THE NEW KID ON THE BLOCK AS FAR AS MEN'S MAGS GO

Putting together an interactive magazine like this wasn't easy. We've spent countless hours since 2013 and nearly torn our hair out in frustration on several occasions to bring it to you, but we loved every single moment of it. We feel we've assembled a expert team of writers and photographers to produce the best men's magazine possible.

After piecing the magazine together, next came the formidable task of sifting through the gorgeous glamour models we have (yes, it's a very hard job) to select our first ever cover model. Over a few beers we agreed the gorgeous Rosanna Arkle

6 REASONS WHY

GAME OF THRONES™

IS BETTER THAN REAL LIFE

GAME OF THRONES IS AMAZING, WE ALL KNOW THIS BY NOW. EXCEPT YOU, IF YOU'RE THAT ONE PERSON WHO HASN'T SEEN IT YET. LIFE IN GAME OF THRONES SEEMS PRETTY TOUGH COMPARED TO REAL LIFE — THERE'S A LOT OF MURDER, POVERTY, TERRIBLE GOVERNMENTS AND UNTRUSTWORTHY PEOPLE.

WAIT, THAT'S EXACTLY THE SAME AS REAL LIFE. THE ONLY DIFFERENCE IS, LIFE IN GAME OF THRONES COMES WITH THESE:

Dragons!

We don't know about you, but our lives have been very dragon-free so far. Real life doesn't have enough giant, fire-breathing creatures of awesomeness. Sure, they bring lots of death and fear, but what a cool way to go, eh?

Boobs!

We've done the maths — for every hour of Game of Thrones, there are approximately 100 per cent more boobs than in one average hour of your real life... unless you're a DJ at a strip club or something.

Alternative SUMMER Holiday Ideas

For those in the northern hemisphere the summer holidays are almost here, which means it's time to pack your bags, apply some sunscreen and spend a stack of money you probably don't have. But what if we told you there's a better way? A way of enjoying all those amazing summer holiday moments without having to travel a mile or spend a cent. With these handy tips, your holiday at home will create instant Facebook cover photo gold without having to leave your postcode.

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE THE FIRST ROMP COVERGIRL:

I feel so honoured and grateful to be the first cover girl of ROMP and wish it nothing but the best for the future.

WHAT MADE YOU GET INTO MODELLING:

I kind of just fell into it. I've always been a poser.

MOST PEOPLE WILL KNOW YOU FROM THE TV SHOW THE GC. DO YOU GET RECOGNISED ON THE STREET OFTEN?

Yeah, mainly when I'm back in New Zealand. They usually just want a photo and to ask questions about the show or my boxing fight.

WOW YOU'RE A BOXER AS WELL?

[Laughs] No, I did a celebrity boxing match in New Zealand against Jaime Ridge, on the undercard for Shane Cameron and Monte Barrett.

OK SO BEATING UP CELEBRITIES IS JUST A HOBBY. HOW ABOUT BASEBALL, EVER SWUNG AT A FEW BALLS?

[Laughs] No, I would never do that again, just accepted the challenge for the experience. As for baseball, I can't say I have... except for this photo shoot!

ON THE GOLD COAST, THERE IS A FAIR BIT OF PARTYING GOING ON. CAN YOU HOLD YOUR ALCOHOL OR ARE YOU A CHEAP DRUNK?

Yes there is a fair bit of partying, luckily for me I'm a cheap drunk – but I also get the world's worst hangovers!

DO YOU HAVE A CRUSH ON ANY CELEBRITY?

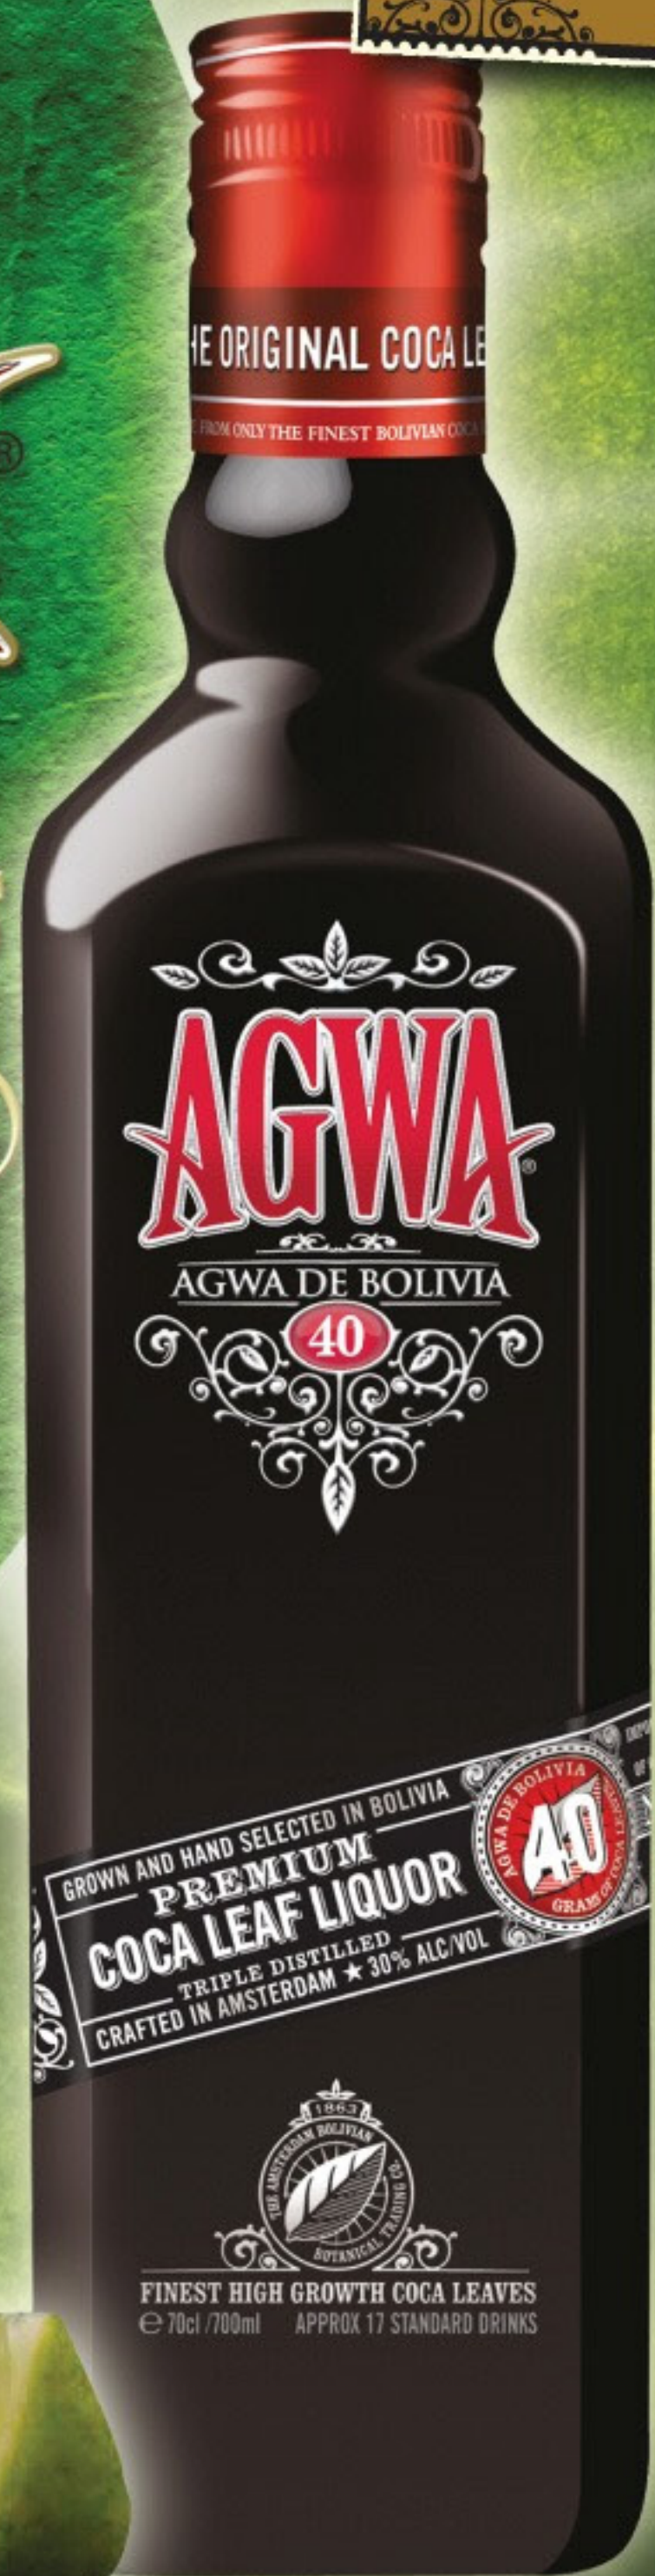

I'm obsessed with the Kardashian/Jenner clan! [Laughs]

33 SPECIES THAT PROVE

MOTHER NATURE FUCKING HATES YOU!

YES, NATURE CAN BE A BEAUTIFUL, AWE-INSPIRING CREATOR OF THINGS THAT MAKE YOU GO "WOW". BUT REALLY, SHE HATES YOU AND WANTS YOU TO SUFFER. HERE'S WHY:

THE CANDIRU: WANTS TO LIVE IN YOUR PENIS

You might have heard of this little fella before. This is the creature that gives men all over the world nightmares and makes them think twice before peeing into a river. The Candiru (also delightfully known as the "toothpick fish" or "vampire fish") is a species of parasitic catfish found in the Amazon. This little beauty (by little, we mean up to 40cm) is quite fond of swimming up your stream of urine and lodging itself inside your old fella. P.S. It has spikes.

ZOMBIE ANTS: THE SCUTTILING DEAD

In tropical forests throughout Africa, Brazil and Thailand, there is a fungus. This fungus, which we shall now refer to as "zombie fungus", attaches itself to the brain stem of poor little defenceless ants and turns them into zombies. The zombie fungus then forces the zombie ant to clamp its teeth around a particular section of a leaf, which offers the perfect temperature for the fungus to grow, consuming the ant's body and spreading its spores to create more legions of zombie ants. If this sounds familiar, it's because this fungus was the inspiration for "The Infected" in the PS3 game The Last of Us. Yes, it's freaking real!

THE HUMAN BOTFLY: RAPES MOSQUITOS, LAYS EGGS INSIDE YOU

Don't be confused by this guy's name, he's neither human nor a robot. He more closely resembles something from a horror film or the deepest levels of hell. The human botfly's MO is to pin down and rape mosquitoes, while attaching its eggs to its victim's body. Then, when you're sound asleep being fed on by said violated mosquito, the botfly's eggs drop into your pores and burrow into your skin. Once hatched, the baby botfly then grows and grows and grows until it eats a hole in your skin and flies away to rape another mosquito and continue the whole nightmarish circle all over again.

BAD MOVIE ADVICE

STARTING A NEW JOB

The moving picture is a powerful medium. Film can often be a great source of inspiration and can present us with strong characters and moments which define and shape our own lives, and also act as guides on how to lead good and decent lives. Then there are the movies that should in no way be acted out in real life. Here are some movies that you should definitely avoid before starting a new job.

HORRIBLE BOSSES

There are few people who can say they've never imagined what it would be like to kill their boss. (Go on, admit it.) In general, it's an inadvisable choice when embarking on a new career. Besides the general awkward situation of hiring a hitman (we never know how much to tip), your boss will more than likely be replaced by another boss who is far worse. Maybe you should just change jobs instead. Try becoming a hitman, they earn good money. Mostly from tips.

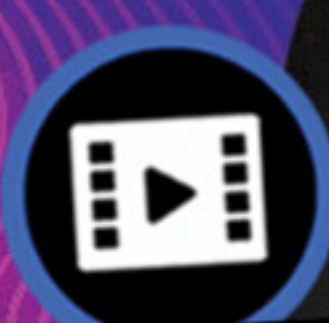

WEEKEND AT BERNIE'S

According to Weekend at Bernie's, the correct protocol for your boss dying unexpectedly in front of you isn't to call an ambulance or alert your co-workers. Instead, you should take your boss' corpse on vacation! Using a series of elaborate pulleys and strings, parade the corpse around as if he's perfectly fine, informing all he's just "tired" while enjoying his lovely beach house and wealth for yourself.

FALLING DOWN

In Falling Down, Michael Douglas goes on a killing spree when he has a particularly bad day at the office. Really, this should be your very last resort. If you feel yourself becoming overwhelmed with the urge to create mayhem, try taking some deep breaths and seek psychiatric help. Also, if you fit into this category, please don't apply for any jobs here because, erm... we're full!

SARAH

SARAH

The smoking Sarah Gerrard sat down with us during The Romp Magazine's photo-shoot to answer some cheeky questions.

Are you a New Year goal-setter or a go-with-the-flow girl?

I liked the idea of setting a goal for the New Year, but by the end of January I was definitely a go-with-the-flow type of girl.

How did you find being in The Romp Magazine?

The Romp was a really great shoot for me, I'm definitely excited to see how it turns out!

What's been your craziest party experience?

My craziest experience is having a few too many to drink and not making it home, I fell asleep in my front garden.

SARAH

What part of your body gets you the most compliments?

Either my eyes or my bum.

What part of a guy's body do you first notice?

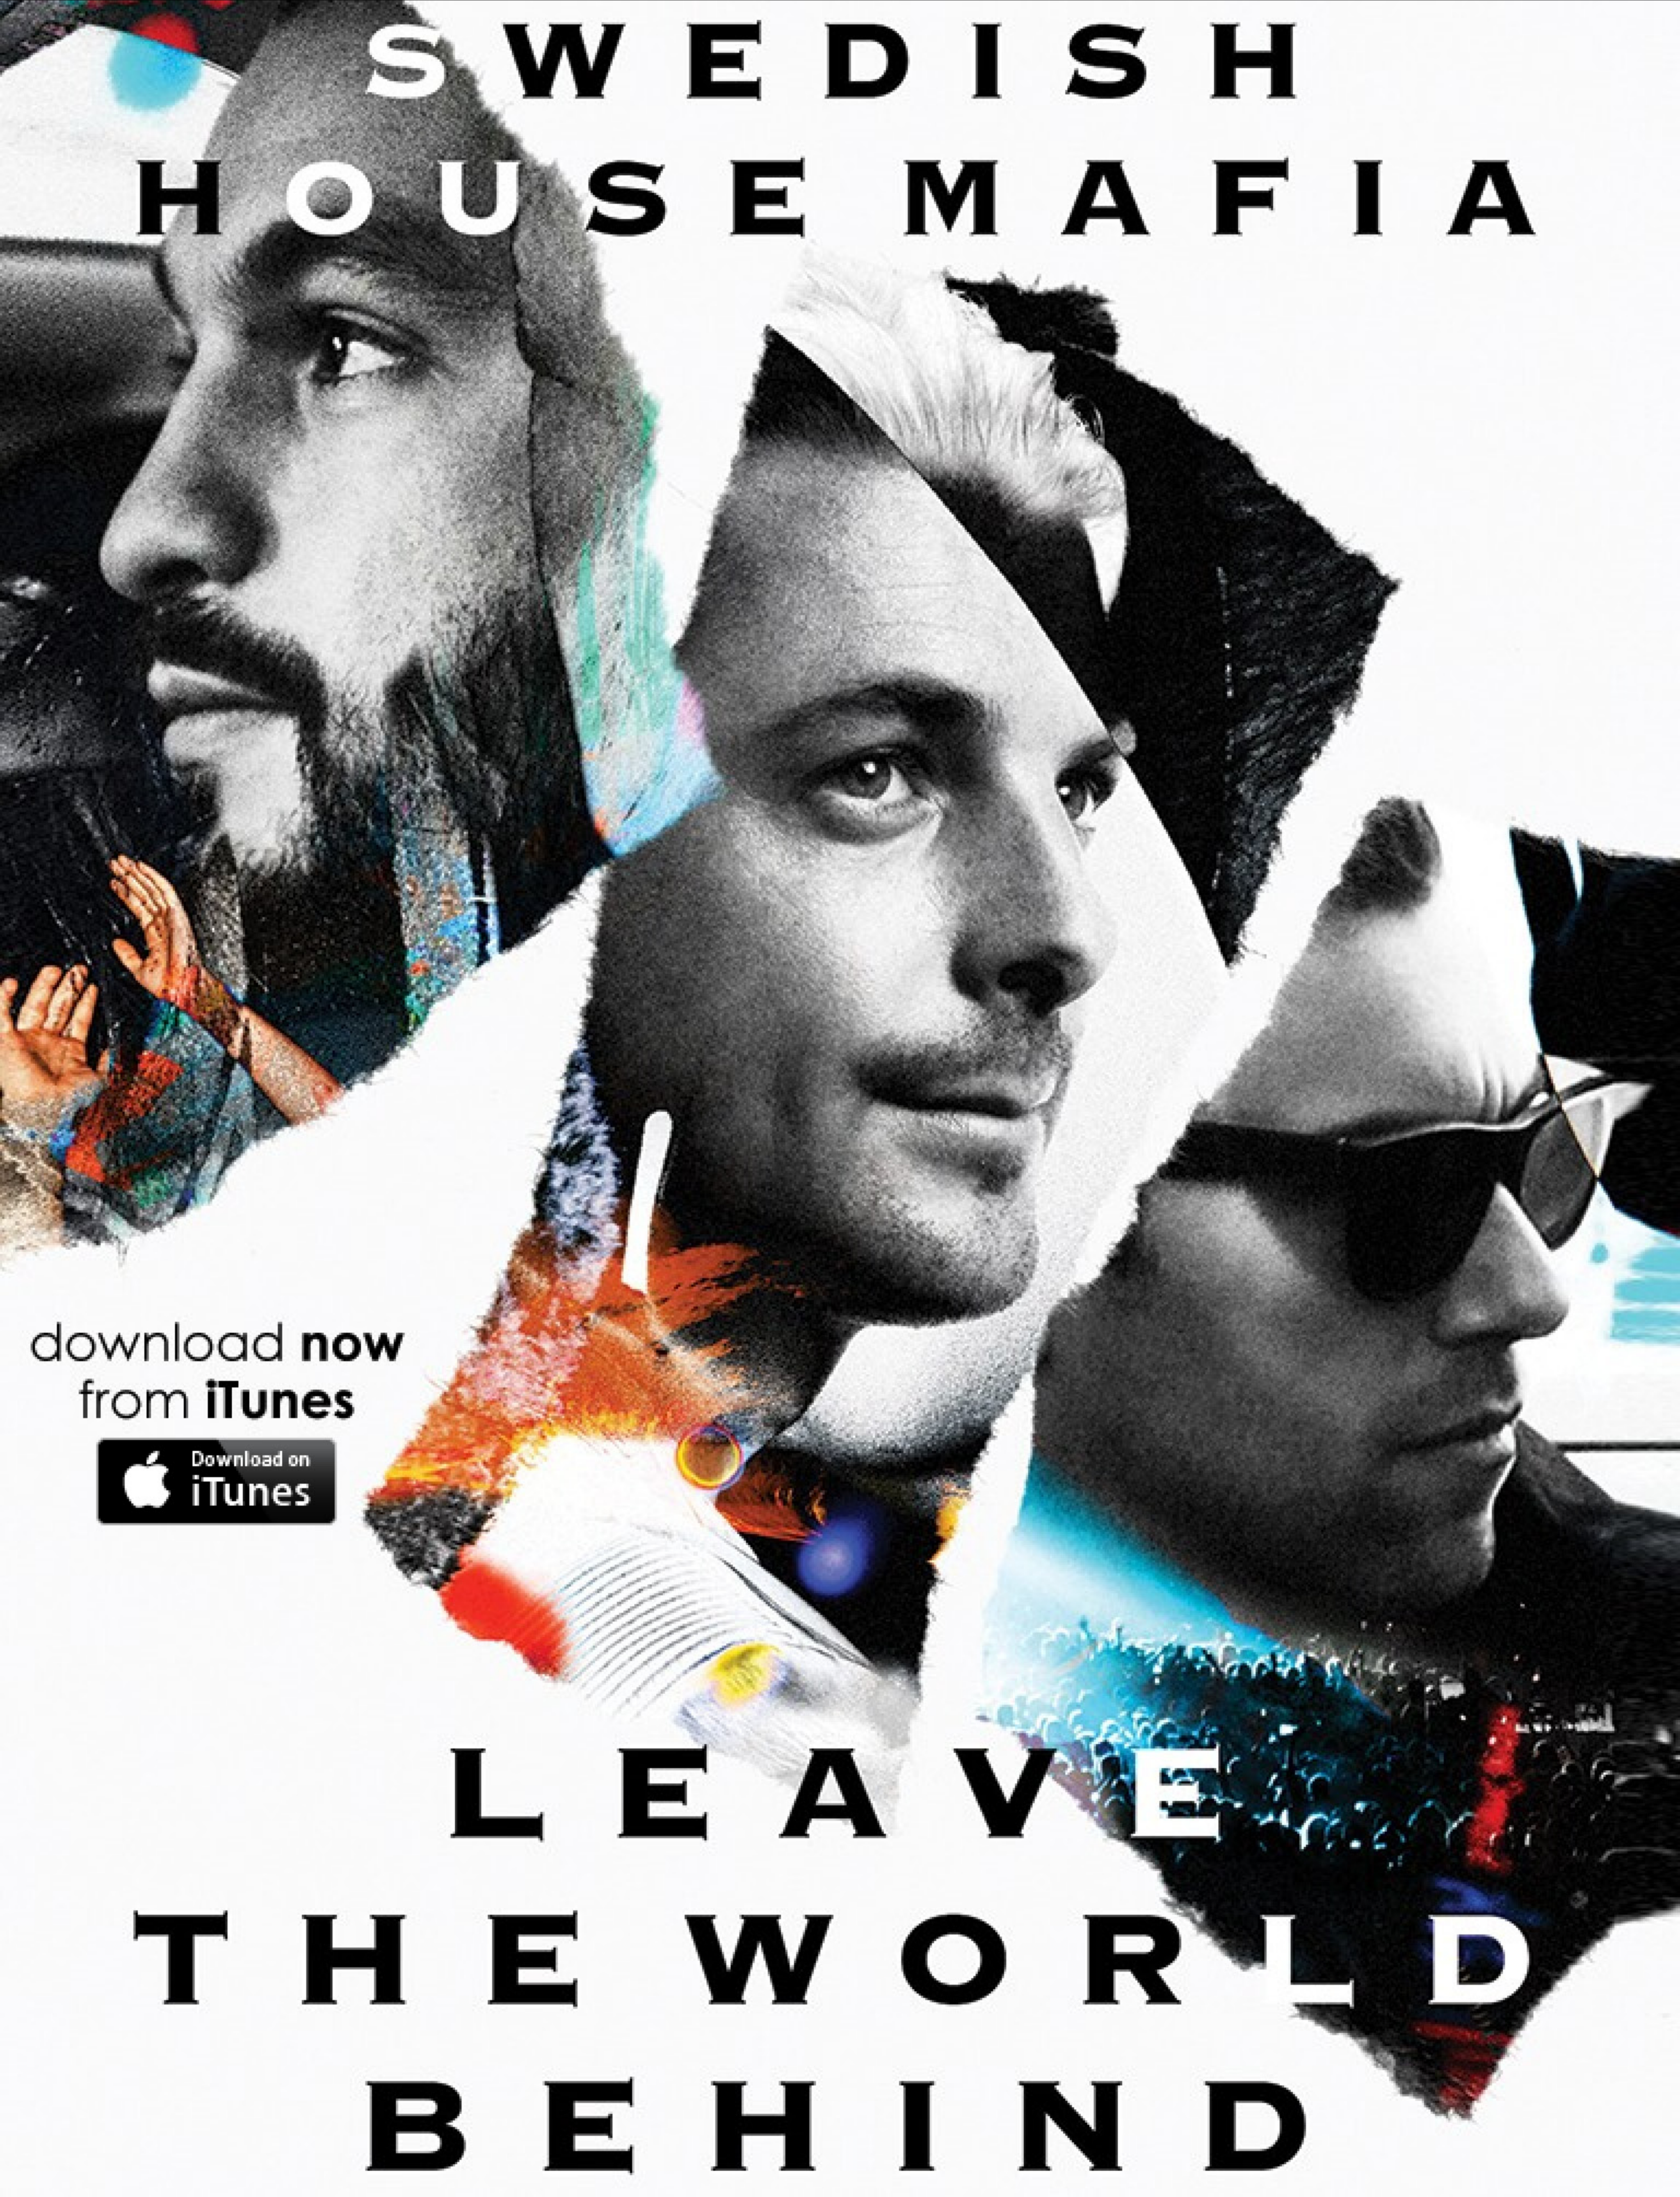

It would have to be arms!

You're a big-time beach girl, what's your favourite beach?

I'd have to say Byron Bay, I love to get away for the weekend there.

CHUCKIE

INTERVIEW

Romp's very own Bunnie Kim got a chance to meet Dutch housemaster Chuckie backstage after his recent gig at Sydney's Marquee. He tells Romp magazine that there ain't no party like a party Down Under. Looking fresh as a daisy despite being at the tail end of a whistle-stop tour around the country of Australia, Chuckie was delighted to be in the Harbour City again, and looking forward to a bit of downtime.

So how does Chuckie manage to keep it fresh, despite a hectic schedule and all those late nights? "Well," he tells Bunnie, "it's important for me to deliver a great set. I try to prepare as much as I can. First of all I try to find some new records, and some new ways to keep the energy flowing." And the payoff? "It's a big reward when you are on the decks, and people are cheering for you."

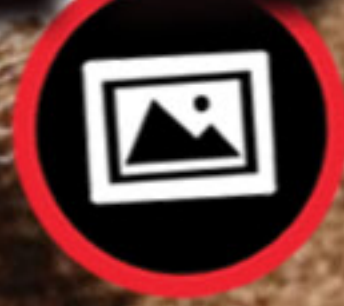

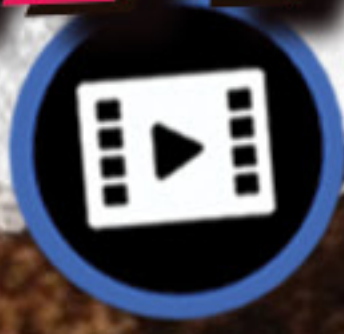

From clubbing with P.Diddy to lunching with 50 Cent and Jay-Z, Chuckie's star is undisputedly on the rise.

BUNNIE KIM

While The Romp Magazine's very own Bunny Kim got her sexy on, we sat down with her and spoke about some very important things. Like nail art and naked portraits.

Hi Bunny, we heard you're a professional Go-Go dancer, is that true?

Bunny: Yeah, I was last working at Marquee (Sydney). But I'm on a little break at the moment.

Do you have any other talents besides dancing?

Bunny: I draw and paint. I also do crazy nail art.

Have you ever painted someone's naked picture before?

Bunny: [Laughs] No! I'm not sure how some body parts will turn out.

Maybe you can advertise now to all our readers. I'm sure you will get someone who will volunteer.

Bunny: [Laughs] I'll pass on that!

BUNNIE KIM

This is the first issue of The Romp Magazine, how do you feel about being in our premiere issue?

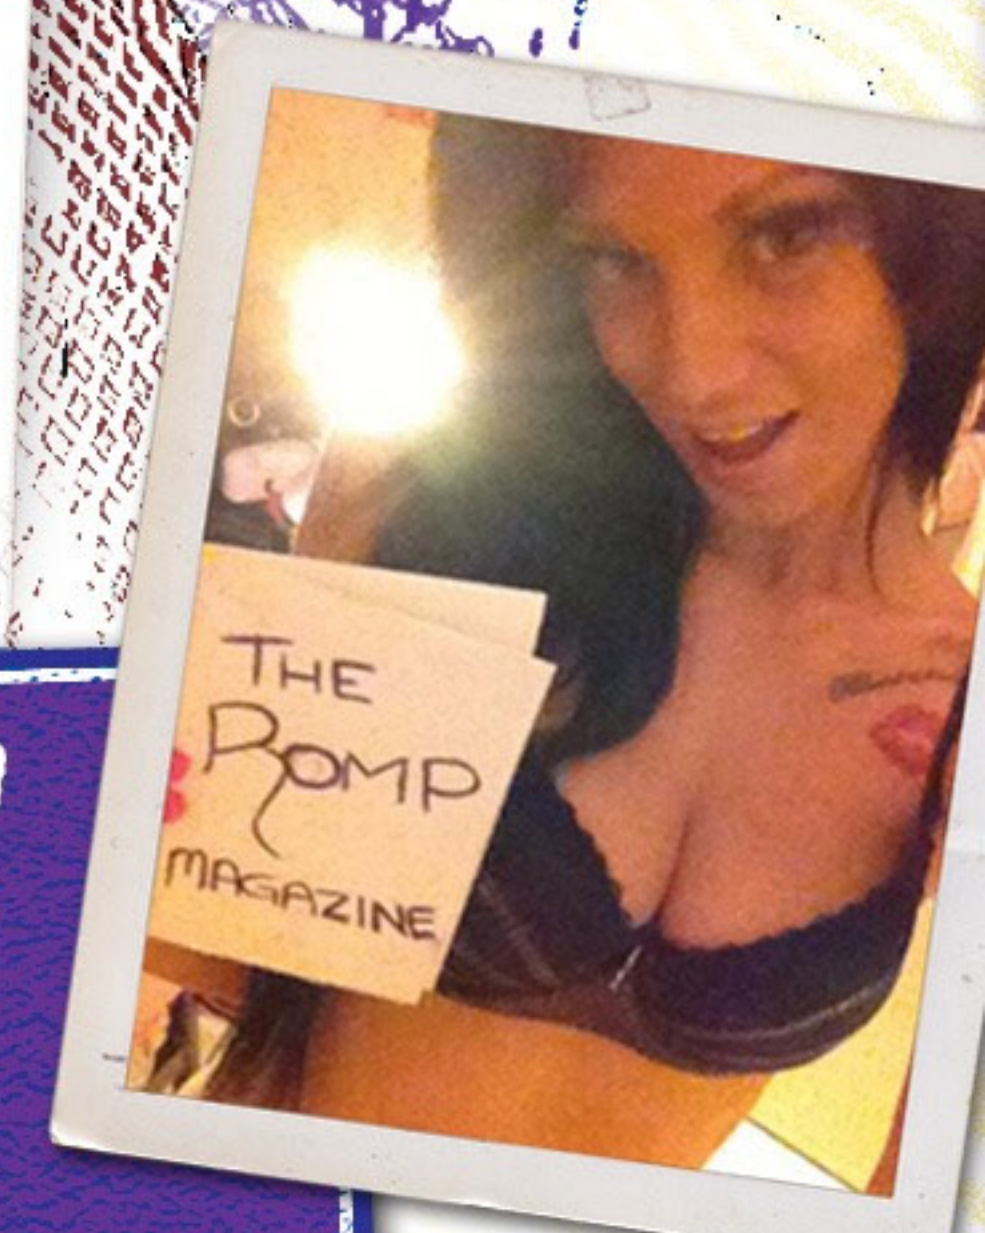

Bunnie: I'm very excited and can't wait to see how it turns out.

You also work for The Romp Magazine as a celebrity interviewer. In this issue you spoke with international superstar DJ Chuckie. How you think you went?

Bunnie: It was the first interview I've done so it took longer than planned 'cause I kept mucking around[laughs]. But overall it was really fun!

Where can The Romp Magazine readers catch you online? Do you have a Facebook or Instagram?

Bunnie: Yes, only Instagram - @hellobunniekim and @nailslikeBK

FIVE BAD HABITS

TO TAKE UP IN THE NEW YEAR

New year, new you. Each January, we run ourselves through the grind of self-analysis, picking apart the things we don't like about ourselves and making a firm statement to the world that "this is it, no more, once and for all I am giving up smoking. I am eating better, I'm going to the gym."

Forget that, that's boring. Everyone's doing that. Be different, make a stand, live your life and take up some more bad habits. Like these:

SWIPE DOWN TO READ FULL ARTICLE

SING TO YOURSELF

Singing to yourself is guaranteed to make you 30% happier. It will also annoy everyone around you 100% more. Which, in turn, will make you an additional 20% happier. That's 50% added happiness. Sing all the time, sing everything you see and do. You're on the bus, you see a really overweight man. Sing a song about how he's taking up two seats instead of one. You're at Woolies, sing a song about the hot checkout chick and how you love the way she weighs your carrots. Sing, sing, sing.

FART LOUDER AND MORE FREQUENTLY

There's nothing the ladies like more than a man who's not ashamed to part his butt cheeks and release sweet, swelly music to the world. Eat beans for breakfast, lunch and dinner and women will be throwing themselves at your noxious cloud of manliness in no time. What's more, your bowels will feel like they've had a delightful spring clean.

REFER TO YOURSELF IN THE THIRD PERSON

This will make you sound far more important than you really are and is guaranteed to annoy and confuse everyone you meet. "Malcolm is pleased to meet you."

RESPOND TO EVERY QUESTION WITH ANOTHER QUESTION

This is guaranteed to make you sound smarter and more philosophical than you really are. Example:

Your Boss: "Did you finish that report I asked you to do?"

You: "Do any of us really ever finish anything in this life?"

Your Boss: "Wow, I never thought of it that way. Have a promotion!"

PICK YOUR NOSE IN PUBLIC

Forget blowing your nose into a tissue. That's for girls. Real men get right in there, scooping around with their baby finger like God intended. Show the world that you don't care what it thinks and finger your schnozzer today!

JESSICA & AMY

The Romp Magazine spoke with two Queensland hotties, Jessica Molly & Amy Louise. Despite drooling, The Romp's interviewer managed to get some questions out.

How do you girls feel about being in the first issue of The Romp Magazine?

Jess: I'm so honored to be apart of the first issue of Romp! I'm really excited about it and doing it with my bestie makes it even more exciting.

Amy: I'm pretty excited to be apart of the first issue. It's a wonderful experience to have this as my last ever shoot and my exit to the industry.

JESSICA

You both look amazing together in your shoot for The Romp, before this have you ever had any girl-on-girl action?

Jess: I have never done girl-on-girl either, I wouldn't want to portray that image. But with my best friend it's acceptable

Amy: Never. I refuse to touch any other girl besides Jess; she's irresistible!

Have you ever been hit on by another female?

Jess: Yes! It's the most awkward thing.

Amy: Yes! I have been hit on by Jess numerous times! [Laughs]

What kind of pick up lines do guys use on you?

Jess: I have never really had a "line" as such used on me, just like awkward gestures. I'm really oblivious so I usually have to get bailed out by friends. [Laughs]

Amy: Jess! What pick up line would you say to me? [Laughs]

Jess: Umm, I don't know, I haven't really hit on a girl. I do it mucking around all the time but never in real life so I have no idea. [Laughs]

End this phrase for me, blondes have more fun but brunettes.....

Jess: Do it better!

Amy: Remember it the next day!

What do you think each others sexiest asset is?

Jess: Bum bum bum. Amy has a perfect bum, always has.

Amy: I would have to say definitely Jess's melons. Not only are they perfect, they are 100% real!

So I guess Jess you have grabbed her ass a few times and Amy how do you know for sure?

Amy: I know because they are so squishy! Yes. The answer is yes. I've touched them. Jealous?

Do you girls have Facebook, twitter or instagram? How can our readers connect with you?

Jess: Instagram is @jessicamolliyx

SEVEN INVENTIONS THAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN INVENTED BY NOW

We live in a time where we can access near-infinite information from our pocket. A time where we can talk face-to-face with people on the other side of the planet with the click of a button. A time where you can share every single thought, whim, desire or selfie with the entire world, instantly.

But who gives a shit, because we still don't have flying cars! Sort this stuff out now, science:

SWIPE DOWN TO READ FULL ARTICLE

THE FLYING CAR

How hard could it be? We've already conquered flight. Helicopters, planes, pigeons. They're all flying around up there. Why can't we commute to work in the air? There'd be way less traffic jams. Yes, potentially way more terrifying air disasters, but regular, massive loss of lives is a small price to pay to be able to turn to the person in your passenger seat and say: "This is your captain speaking."

THE HOVERBOARD

Marty McFly had one of these in Back to the Future 2. That movie was set in 2015. Scientists, you have one year left. Figure it out.

MOON HOUSES

American scientists during the space race of the 1960s made a prediction that we would have colonised the moon by the 1980s. We're not sure about you, but last time we checked, we weren't spending our summers in our moon home, sipping moon wine and eating moon cheese on our moon balconies.

THE DRIVERLESS CAR

It's not enough that we have flying cars, they need to bloody drive us around as well. Not only would this reduce road rage by 100%, it would also shut those backseat drivers up. Tell your automated robot car that he should have taken a left back there, see if he cares.

ROBOT MAIDS

Unless you're rich enough to be able to hire one, for most of us, the only time we get near a maid is in our night-time fantasies. If robot maids were mass-produced, we could all have one and start throwing empty beer cans over our shoulders, like a man should.

PORTABLE JET PACKS

Ok scientists, so you're telling us that we can't have flying cars OR the driverless car. Fine. Well, at the very least, build us some bloody jet packs cos we're tired of walking around like idiots on these stupid legs of ours.

TELEPORTATION

Star Trek thought this up way back in the 60s, so there's been loads of time to try and figure this out. Why aren't we teleporting to work every morning, science? Cos you were too busy inventing singing toasters and talking toilets, that's why.

How to cook her a meal for next to nothing!

SWIPE DOWN TO READ FULL ARTICLE

The ladies love nothing more than a man who can cook. Jamie Oliver, Gordon Ramsay, even George Foreman; they're probably beating off the women with a spatula. If you want to impress the special lady in your life, but don't want to spend any time or money on it, then you came to the right place. Here are some fool-proof ideas for delivering top quality nosh at low quality prices.

THE MACCA'S GOURMET TREATMENT

We all know Macca's is delicious... and cheap as chips (see what we did there? Oh, we crack ourselves up). It's the perfect date food. The only problem is the presentation. Here's what you do... nip out to Macca's, pick yourself up a couple of Big Macs, some fries, the works. Then when you get home, pull out your finest plates and arrange the food in a gourmet fashion. Be creative – you can take the lettuce leaves out and make it a side salad. Or layer the chips so they're criss-crossed in a fancy way. She'll be so impressed, she won't even notice that her meal cost under ten bucks.

THE SOUP KITCHEN EXPERIENCE

Soup kitchens have a veritable supply of quality nourishment, and it's all free! Yes, totally free! There is one catch, you've got to be homeless. Never fear... here's what you do. In the days leading up to your hot date, refrain from showering, shaving or general cleanliness. Don't wash your clothes for weeks. On the big day, wander in to the soup kitchen, grab enough food for two and you'll be back home in time for the cheapest date you've ever had. Downside is, she might not find your new look as attractive.

THE HOME-COOKED MEAL FROM MOM

Mothers love to cook. They live for it. Tell your mother that you want to spend some quality time with her and that you really miss her home cooking. Invite her round to yours for some quality mother-son time. All going well, she'll whip up an amazing three course feast to-die-for. Now, here's the tricky bit. You need to get your mother out of your house, and your girlfriend in. We recommend sneaking outside, phoning your mother and telling her that her house is on fire. She'll leave, your girlfriend arrives, and your mother will be so relieved to discover her house intact that all will be forgotten.

MUSIC

WWW.THEROMPMAGAZINE.COM

Hitting the shelves every year since 2002, the Wild Summer compilation series shows no sign of letting up. This December heralds the release of the latest offering.

The first disc gets underway with an elegant, progressive house slow-burner from Scotland's finest, Calvin Harris, before tearing into colossal festival trouse from the likes of Tiesto and Armin, all clean drums and swerving up-bass as the Queenslanders show their cards early. They go big on the breathy vocals of Ellie Golding and the wonderful Lana Del Rey, as the majestic Summertime Sadness enchants.

There is no-nonsense to the layout - the disc features quick-fire edits which are not so much mixed as dropped into each other to keep the pace up. Rave Radio's own track sits admirably amongst the cuts of bigger names, before their jump-up remix of Checkmate brings the noise from Wiz Khalifa and Snoop Lion.

As the mix breathes on, the sounds stays local, with The Stafford Brothers FMF anthem meeting the megazoidal Move To The Rhythm as the disc goes up a gear.

You can smell the coconut oil and taste the sangria on Avicii's Wake Me Up, before Mat Zo's tour de force Pyramid Scheme brings something a little different to the mix.

As the disc thunders on, there is time for a surprise, as Rachel Collier seductively breathes over a classic house record from Ray Foxx, easing the listener towards the gigantic DJ Isaac re-imagination of Martin Garrix's Animals.

PAUL OAKENFOLD

WE ARE PLANET PERFECTO VOLUME 03

VEGGAS TO IBIZA

This month saw the release of the third in Paul Oakenfold's Perfecto Las Vegas series – the first of which remains the highest selling DJ compilation ever released in the US.

The two-disc compilation is split into two concepts – the first reflecting the sound that Oakenfold smashes out to packed dance floors at the Palms Casino Resort in Vegas, while the second encapsulates the sonic incarnation of the world's most famous party island.

Disc one is all about Oakenfold's big room manifesto: think Swedish House Mafia with a Mohawk and nose ring. It opens with the elaborate I Need You, an explosive celebration of colour and sound over a ripping bassline and 80's nu-romantic vocal before charging into a touse hybrid with chunky drums and dramatic breakdowns. Gold even offers a nod to trap, as Oakenfold covers all the bases.

The listener is treated to the Moe Aly epic reimagining of Oakenfold's classic Southern Sun, before WOW from Maisen and Dragen bring the disc to a peak complete with synth lead, housey drum and farty brostep riff. From here, epic vocal gives way to the non-conforming Raise Your Glasses, a ballad with a cheeky breakbeat which evolves into an arms-in-the-air destroyer. To close, Eddie Halliwell's signature techy stabs and rasping bass bring in Move Like u Stole It which both sums up and rounds off a very classy mix. ZZ Ward's vocal is reminiscent of Adele, with the fireworks of the melody erupting below.

I AM LEGION

I Am Legion

Dutch drum and bass goliaths Noisia join the colourfully named Metropolis and Orifice Vulgatron of Foreign Beggars to drop their debut collaboration this month under the moniker I Am Legion.

Having met at Glastonbury and bonded over a shared need for grimy basslines and street prose about five years ago, the five individuals have finally ended the wait for a long-playing release.

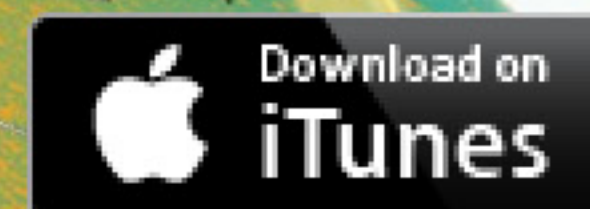

The album begins profoundly, as an introspective wet synth whooshes into the deepest of basslines, stretching out languidly for a minute as the synth ebbs and flows between the cones. Just as it is about to drop, it ends abruptly as a perpetual teaser.

Farrda comes in deep, dark and heavy. It is confronting, dizzy and somewhat disconcerting as the MCs go hard from the outset over Noisia's sub-bass tattoo. It's a bouncy number, with no breathing space between verses.

The standout is Make Those Move, which has one of the deepest sub-bass thumps you'll hear. A proper wall-shaker, this is Legionstep in a nutshell. Broken, raspy with plenty of reverb on the track, it's laced with alien swoops and liquid jabs. It's an absolute banger, an unforgettable cut that harks back to the original UK dubstep sound.

From here, the experimental heaviness of Jelly Fish makes way for the glitchy tripper Ice which puts the hood up and eyes down for a moody stomp. Loose Leaves lets up a little in pace, but retains the intensity of what has come before for a modern trip-hop workout.

From out of left-field, I Am Legion lobs in a surprise with Choosing For You, the only full-on trap number on the Damage Control

Unassuming 23-year-old Londoner Mat Zo made his name on the scene as a prolific progressive trance producer on the Anjunabeats label, supported widely by label bosses Above and Beyond.

However, it was a couple of releases in 2011 which cemented Zo as a player, and simultaneously broke open a genre. Superman and Rebound (with Arty) combined elements of trance and big room house and have invited scores of poor imitations ever since which have muddied the pool.

His hotly anticipated album Damage Control has just dropped, and once again, the game has changed.

The album begins with a haunting sub continental chant over delicate strings and gorgeous synth which serves as a stunning and emotive introduction. It is followed by a warm liquid bassline reminiscent of Roger Sanchez's blissful beach bar classic, Another Chance.

Only For You is wonderfully languid and nostalgically electric with a lush vocal. Megahit Easy with fellow skyrocket Porter Robinson needs no explanation a Daft Punk tribute which made its way to top spot on the iTunes and Beatport charts, this is the one which announced both producers as dance music dons.

Caller ID is a fascinating bass-heavy trap motif with Eastern instrumentation, and is quickly followed by the

The Romp caught up with Dj Brooke Evers to find out what makes the multi-talented star tick.

How did you first get into modelling?

Brooke: I first got into modelling at about five or six years old, with Mum and Dad throwing me into those pageants. Then started getting catalogue work from a young age, and then started getting into bikini after I did Miss Indy.

What's the weirdest thing you've ever been asked to do on a shoot?

Brooke: It would have to be holding a big python, it was disgusting. Great experience, but never again - it pooped and vomited on me

You're closely associated with a number of surfing brands, do you surf yourself?

Brooke: Yeah, obviously I'm no Kelly Slater but I can surf - I've lived on the Gold Coast so everyone kind of surfs.

I hear you're pretty handy as a DJ, is this something you've been doing for a while?

Brooke: DJing kicked off about three years ago - I've always been in the clubbing industry, I've always been around music and I'd been with one of the Stafford Brothers for a long time. So it was kind of like that transition of I already knew I was going to be a DJ but never actually did it.

BROOKE EVERS

MAGAZINE

Did you teach yourself?

Brooke: I did, but I also got a bit of help from some of the boys. I moved to Sydney and got some help from Tom Piper, Timmy Trumpet, Tenzin.

As well as DJing and modelling, you've also done dancing, TV and journalism work - if you could only choose only one, which would it be and why?

Brooke: Yeah I do have a few things I've done in my life time [laughs] but you know what, I'm going to stick to DJing, it's the best thing I've ever done. I get to travel, I get to party and I get to have fun - it's the best job in the world.

What's the best piece of advice you've ever been given?

Brooke: The best thing I've been shown would be watching The Stafford Brothers and what they've accomplished and where they've come from. And yeah, just to work hard and it will always pay off.

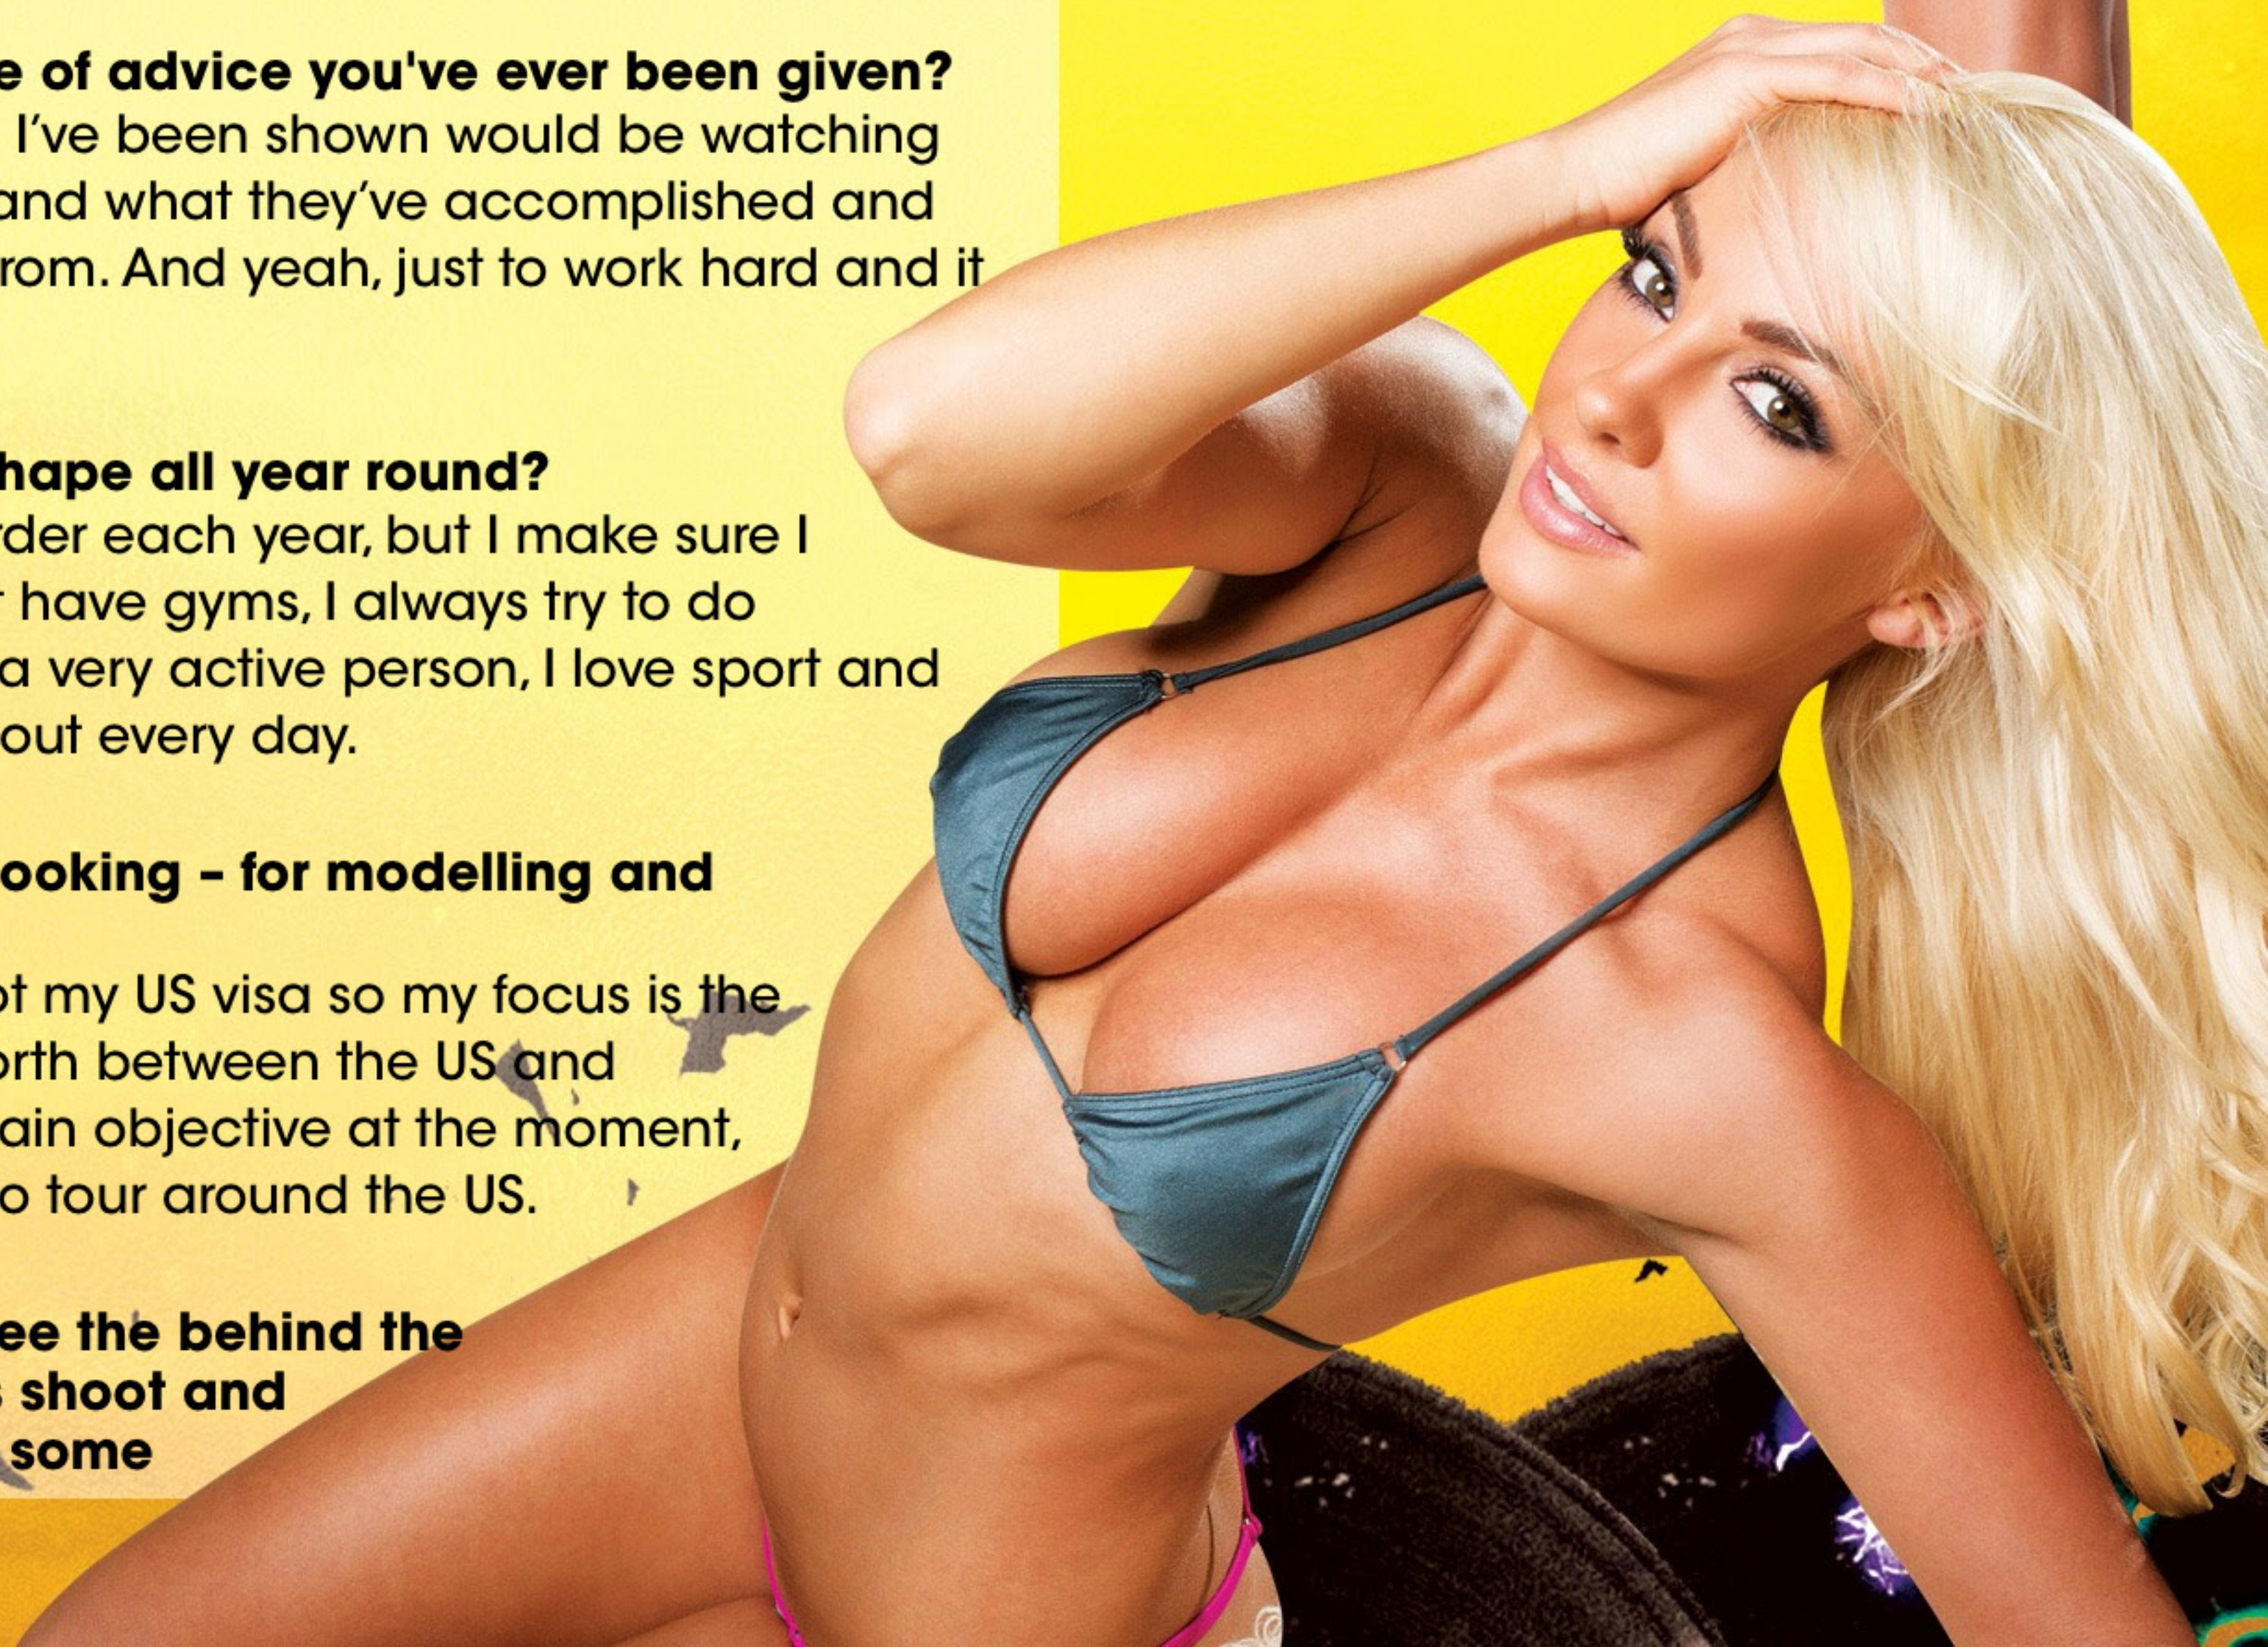

How do you stay in shape all year round?

Brooke: It's getting harder each year, but I make sure I check into hotels that have gyms, I always try to do cardio every day. I'm a very active person, I love sport and make sure I just work out every day.

What's your dream booking - for modelling and for DJing?

Brooke: DJing, I just got my US visa so my focus is the US, DJing back and forth between the US and Australia. That's my main objective at the moment, my dream would be to tour around the US.

WHY THE WORLD OF FITNESS IS GOING GREEN

CHLOROPHYLL

WHY THE WORLD OF FITNESS IS GOING GREEN

The world of health and fitness is full of phases, from fad diets to miracle cures.

Yet every now and then, there is one phase that changes the face of modern health and sticks. With its powerful detoxification properties and high magnesium levels, chlorophyll is more than just a phase – it's the first step on your journey to overall health.

The green substance found in plants, Chlorophyll, shares a similar structure to that of haemoglobin responsible for delivering oxygen throughout the human body. When ingested, chlorophyll mimics the action of haemoglobin, boosting our energy almost instantly and stopping carcinogens from binding to DNA, further reducing the risk of cancer.

The upsides don't end there though: Chlorophyll is a natural deodorant which reduces the production of excess body odour, while its high levels of magnesium act as a powerful muscle relaxant which can be used to reduce muscle cramps, aiding in recovery. Vitamins C and K, as well as folic acid, iron, calcium and protein are also present in chlorophyll and they're essential to maintaining a healthy immune system and aid in the production of healthy red blood cells and tissues.

The life giving substance is the reason your mum always told you to eat your greens, and proves she was right. The trick to identifying Chlorophyll rich food is simple, the greener, the better.

Chlorophyll makes most vitamin and diet phases look painfully unnecessary and simply too hard. It reduces the need for any other wonder drugs as well as caffeine, sugar and the toxins we use today just to get by. However, the reason chlorophyll is the first suggestion I make to my clients really comes down to the most astounding fact, it rapidly detoxes you, making you feel better almost instantly. Also, some of my clients have noted rapidly weight-loss on chlorophyll. This wonder drug is not man-made – it has existed for thousands of years and is presents in a stick of celery or a bowl of spinach. Looks like Popeye was onto something after all. TINA
WALLMANN

The Romp Magazine was lucky enough to shoot with the sexy Tina Wallmann, one of the hottest glamour models in Australia, in what might also be her last ever shoot! We sat down with Tina after for a chat.

Hi Tina, welcome to The Romp Magazine. How did you find the shoot?

Tina: The shoot was amazing, I had so much fun. Although, being covered in oil did cause some problems when shooting on the sand.

A large crowd gathered around us at the beach watching you pose for the shoot. Do you always have that effect on guys when you go out for a swim?

Tina: Guys will be guys. Any guy would stop and stare at a pretty woman being photographed in a bikini, it's in their nature.

So the word is this could be your last shoot? Why have you decided to call it quits and what do you plan on doing after this?

Tina: Yes, this is my last shoot. I've decided to give modeling a break. I've been doing it for so long. 12 years to be exact! It just feels too repetitive for me. I need a new challenge. I get bored too easy.

TINA WALLMANN

TINA WALLMANN

You have now moved to the US. I am assuming you're going to be pulled into movies and be a big Hollywood star?

Tina: Yes, I've moved to the US. I live in Laguna Beach now and am absolutely loving it! Salt in the air, sand in my hair. It just fits my lifestyle. I love the beach. I just recently featured on Bob Sinclar's new track 'Summer Moonlight', so keep a look out for me in his new music video. After we finished filming we also filmed 'The Harlem Shake'. It was hilarious! You can check it out on YouTube.

What do you think is your sexiest feature?

Tina: My smile. The smile is the window to the soul. It exudes confidence. There's nothing more sexier than that.

What do you think is the sexiest feature on a man?

Tina: The sexiest feature on a man would be his eyes, and I do find facial hair pretty sexy too!

How much facial hair are we talking?

Tina: I really dig beards on guys. Whether it's full grown or just a bit of stubble. I think it makes a man more masculine, and I find it extremely sexy.

Lastly can you describe yourself in a sentence using the word Romp?

Tina: That last question requires me to think too much, I'd rather just go romp at the beach! Take care, I have to go work on my tan.

BOXTER AND CAYMAN GTS MODELS

When it comes to badges on cars, very few acronyms denote performance like 'GTS' (Gran Turismo Sport). Porsche has recently unveiled its GTS models for its Boxter and Cayman sports cars.

They both come with a 3.4-litre flat-six (or 'boxer' for car freaks) engine but the Cayman puts out 250kW and 380Nm while the Boxter gets a measly 243kW and 370Nm. The Boxter comes standard with a six-speed manual transmission, while a PDK dual-clutch auto is optional, but is standard on the Cayman. With the PDK they'll hit 100 kmh in 4.7 and 4.6 seconds respectively and they'll reach 280 kmh.

The engine actually passes the strict Euro 6 emissions and fuel consumption is around 8.2L/100km with PDK form and 9.0L/100km with the manual.

Both cars come with the usually optional "Sport Chrono" performance pack as standard, as well as Porsche Active Suspension Management (PASM) adaptive dampers to provide racecar-like handling and driving performance.

To make sure everyone knows your car isn't the run of the mill Boxter or Cayman, the GTS gets some sweet

FIRST LOOK THE NEW SUBARU WRX

Pictures of the 2014 Subaru WRX have just been released, showing a brand new look for the highly popular performance car. The new WRX is likely to be much more distinctive than the plain-Jane Impreza. At the back, it's still hard to tell it from the Impreza sedan however, apart from the diffuser, quad-exhaust pipes and lip spoiler on the boot. The new Rexxy is set to be the fastest and most advanced version ever. The all-wheel drive system and suspension will be getting a major overhaul to make it handle even more go-kart-like.

The engine is set to be based on the 2.0L boxer donk found in the Subaru BRZ/Toyota 86, but coupled with a turbocharger pushing it's power figure to above 200kW.

A NEED FOR SPEED

THE 2014 FORD MUSTANG GT

The 2014 Ford Mustang GT delivers some of the best performance bang for the buck, bringing with it a level of sophistication that's surprising considering the brash sound and classic looks.

The car is track-tested at more than 200 mph, running on the zero-to-60 mph sprint at takes just 3.5 seconds, while flying through the quarter-mile in 11.8 seconds. The Shelby GT500 not only accelerates with brute force, but it turns and stops surprisingly well too, making it brilliant on the track.

Along with its convertible sibling, the GT500 packs the most powerful production V8 engine on Earth (662 horsepower at 6,500 rpm, 631 lbs. of torque at 4,000 rpm). This is based on current production models and manufacturer horsepower data. With the 5.8L DOHC 32-valve aluminium-block V8 on hand, this car has enough power for its driver to leave the competition in the dust.

Unlike some of its competitors, the GT500 doesn't come with an automatic gearbox. Shifting duties are handled exclusively by a traditional TREMEC 6-speed manual transmission, which features increased torque and rpm capacity due to its dual-disc clutch design.

BMW 4 SERIES COUPE REVIEW

At first glance one could say that BMW's new 4 Series Coupe is simply the 3 Series with two less doors. In fact, what might have once been planned as the 3 Series Coupe is now released with the new 4 Series badge.

The 4 Series range comes in the entry-level 420i ($69,500) & 420d ($71,500), the 428i ($80,500), and the top range 435i ($108,500). Compared with the outgoing 3 Series Coupe it sits 60mm lower, 26mm longer and 43mm wider. The height falls by 16mm, while the overhangs front to rear have been reduced by 13mm and 11mm respectively. Added body strengthening in the front axle sub frame to the body creates stiffer connection between the two, providing sharper cornering.

As has come to be expected from a benchmark BMW, the interior is beautifully trimmed on flawless leather. The seats are nicely contoured with low seating positions, giving it that sports car feel.

The rear seats are easy to access with great legroom, although not so much in the headroom department. An eight-speed automatic transmission comes standard with the entire 4 Series range. A six-speed manual is also available as a no cost option.

Both the entry-level range produces 135kW of power, although, the 2.0-litre turbo-diesel four-cylinder 420d gets 380Nm of torque, up by 110Nm from the turbo petrol 420i. Equipped with a tuned-up version of the entry-level petrol engine, the 428i produces 180kW of power and 350Nm of torque. It is claimed that it reaches 0-100km/h in 5.8-seconds, 1.5 seconds faster than the entry-level range. The flagship of the series, the 435i, packs a 3.0-litre turbo petrol six-cylinder and gets 225kW and 400Nm of torque, while reaching 0-100km/h in 5.1-seconds.

Standard across the range are 18's, fog lights, reversing camera with front and rear sensors, bi-xenon headlights, LED interior lights, auto lights and wipers, dual-zone climate control, Bluetooth phone and audio connectivity, and an 8.8-inch display with satellite navigation and 20Gb storage. Safety features common across the range include ABS, cornering brake control, stability and traction control, and front

MELYSSA GRACE

Hi Melyssa,
Welcome to The Romp Magazine.

Is it true you've got crazy skills behind the wheel?

Yes, I can clutch kick at the same damn time. I race in the Formula Drift Pro am division and I have a sexy R8 that I slide around and so demos in.

How long have you been drifting and when did you realise you were good at it?

I've been drifting for almost three years now, I'd say the turning point was when I stopped crashing [laughs].

What's your car of choice to drift in?

My competition race car, it's a S13 240SX with a SR20 snap. I just love being in it because it has a lot of sentimental value to me. It's also the car I learned how to drive stick in.

What is your favourite style of music at the moment?

I love country love songs. They're romantic and make me feel good. For funny country music with great beats, I keep my Pandora station set to "COH Ford"

MELYSSA GRACE

Are you more the podium dancer type or slow dance, body-to-body type?

Actually I only dance alone in my bathroom when i'm getting ready. I'm not a club person so I don't get too many dancing opportunities.

You have a lot of fans online. What's the freakiest thing someone has tweeted or messaged you?

Just recently, another girl drifter who will be soon competing in my division, wrote a nasty false article about me on her boy- friend's online drifting magazine. She also made fake accounts using my name and pictures... people can be so weird.

Tell us something about yourself not many people know?

I'm really interested in aliens and energies from other dimensions. Also I'm a vegetarian and have three dogs.

When do you feel sexy?

When I feel someone special to me has given me a sincere compliment.

What do you wear to bed?

I'm a full bottom white cotton panties and tank top kind of girl.

HOW TO

NET A TENNIS HOTTIE

Let's face it, there's a crap-tonne of seriously hot tennis players out there. Anna Kournikova, Daniela Hantuchova, Maria Sharapova. That's to name just a few. Tennis has a disproportionately high level of hotness, and it's part of the reason it's so good to watch.

But how do you net yourself one of these racket-bearing beauties and start "courting" her? Here's a few tips:

Snappy Conversation

Tennis hotties are used to quick, lightning fast decisions and return volleys. Your conversations need to be like a tennis match and you need to return volley everything she throws at you, or you'll be "out" in no time. She makes a witty comment, you make a wittier comment. She compliments you, you compliment her harder. She plays footsie under the table, you kick her in the leg!

Shout Things At Her

Tennis hotties are used to having everything shouted at them. You need to put on your best umpire voice and bark one-word commands at her. Start with "IN" and "OUT" in appropriate situations (we'll leave that to your imagination). Then, if it's going well, you should be able to shout out things like "DINNER" and "BEER" and her lightning reflexes will kick into gear.

Build Some Muscle... On Only One Arm

Tennis players tend to have one arm that is much more well-defined than the other. This is a look you'll need to adopt if you want to attract her. Start using one arm to do everything. Writing, driving, high-fiving. Work your main arm out regularly – do serious weights

SPANISH FOOTBALL GIANTS HIT WITH A MASSIVE BAN

FIFA has banned Barcelona from transferring players for the next two transfer windows due to breaches relating to the international transfer and registration of players under the age of 18. The ruling means the Spanish giants are prevented from either buying or selling players until 2015.

Club coach, Gerardo Martino planned to overhaul the side at the end of the season. Those plans have obviously now been put on hold.

The sanctions follow investigations conducted by both the FIFA Transfer Matching

AUSTRALIAN BOXING FARCES

Fight fans received a one-two combination of ridiculousness with the recent Anthony Mundine vs. "Sugar" Shane Mosley fight, possibly driving home the final nail in the coffin of boxing in Australia.

The latest embarrassing episode for the sport first saw Mosley walking away from the fight hours before the weigh-in due to a contractual dispute with fight promoter Vlad Warton over Mosley's payment.

Combined with poor ticket sales and pay-per-view buys it seemed like the fight would never see the light of day. However, the fight was announced to be back on not long after its initial cancellation, with Mundine's camp putting their hand up to bankroll the event.

The fight came and further disappointed fans (the few who were still interested) when they were treated to another farcical turn of events, with Mundine winning the bout when Mosley was forced to withdraw after only six rounds due to suffering back spasms. The crowd in the attendance loudly voiced their displeasure, and rightfully so.

There's been several farces surrounding boxing in Australia in recent years. Danny Green vs. Paul Briggs in 2010 is considered by many as one of the worst nights in Australian boxing history. Briggs was comically dropped after just 29 seconds when Green grazed the top of his head with a left jab. Viewers were disgusted from the apparent dive.

FACE OFF IN THE OCTAGON

Never before in the history of mixed martial arts have two Olympic medallists faced off inside the octagon. UFC bantamweight champion Ronda Rousey, one of the most popular and polarising figures in the world of mixed martial arts, won the bronze medal for judo at the 2008 Beijing Olympics. Her opponent, Sara McMann, is a wrestling world champion and silver medal winner for freestyle wrestling at the 2004 Athens games.

Both women are undefeated coming in to the fight and pose a very interesting stylistic matchup on paper. Many believed if anything

NOT TIGER IN AUGUSTA NATIONAL

For the first time in 20 years Tiger Woods, the four-time Masters champion, did not compete in the Augusta National after having back surgery for a pinched nerve

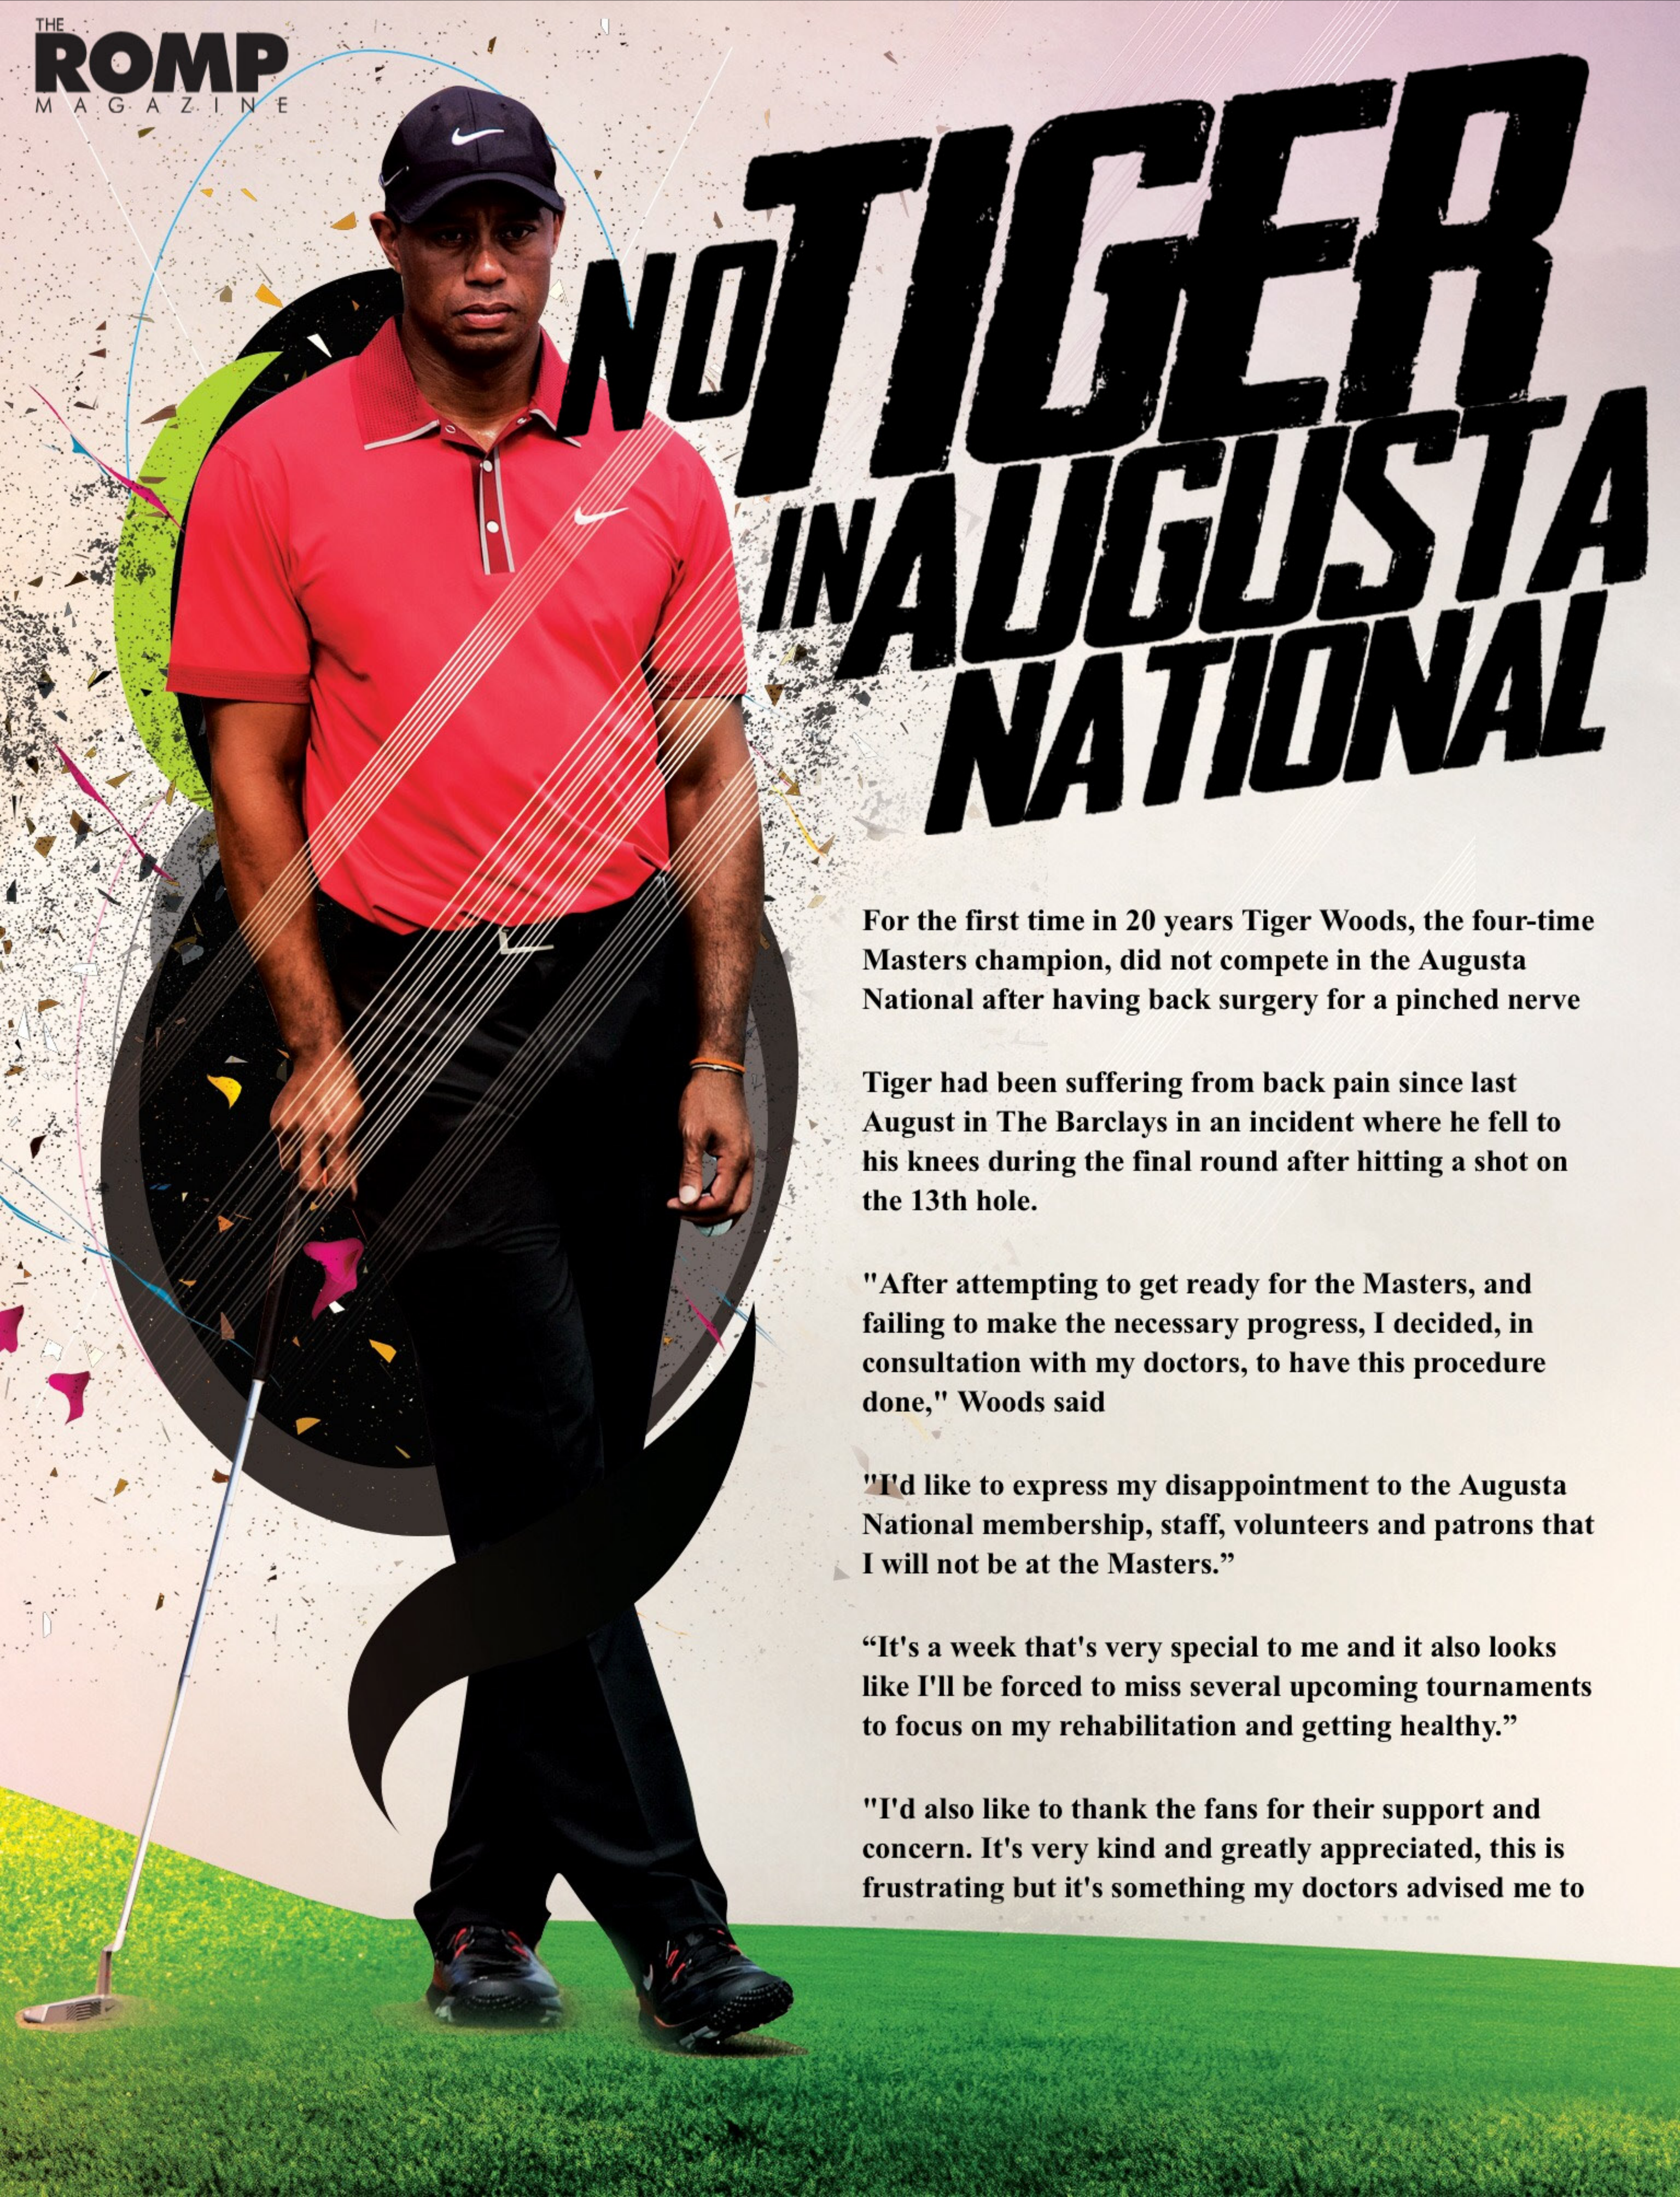

Tiger had been suffering from back pain since last August in The Barclays in an incident where he fell to his knees during the final round after hitting a shot on the 13th hole.

"After attempting to get ready for the Masters, and failing to make the necessary progress, I decided, in consultation with my doctors, to have this procedure done," Woods said

"I'd like to express my disappointment to the Augusta National membership, staff, volunteers and patrons that I will not be at the Masters."

"It's a week that's very special to me and it also looks like I'll be forced to miss several upcoming tournaments to focus on my rehabilitation and getting healthy."

"I'd also like to thank the fans for their support and concern. It's very kind and greatly appreciated, this is frustrating but it's something my doctors advised me to

Question 1

Hi, I tried having sex in the shower with my girlfriend last night but I was slipping all over the place. I nearly broke my neck and put a hole in the wall with my knee. Are there any tips on how to do this right? Sex in the shower is always a dangerous game to play – a small, slippery area with little space to move around is not an ideal place to do the dirty! If you're hell-bent on getting it on in the

SEX QUESTIONS with Berenger Rose

Question 2

How should you act after you have sex for the first time with a new partner?

Every situation is different, so I guess it really depends on the girl. Speaking for myself, I do love a bit of a cuddle afterwards. It may be the first time, but if you don't want it to be the last time, I suggest making her feel a bit special anyway, as opposed to just running away afterwards and making her feel like it was meaningless.

Question 3

How soon can I tell my new partner my sexual fantasies?

This is a bit touch and go. You want to include her in your fantasies, but you don't want to scare her off either! Talk to her about her fantasies – maybe she shares
