A Helluva a City... and a Helluva Cocktail

So one of the things I am afforded in my job is the opportunity to visit and explore some amazing cities. And of them all, one of my favorite recurring visits is to New York City. They don't call it the greatest city in the world for nothing, 'ya know? I'm always asked, before I go: "What are you going to do? Visit the Empire State Building? A Broadway show? Hit the museums?"

No, no and nope. I never need a plan. I could spend a week just walking the streets. The sights, sounds, and hustle and bustle ensure that you never get bored. This is particularly true during the fall months, when the perfect weather combined with the boundless energy of the city just make you feel alive. Of course, it doesn't hurt that there is also an endless list of great cocktail bars and restaurants, where you can stop in to whet your whistle and enjoy the local culture. It should be no surprise then that this issue's truly great classic cocktail shares the city's name; the Manhattan.

Said to have been created in the late 1800's at the Manhattan Club, this classic combines spice, bite and sweet in a harmonious blend that just echoes history and images of gangsters and days of prohibition with every sip. A popular story says it was created at the club for Winston Churchill's mother, who was a regular there. This has been widely disputed though, as she was supposedly back in England giving birth to young Winston when this claim was made. Who knows? Maybe the Manhattan was the anesthesia of choice for births back then. I'm sure views on drinking and pregnancy were different back in the day. Anyway, I digress. Let's get to the drink!

Pocktailins

The Big Apple

Now many purists argue that The Manhattan is one of the greatest cocktails of all time (it is) and smirk at the idea of changing it up at all. In the spirit of this fall issue, we are going to do just that. Try this little variation:

- 2 oz. Rye
- 1 oz. apple juice syrup (combine 1 cup good apple cider I used Simply Apple[™] – with 5 tablespoons Demerara sugar crystals in a saucepan over medium heat until sugar dissolves, continue to simmer and reduce on low for about 15 minutes)
- 3 or 4 dashes of Maple Bitters (if you can't find them, angostura will do just fine but a quick google search will lead to all kinds of different bitters you can play with)

Prepare the same way as the classic but hold the cherry. Throw in a cinnamon stick you can use as a stirrer to complete the seasonal theme and you are ready to sit back, relax and watch the leaves change color with some football on the tube. Makes for a great day!

INNOCENT magazine

The Manhattan

- 2 oz. Rye (you can use different whiskeys and even bourbon but Rye is the original call and it adds a great spice to the drink)
- 1 oz. sweet red vermouth
- 3 or 4 dashes of Angostura bitters
- Stir these ingredients over ice until well chilled and strain into a chilled lowball glass.
- Toss in a Maraschino cherry and you are done!

Yes it's just that simple!

On a scale of 1 to 10 how innocent are you? (1 being not Innocent at all and 10 being very Innocent) 4

What is your occupation? Model

Where did you grow up?

What's your best memory of having grown up there? In a small town in Pennsylvania. My best memories were playing with my siblings in our back yard and having scavenger hunts in the summer.

How would you like to be remembered?

I'd like to be remembered as someone who was successful, driven, kind, witty, and humble. Someone who surprised everyone who met them.

What are some of your interests or hobbies?

My interests and hobbies are traveling, yoga, hanging with my friends and family, going to the movies, reading and going to the beach !

What is your biggest regret in life? I don't have any regrets.

What was your most embarrassing moment? When I was in high school at a party and started dancing, and my pants split open. I was mortified.

If you could spend a week anywhere in the world, where would it be?

I'd love to spend a week in Fiji or Ibiza.

What's the best job you've ever had?

The best job I ever had was working at little kids birthday parties as Disney characters, Belle and Snow White were usually the ones I'd end up playing.

What's the worst job you've ever had?

The worst job I ever had was bartending at a restaurant during the day when it was dead.

If you could have any job in the world what would it be? If I could have any job in the world, I'd probably be a successful actress in tons of movies.

What is your favorite color? My favorite color is red.

Do you have any phobias? I am afraid of heights, clowns, and sharks.

What are your top 5 favorite movies?

True Romance, The Life of David Gale, The 25th Hour, Little Rascals and The Great Gatsby (original movie)

Who is your favorite Disney princess? My favorite Disney princess is Snow White.

How did you get started with modeling?

I got started with modeling by accident. Last year I did a photoshoot in Philadelphia for fun, posted the pictures on Facebook, and within a few days a few different men's websites had published them and I got a lot of followers on my accounts. I decided to keep going with it and set up more shoots, contacted different websites to do interviews on me and built up an audience like that. My first shoot was March 2013 and I moved to Los Angeles on December 27, 2013.

How long have you been a model?

I have only been a model for about a year and a half now.

Tell us about your favorite shoot:

My favorite shoot was honestly the one we did for Innocent Magazine. The photographer Gary Westby, the makeup and hair stylists, etc... were all just amazing. We had so much fun and everyone kind of collectively came together to bring this vision to life. When you have that kind of energy on set it makes you do so much better and the pictures come out 20x more amazing than they would have otherwise.

What other models do you look up to, stalk or are secretly in love with?

The other models I look up to are Adriana Lima, Allesandra Ambrosio, all the VS models pretty much, but my favorite model is Kate Upton. I like how her career progressed and she has the career I want. Guess, Swimsuit Illustrated, then transitioned into acting. That's my ultimate career dream.

What would you like to be known for?

I want to be a household name. I want to be a brand. Model-Actress-Icon. I want to be a Heidi Klum or Kate Upton and build my own empire.

What kind of personality do you have? How would your friends describe you?

My personality is so surprising to other people. People in general have misconceptions about models, which I find a lot of the time are false. When people get to know me they're surprised how nice and funny I am. I do a lot of impressions of celebrities and certain comedic skits like Chris Farley's "van down by the river "skit which shocks people because it's not a skit you do and look attractive in any way, haha, but I don't care, I think it's hilarious and I can do it verbatim. I'm also a very private person for as much as I am in the public eye. I very rarely go out, don't have many friends, which is how I've always been. I have a few close friends, a large family (1 of 7) and other professionals who I confide in, like photographers, directors, stylists, etc. who have the same drive as I do and don't care about clubbing every night. I feel like that stuff only distracts me.

How long is your tongue?

I've never measured my tongue. Is there a way to do that? I can, however, curl my tongue into a 4 leaf clover which is always impressive to people haha.

Are your boobs real?

I could answer this question so easily, but I was told that what people don't know, interests them much more.

Do you ever go out in public without a bra? I go out in public without a bra way more than I should haha.

What do you wear when you want to get attention?

To get attention I'll either wear a black short dress and heels, or a tight white tee and some skinny jeans, and heels. The simple, yet sexy looks always attract me more attention than the super glamorous and bright get-ups.

What do you get complimented on the most?

I get complimented the most on my face or eyes. That's why the size of my boobs doesn't affect my image of myself. I know a lot of girls who have large chests who are always paranoid that guys only like them for their boobs, but I've always been complimented on my facial features since I was a little girl, which makes the boobs just a backup for me to use! Haha jk

What are your favorite features and body parts? My favorite features and body parts are my eyes, stomach, and feet. I have really small toes.

What would you change about your body if you could? If I could change anything about my body it would be my neck. I wish it were slightly longer.

"I want to be a household name. I want to be a brand. Model- Actress-Icon"

EMERGENICY

At what age did you lose your virginity? I was almost 18 when I lost my virginity to my high school sweetheart.

What do you like most about sex?

I'm a serial monogamist. I've always had long term boyfriends, so what I like most about sex is how you think about this person all day and then take out those thoughts on them in person at night. One night stands are the most unappealing thing to me because there's no connection beforehand. Passion for another person can't be built up that quickly in my opinion.

Do you like it rough or sensual? I like it sensual and intense, but not rough.

Have you ever had a 3-some? Nope never had a 3-some!

Do you have any favorite toys? Haha some things aren't meant to be shared. What is the craziest place you've had sex? Craziest place I've had sex is in the back of an Uber while the driver was still driving us.

Dose size matter?

I think as long as you're into a person then size doesn't matter.

What is something that never fails to turn you on?

When your man comes home from work in a button down and has that really masculine energy about him, like he just worked all day and loosens his tie up a bit, sits down and wants a cold beer, to me that's hot. It's that old school vision of sexy that reminds me of black and white movies, and is such a turn on to me.

Do you watch porn?

Anyone who says they don't watch porn, are probably lying.

What are your favorite sexual positions? In bed and in my career, I like to be on top.

I don't regret anything. Every experience has made me who I am today. Looking back, I wish I had listened to my Mom more as a teenager. It would have saved me a lot of trouble, but that's how you learn right?

What was your most embarrassing moment?

First day of freshman orientation at college my roommates and I were sitting in a mandatory assembly. We were bored and wanted to sneak out and explore the campus. They got up with me behind them, hurried out of the row and down the aisle. Unfortunately, I had on brand new shoes with no tread on them so when I turned out of the row to run down the aisle I slipped and smashed into the wall. Everyone turned around, even the speaker paused as I scrambled out the door. That week multiple people recognized me as the girl who wiped out running out of orientation.

Wine, like coffee, is a beverage that somehow inspires romantic tinge. Not "romantic" in the relational sense, but in that intimate, humane way that brings about affection in the queerest of inanimate objects. Down throughout the ages, wine has inspired all sorts of feelings, touching both culture and lifestyle. At least among those who know how to appreciate it, wine, my dear, is no ordinary drink; Least of all should it be approached ordinarily.

ON THE APPRECIATION OF Wine

The origin of wine, unlike the origin of coffee, is still in dispute. All that is known is that wine was first alluded to in old Grecian texts and artifacts. It was first thoroughly recorded in ancient Egypt, long after the Greeks. And to the Greeks, wine was a sacrament, represented no less by an actual god, Dionysius. However, no proof has been found of wine being made anywhere else, and vice versa. In time (say around the first millennium), even the Chinese took a liking to wine; though they created theirs out of rice and not grapes. But this only goes to show that wine, despite its source, is near-universal, even in the face of culture and geography.

Coffee spread by word-of-mouth.

Yes. Wine conjures images of rich snobs and bored housewives. This is all true, if only because rich snobs and bored housewives also drink the drink along with everybody else. Wine is for anyone with the passion to learn how to drink it. And why learn? Well, here's the thing: for every kind of wine there awaits a soul.

The first step to discovering your ideal bottle is in purchasing it. Be warned: wine is a Veblen good. Thorstein Veblen coined the term to describe how the desirability of a product will go up when its price goes up. In other words, it is expensive because people want it, and people want it because it is expensive. Expensive wines are priced in the similar way of any other brand-name good, for its recognition and reputation. One can argue for miles about the varied qualities of winemakers themselves. Truth is that it all boils down to a matter of personal preference. Bad wines and good wines are still outstanding; and an educated taste is still worth acquiring. What matters is that you simply hit the sweet spot in a connoisseur's refined taste, to know the proverbial difference, all the while having elbow room to retreat into yourself, into your own ultimate definition of "good" wine; be it expensive or cheap.

Oh yes, before I forget. Looking, smelling, tasting, and swirling wine comprise the rest of the wine connoisseur's method of judging. Look through your glass. The wine should be cloudy with sediment, or transparent with little to none. Then smell the wine however you like, from afar or with a deep sniff inside the glass itself. And finally, sip it, lightly, and hold it over your tongue. Breathe in a whiff of air into your mouth, awkwardly, as air allows the wine to get bolder in taste. Swallow. No, it's not over yet. Try to detect any aftertaste, whether on the tongue or the throat. And in the end, was every step pleasurable, according to your own standards?

And as such, wine is not a drink that is simply drunk, consumed, but held on the brink of the soul, and appreciated.

Photography - Zed Saeed Zedsaeedphoto.com Instagram.com/ZedSaeedPhoto Twitter.com/ZedSaeedPhoto On a scale of 1 to 10 how innocent are you? (1 being not Innocent at all and 10 being very Innocent) 1I'm very guilty LOL

Where did you attend college? The Universe is my University

Where did you grow up?

What's your best memory of having grown up there?

New Hampshire. Growing up I went to a private school in the small town of Sanbornton, New Hampshire. The school was located on an ashram that frequently held meditation retreats and some of my best memories were from going to school. I enrolled in the first grade, graduated from their high school and attended every year in between. That school shaped my character and has influenced how I interact with the world around me.

How would you like to be remembered?

I would like to be remembered as being compassionate. Compassion is the strongest quality a human being can poses and demonstrates one's experiences in life. The more experiences you have the more likely you are to know what someone else is going through.

What are some of your interests and hobbies?

When I'm not working (which is seldom) I really enjoy my time outside. LA has a fair amount to offer in terms of hiking and beach days. If I have a day off you can find me at Zuma beach in Malibu and that's a promise LOL.

What is your biggest regret in life?

While I take full responsibility for my actions and stand behind them, there is one opportunity I threw away that I regret whole heartedly. I lived in New York before I moved to LA and was cast as the lead in an independent feature film. It was a wonderful story and my co-stars were tremendously talented. At the time we had been in rehearsals for what seemed like a year and I was ready, REALLY ready to move to LA. So when our shoot dates got pushed back I made the decision to move and leave behind one of the biggest opportunities I had at that time.

What's the best job you've ever had?

As many of you already know I'm a twin, but what you may not know is that my sister is a published playwright. She's written long and short plays that have graced the stages on Off Broadway, Off Off Broadway, Miami and Los Angeles. Over the years she has won numerous awards and all the while was developing specs and scripts. A few years ago she wrote a feature length film and decided to produce it as a non union independent. I had the good fortune of being cast in a strong supporting role, and that was by far the best job I've ever had. It was a dream come true getting to work closely with my sister as she directed it as well. That project has remained my proudest acting moment to date.

If you could have any job in the world what would it be?

I would be doing exactly what I'm doing now but on a much larger scale. I'm getting there, one day at a time

What are your 5 favorite movies?

El Cid, True Romance, Paper Moon, Burn After Reading (anything Coen Brothers) and The Grand Budapest Hotel

What other models do you look up to, stalk or are secretly in love with?

To this day I'm still obsessed with the supermodels of the '90's. Seriously where are all the stunning classic beauties in the world today? Why are they so hard to find. I like a tall, slim feminine figure and a classically beautiful face. As far as I'm concerned the world has been lacking beauty since Cindy Crawford, Niki Taylor, Claudia Schiffer, Naomi Campbell, Amber Valletta, Shalom Harlow, Beri Smither, Stephanie Seymour, and Christy Turlington retired. Thank god for Gisele Bundchen but c'mon, she's only one woman and she's holding the standard all by herself, where are all the others? LOL

How did you get started in modeling?

I had a strong desire at a young age to be an actress. I wanted to move to Hollywood, California even before I knew what that meant. I used to bug my Mom regarding my acting dreams and she assured me that best way to be a successful actress was to be a successful model first. I learned quickly that the only common ground the two fields shared was the presence of a camera, but by that time I had fallen in love with said camera and the camera seemed to like me too.

What would you like to be known for?

Making statements. We are all vocal creatures in nature, and being in an artistic field where every fiber of your being is a conduit of expression, what will you choose to say? What matters to you? What does the world need to hear? I have a lot to say, and I fearlessly lay out those statements fluidly so they may be captured in an image. It's important to me that my work reflect the strength and determination I internally walk around with on a day to day basis. I would like to be known for boldly embracing the boundaries of what is even considered beautiful.

What kind of personality do you have? How would your friends describe you?

My personality is quiet and reserved. Too many people talk to talk, or talk out of nervousness, or out of feeling uncomfortable with silence. I firmly believe if you have nothing to say, don't say anything. And, likewise, if you HAVE something to say-SAY IT. My friends would describe me as a woman of little words, and whose actions speak the loudest.

What is your favorite drink to order on a date? Wine... Red or White, whatever goes with dinner.

What do you look for in an ideal boyfriend or partner?

Kindness. Looks and money come and go but a true demonstration of character is in how you treat those around you. That for me is the most important quality a man can have.

What are your favorite features and body parts?

When I look in the mirror I'm most pleased with my abs and shoulders, they reflect a lifelong commitment to health and fitness. My favorite feature would have to be my smile.

What would you change about your body if you could? I would make my skin sun damage resistant. I need the sun like a fish needs water, and since moving to LA my obsession with sun and the beach has proven to be more damaging than anything else.

Do you ever go out in public without a bra? When you're built like I am bras are optional and never a necessity.

What do you wear when you want to get attention? 100% of the time I get more attention than want and desire. I dress down in order to feel more private in public. What do you get complimented on the most? My legs.

How long is your tongue? Long enough ;)

What age did you lose your virginity? 16

What do you like most about sex? My partner

Where is the craziest place you've ever had sex? On the porch

Have you ever had a 3 some? Not yet

Do you have any favorite toys? There's no better toy than the body of a partner

What is something that never fails to turn you on? The right music.

Do you have any special talents? I'm a closet gymnast

Do you like oral sex, giving or receiving? Yes to both but only on Tuesdays

The secret formula to successful online dating

If it seems as if everyone you know is online dating, you're not alone. According to recent surveys, more than 40m single people out of 54m singles in the US have signed up to an online dating site such as Match.com and eHarmony. In the UK, 9.1m people have used an online dating site and one in every five new committed relationships starts online.

With more users, comes greater demand for these sites to match the right people together. But it seems as if hooking you up with the right person is less about what you say you want and more about how you, or others like you, behave online.

To gain a little insight into what makes people tick when they look for romance online, we've studied the behavior of 200,000 people on Baihe.com, a dating site in China that has more than 60m registered users. We found that people are in many ways predictable in their dating habits but they also often bend their own rules. To make good matches, sites need to look at this rule bending when making recommendations.

Not that picky

When a user creates a new account on a dating site, they may specify what kind of partner they are looking for. A user might say they are looking for someone in their early 20s with at least a bachelor degree and a certain minimum monthly income.

They don't actually stick as rigorously to their preferences as they might have thought they would though. While they are more likely to respond to first contact from someone who matches their original wish list, we found that 70% of the messages sent by women and 55% of those sent by men were to communicate with people who did no meet their original criteria. Women, it seems, are more flexible than men about matching people to their criteria.

Living up to stereotypes

Many online daters complain about the experience – women bemoan the fact that men look for younger dates and men criticize women for being too concerned by money and education. Unfortunately, our results show users living up to these stereotypes.

Profile photos affect men and women differently too. While women with a larger number of photos are more likely to get messages and replies to their communications, the number of photos on a man's profile has little bearing on the number of contacts or replies he receives.

When it comes to location, long distances do not bode well when it comes to dating, although women are more likely to send and reply to messages across city boundaries.

Predictable animals

With information like this, dating sites can track your behavior and predict which dates might be right for you, possibly even better than you can. In a recent study we used machine learning methods to test out how accurate these predictions can be. We took factors such as a user's age, height, location, income and education level as well as their activity, popularity on the site and their similarity with other users in terms of taste and attractiveness to others and were able to tell whether a user would reply to another's initial contact message with 75% accuracy. We also found that women were most concerned with age, income, house, children and parent status, while men didn't show a clear trend.

Romance by numbers

This all makes it sound very easy and might give hope to someone looking for love online. But internet dating is not like a recommendation on a shopping site. To suggest a book to a customer based on their previous purchases is a single directional process but a dating site needs to match users who might have a mutual interest in each other so they are more likely to hit it off.

Now that there are so many sites to choose from, they must have a good system in place or they will simply lose custom to their rivals.

We think that collaborative filtering algorithms are a good option for this. We devised a reciprocal recommendation system to match users of mutual interest according to content-based algorithms, which are based on factors that include a user's age, education and income – and another, collaborative filtering-style algorithm, which is based on prior communications: both of the user and of other users with similar interests and attractiveness. We found the latter much more successful. Collaborative filtering algorithms not only learn the preferences of an online dater but also take information from the behavior of other similar users. Given that we have a tendency to make choices other than what we have predicted for ourselves in our stated preferences, this is a much more dynamic method.

Online dating is becoming a multi-billion-dollar industry so sites need to be better than ever at suggesting potential dates for their users. If you find yourself constantly going on bad dates, maybe it's time to switch to a site that uses a better algorithm.

On a scale of 1 to 10 how innocent are you? (1 being not Innocent at all and 10 being very Innocent) I'd like to think I'm pretty innocent... Maybe a five? I'm a good girl, but I'm also a shameless flirt and I love that about myself.

What is your occupation?

I work a full-time desk job, but I won't bore you with those details. Aside from that I work as a freelance model and a promotional model.

Where did you attend college?

I attended the business school at Rutgers in Camden, NJ.

Where did you grow up? What's your best memory of having grown up there?

Originally I lived in Philadelphia. When I was in second grade my family moved in with my grandparents in New Jersey. I don't remember much from Philadelphia, which is why I've always considered myself a Jersey girl. My favorite memory was singing and performing in the backyard. There was a deck off the back of the house and my grandpop would always sit there after work to drink some beers. I would sing and dance for hours and he would encourage me. It was sweet of him to pay attention to what I'm sure was a VERY annoying child at the time!

How would you like to be remembered?

As a caring person who was down to earth, approachable, and kind to everyone she met.

What are some of your interests or hobbies?

I love being outdoors. Hiking, backpacking, the beach... Any thing that keeps me outside is great. Over the Labor Day weekend I went cliff diving in New York. That was amazing. I also enjoy the movies and reading, and of course modeling is one of my favorite pastimes.

Love or Lust?

Love. Lust only lasts about 24 hours for me, then I'm over that person and onto the next one. I need something a little bit more satisfying.

Cash or Credit?

Credit. I don't get rewarded for spending my cash. ;)

Fire or lce? Fire. I like it hot.

Bacon or Sausage? Bacon.

iPhone or Droid? iPhone!!

Heroes or Villains? Heroes

Batman or Superman? Ironman

Books or Movies?

Both. I enjoyed both books and movies, but typically if both exist, the book is better than the movie.

Video or Board Games?

Both! Video games are great to play as a group or alone. I still have my Super Nintendo system and I play it often! Earthbound and Super Mario Brothers are my favorites. Board games are also fun when you've got a good group of people. Pictionary is my favorite and I kick ass at it!

What's the best job you've ever had?

During college, I spent a summer working at a skydiving facility. The days were long, but it was a very laid-back atmosphere and there were always plenty of hot guys to flirt with. And yes – I have been skydiving. Eight times to be exact. ;)

What's the worst job you've ever had?

I worked at Target for a few months, and that was absolutely the worst job ever. They would assign one employee to a huge section, and we were responsible for keeping that section clean. I was responsible for junior's, women's, men's, shoes, and the children's sections... All by myself! To make matters worse, you never got to interact with other people - I don't think I talked to any coworker more than once. I ended up quitting on Halloween so I could take my cousin trick-or-treating.

If you could have any job in the world what would it be?

I would love to sing on Broadway. I've been singing since I was a child (never professionally). I love musicals and being part of one would be a dream come true. I have stage fright, though, so that is something I would need to overcome.

Do you have any phobias?

Not really, although ticks really skeeve me out. The last time I had a tick on me it was on my leg and I freaked out. I wanted someone else to remove it, but they were going to take ten minutes to get to me. I sat down and watched that tick for the whole ten minutes. I was terrified it would disappear and begin feasting on me!

What is your biggest regret in life?

I don't have any regrets. I decided early on in life that I was not going to regret any decision that I made. That doesn't mean that I haven't done anything wrong, but instead of regretting those decisions, I grow and learn from them.

What are your top 5 favorite movies?

Dirty Dancing is my all-time favorite film. I also enjoyed Girls Just Want to Have Fun, The Holiday and The Other Guys. All Disney movies tie for 5th place. ;)

Who is your favorite Disney princess? Belle!

Do you kiss on a first date? Sure. Why not?

Describe your ideal date. Where would you go? What would you do?

Something really laid-back for the first date would be great. This way, it's not too intense. I think a meal followed by the movies would be perfect. That way, if the meal is awkward, you can take solace in the fact that you've got 1.5-2 hours of silence to look forward to. :P

What is your favorite drink to order on a date?

Ice water. Haha! I only drink once or twice a year, so typically I order water with lemon. When I do drink, it's Fireball and hard cider.

INNOCENT

What do you look for in an ideal boyfriend or partner?

He has to be laid-back with a sense of humor. I'm very independent so he has to be independent too and financially fit. He also cannot be jealous, lie or smother me - those are all very unattractive qualities.

Who is your celebrity crush?

I fall in love with characters in movies - not the celebrities who play them - so I'd have to say Jude Law in The Holiday.

Are your boobs real?

Absolutely, and I love them just the way they are!

Do you ever go out in public without a bra? About 60% of the time. Putting a bra on is a hassle!

What do you wear when you want to get attention?

Cleavage. I have great boobs and even better cleavage. When I want to get attention, I wear my favorite push-up bra and a sexy, low-cut shirt.

What do you get complimented on the most?

I get a lot of compliments on my eyes, my smile, and my apparently "perfectly proportioned" body.

What are your favorite features and body parts?

I like my eyes. I like that my collarbone and my hip bones slightly protrude from my skin and I like that I have naturally long finger nails.

What would you change about your body if you could?

The only change I ever made to my body was a scar revision surgery. When I was young I had a heavy tool fall on my face that damaged the skin around my nose. The surgery left scar that connected my cheek and nose, and it was very prominent when I smiled. When I was about 23 I got that corrected. Everything else is 100% natural. I'm sure there are things I would like to improve through exercise, but I wouldn't change a thing. I feel lucky to have a good body and the things about it that aren't perfect are what make it unique.

What kind of personality do you have? How would your friends describe you?

I consider myself to be very laid-back and approachable. I can talk to anybody one on one for hours, but I tend to be shy in large groups. My friends would say that I was kind, funny, and a good listener.

What surprises people about you, after they get to know you?

Surprisingly enough, plenty of people seem surprised that I am "intelligent" ... I guess because of what I do, they expect me to be dumb. Haha!

What do you like most about sex?

Sex has a way of pulling your mind away from all the things that stress you. It's a great release and a great way to connect with your partner.

What is the craziest place you've had sex?

I'm pretty boring in that department. All over the house, in the car, and in the woods. That's about it.

Do you like it rough or sensual?

I would say it depends on my mood, but you can never go wrong with a little bit of both.

What age did you lose your virginity? 18

Have you ever had a 3-some? Nope!

What is something that never fails to turn you on? Flirting. I think that's the most powerful aphrodisiac.

Do you have any special talents? Maybe someday you'll be lucky enough to find out. ;)

Do you like oral sex? Giving or Receiving? Nothing beats the power of giving...

"I have great boobs and even better cleavage. When I want to get attention, I wear my favorite push-up bra and a sexy, low-cut shirt."

Featured Photographe

Photography - David Falk Location - Vancouver, BC, Canada Pixelsoulphotography.com Facebook.com/david.falk.39 Modelmayhem.com/81472

Model Credits: Diana Bello, Mya, Olivia Preston, Jen Republic, Claudia Rylie and Kyara Zobel How long have you been a photographer? How long have you worked with models? 12 years. I almost exclusively shoot models.

What do you enjoy most about being a photographer?

I enjoy the creative side of photography. I am pretty much selftaught and have used what I call the "what if" factor. In other words, I keep saying to myself, "What if I did this, what would the result be?".

At what point did you realize that you wanted to pursue photography as more than a hobby?

I actually got into photography in the opposite direction. I was importing a line of Brazilian bikinis and my rep told me we needed a catalog. So I bought a camera and lights on eBay, found a pretty girl and figured out how the lights worked about 30 minutes before she knocked on my door. From there I found shooting catalogs was quite boring so I started venturing into the creative side of photography.

What kind of personality do you have? How would your friends describe you?

I am quite easy going and adventurous. If models cancel on me I don't get bent out of shape.

What are some of your other interests or hobbies? I play tennis 4 times a week.

What surprises people about you, after they get to know you? Since I shoot glamour, most people are surprised I have 2 Master's degrees in theology.

Tell us about your first muse. How did she inspire you? When I started shooting I stumbled across this lovely young lady, Mya. We hit it off very well to the point she became a friend of our family. She trusted me, so we did a lot of "what if" looks. Some were ridiculous and others pleasantly surprised me.

If you could photograph any model (living or dead), who would it be? Why? Emily Ratajkowski. I've been following her even before her recent exposure. She has this incredible natural curvaceous figure. To me, she comes across as very elegant.

Tell us about your most memorable photo shoot.

About 4 years I did a shoot with Lauren Vickers. She planned the whole shoot (It ended up being 8 hrs) with a look book and about a dozen different looks. In the middle of the shoot my wireless triggers broke so I had run out buy a new set in the middle of the shoot. She went on to become Italian Playmate of the Year.

Besides your camera body, what piece of equipment that you own do you find indispensable?

Ever since I bought my Canon 70-200 II, it rarely comes off my body. I just love the results it gives me in natural light at f2.8.

What photographers do you find inspirational?

I am not going to mention any historically famous photographer. The photographer I want to be when I grow up (I am 60 yrs old) is Barry Druxman. I love the simplicity and beauty of his style.

What qualities do you look for in a model?

I sell lingerie, so when I look for a model I generally look for qualities that will work well with my product. Therefore, one of the first things I look for is a nice waist and a nicely shaped bum (I sell lots of panties). Other than physical qualities, the model has to be uncomplicated and have that elusive camera connection.

What styles of photography do you find most personally rewarding? I really enjoy stuff in the glamour/art genre. What I mean is that I really don't like that cheesy glamour with lots of light (unless it's natural light). I like to see shapes and curves.

Tell us something funny that has happened during one of your shoots. To be honest I can't think of any funny that happened during a shoot. Maybe that is good or maybe I am just too boring.

What advice can you offer to novice or aspiring photographers? Keep it professional. Your integrity is sort like your virginity. Once you lose it, you can't get it back.
