a very positive and passionate woman; the word "I can't" is not in her vocabulary. She believes everything is possible if you wanted bad enough. She has found the biggest satisfaction to be when she makes people happy and when she helps others that can never repay her back. Trying to do something good everyday as a small as it may be makes her very thankful for everything and everybody around her.

Bikini Model

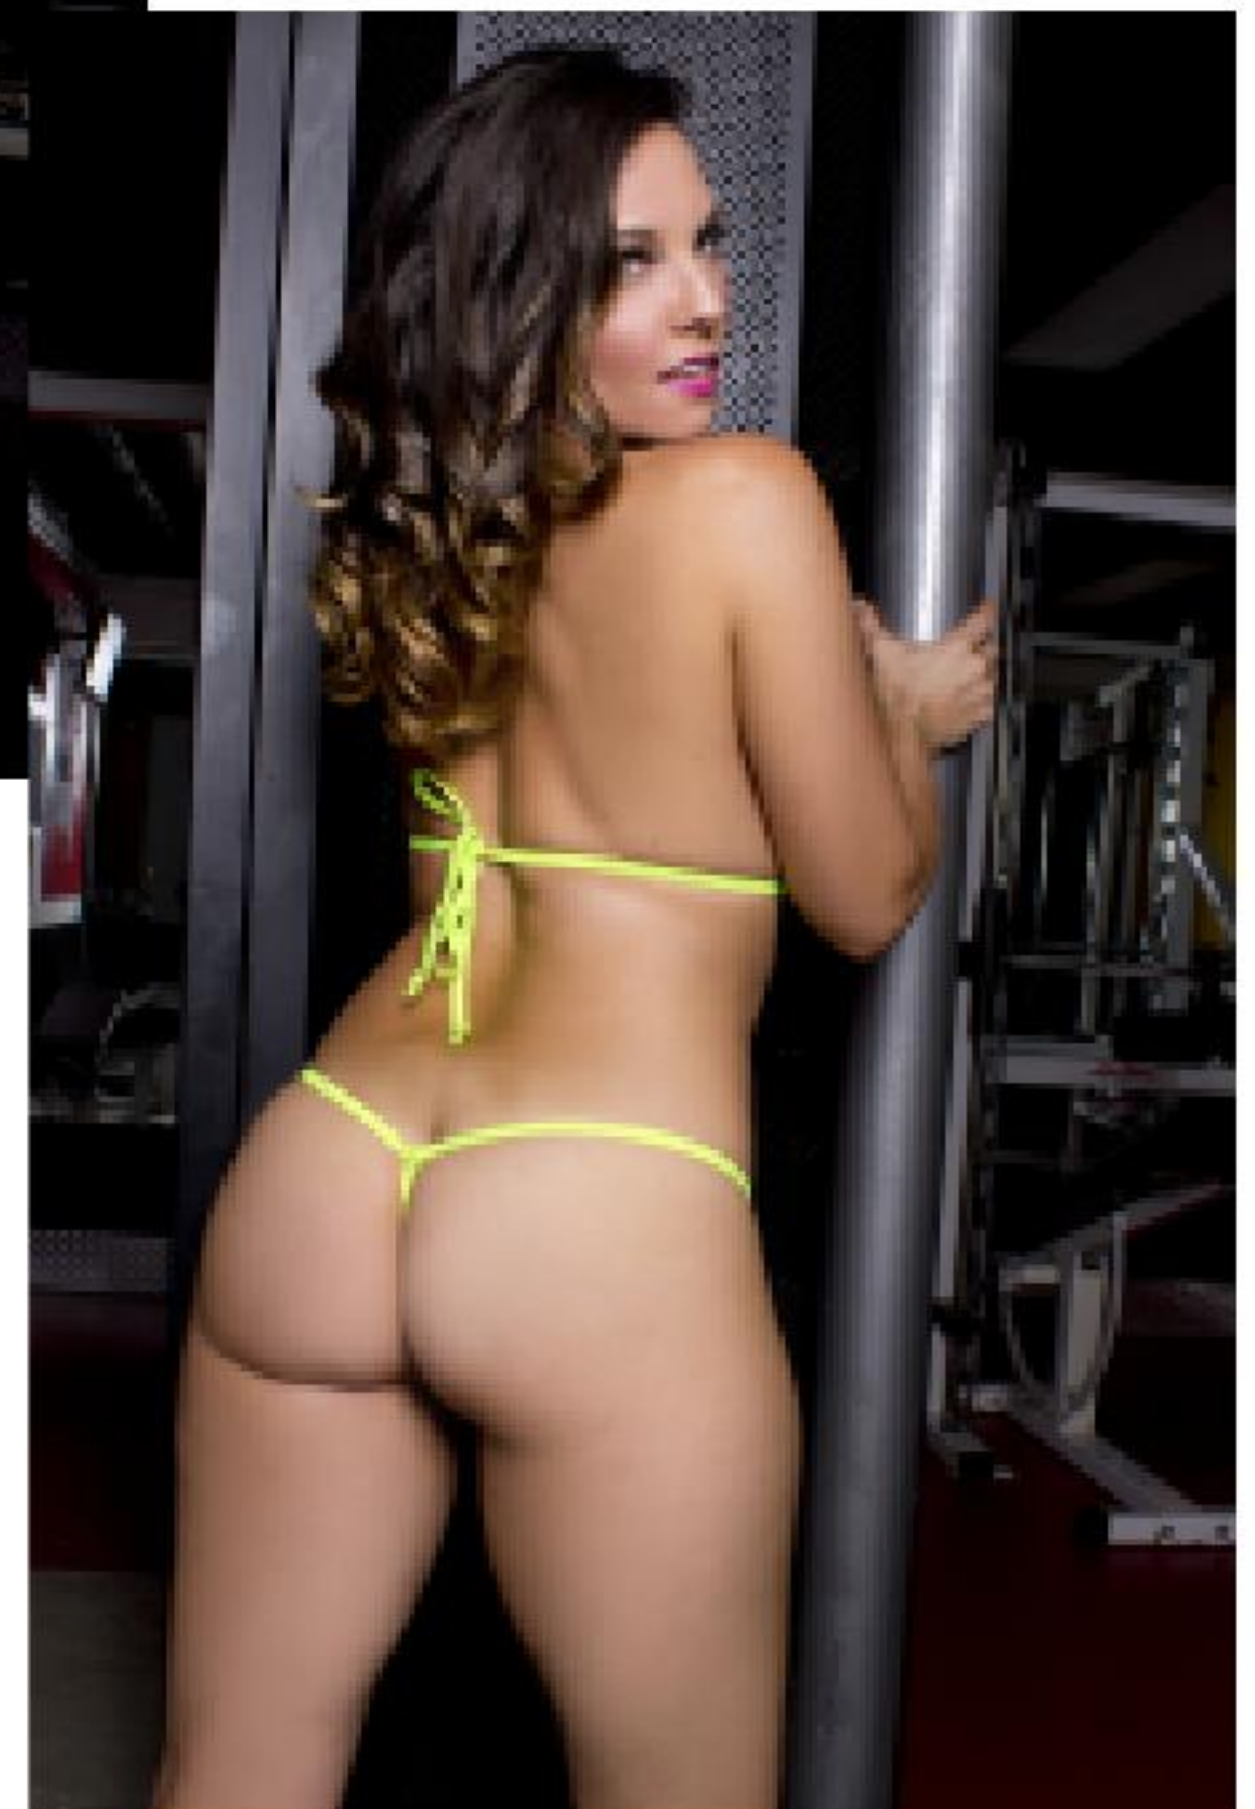

*Nicole
Ferreira*

Nicole Ferreira is a published Playboy Special Editions, Fitness and Glamour Model. She has been published over 100 times in both newsstand and independently owned magazines, including 14 covers and lucky enough to have appeared in 4 separate Playboy magazines, including Playboy's Vixens (two separate editions), Sexy Girls Next Door and Hot Shots. In addition, she's been published in numerous newsstand fitness and glamour magazines, including Planet Muscle, Physique Magazine, Musclemag, American Curves and more.

Nicole has brains to go with her beauty, having a Bachelor's Degree in Psychology and a Master's Degree in Social Work. She worked as a Clinical Director for a few years but wasn't very happy there. She really wanted to try a fitness competition. Having performed as a dancer and cheerleader in her youth, and was missing that physical fitness aspect. So she decided to enter a fitness competition, and modeling was the result of that.

*Photography by Lady Lux Productions
Hair and Make-Up: Chingching NG
Bikini Designer: Seeums Bikinis*

Her start in modeling came in 2002 at the National Fitness and Bikini America Pageants. She was standing in line at registration and I was asked by American Curves magazine to do a test shoot. That first shoot was her first 8 page layout in a newsstand magazine. She got hooked! In 2005, Nicole summoned enough courage to attend a Playboy casting call in New York City, where she was selected to shoot for Playboy Special Editions. Shooting with Playboy, to this day, is her personal favorite and best modeling accomplishment.

She is also happily married and a proud mom of a mathematically gifted 6 year old boy (he's in MENSA - high IQ society). While continuing to model, she home schools her son, and balances a beautiful family life. Most people don't realize her true age, as she looks younger then what her birth certificate says. Working out since a teenager, a balanced diet, staying out of the sun and overall happiness are the keys to looking great.
